SHAPE OF THINGS TO COME

A new Hilarita is taking shape, the emerging moderate-income housing rising on the hillside land in Tiburon from which was cleared decaying World War II housing. The $2.7 million project, initiated by the Tiburon Ecumenical Association, is funded by the federal government under a complicated arrangement with private and public agencies. Ultimately it will contain 102 dwelling units. Meanwhile, the site is shared by a remnant of the old housing, occupied by tenants waiting a place in the new. Then the last of the old will go. Completion is expected in the spring, climaxing a years-long struggle over the project in the courts, before the Tiburon Planning Commission and the city council.

President Says U.S. Not In A Recession

Ford Sees Reduced Rate Of Inflation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Saying that the United States is not in a recession, President Ford predicted today that there will be a "meaningful reduction" in the rate of inflation by early 1975.

Ford, wearing a "Win" button in his lapel to symbolize the voluntary fight against inflation, made the prediction at a news conference in the sun-filled Rose Garden of the White House.

He said the government will have to be "very, very careful" that it doesn't "tighten the screws" to such a degree that it plunges the country into a recession.

He said it will take the cooperation of the American people and the response by Congress to the 31 pieces of legislation he backed in Tuesday's address' before a joint session to achieve the slowing down of the inflation rate.

Many economists say the economy is now in a recession since the Gross National Product has shown no growth in the last six months.

But Ford said, "I don't think the United States is in a recession. We do have an economic problem but it is a very mixed situation."

The President said he was "very confident" that his 31-step program would work if adopted by Congress and he did not want to speculate on what further measures the government would have to take if it did not.

"We are going to concentrate on making it work," the President said.

Asked why he did not recommend an increase in gasoline taxes or gasoline rationing, Ford said, "We believe the surtax is a more equitable approach" to gain the extra income needed to finance programs for "people who are suffering hardships" and to dampen inflation.

He said the administration had "taken a look" at the proposals for a higher gasoline tax and felt it would be harmful to the people least able to pay.

On gasoline rationing, the President did not directly answer the question but said, "We believe the people will respond to our program ... the American people responded last year very, very well" to a far more drastic shortage of gasoline.

Ford conceded "there has been some criticism" of the one-year surtax he proposed, but he promised that it would not extend beyond the 1975 calendar year and noted that a family of four earning $20,000 a year would be required to pay "only 12 cents a day" in extra tax.

Ford said he had to confess that former President Richard M. Nixon's plan to achieve energy independence from other nations had not done as well as "we had hoped." He said both Congress and the executive branch should share the blame.

No Marin City Solution Reached

Marin County supervisors and a Legal Aid attorney remained at loggerheads yesterday as a hoped-for settlement over Marin City's Richardson Highlands development crumbled amid accusations and recriminations.

The dispute, which first came before supervisors last week, involves a threat by Legal Aid to block the 389-unit project in the courts unless it includes some dwellings for low-income families.

As approved by supervisors, the townhouse and condominium project calls for 20 per cent of the 240 condominium apartments to be set aside for moderate-income families.

Richard A. Hirsch, chief attorney for Legal Aid, who claims to represent five unnamed Marin City residents, last week appeared to soften his clients' demands when he seemed to accept the 20 per cent moderate-cost units as sufficient if built during both stages of the project, instead of last.

Yesterday's session erupted almost immediately, however, when Hirsch told supervisors he had either been misunderstood or had made "a slip of the tongue" in agreement to only moderate cost units.

He told supervisors he was not authorized by his clients to make such a concession, if in fact he did.

"Don't say it was a slip of the tongue," shot back supervisor Gary T. Giacomini. "It wasn't a casual slip. . .but rather you were substantially changing your position."

Supervisors then each took a turn criticizing Hirsch and claiming the threatened suit is simply a way of overturning the board's decision not to include low-cost housing in the project by killing it with long delays in the courts.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, at one point, questioned Hirsch whether his board of directors had sanctioned the threatened suit or whether the Legal Aid staff is permitted to "willy-nilly decide" what cases it handles.

"Do they allow you to willy-nilly represent one poor person to the detriment of 100 poor people?" he asked, saying the Marin City project is a cornerstone to making that community self-reliant.

Hirsch responded that his board does not interfere with the cases the staff accepts as a matter of principle.

Baptiste labled Hirsch's response a "cop out" and at one point said he will seek to withhold about $20,000 in county funding to the agency unless the legal aid board takes a position on the issue.

Giacomini then suggested a committee be formed of two supervisors to approach the legal aid board to determine its position.

Roumiguiere and Giacomini said they would attempt to set up a meeting with the Legal Aid board on Monday at noon at the Civic Center.

Turning to Hirsch, Wornum then opened up with, "In my opinion you are delivering lousy legal services . . . it's against the public interest to (block the project) on behalf of a few people."

Hirsch responded that it was a matter of individual rights and the rights of everyone to appeal to the courts.

Novato Plans Land Negotiations

Despite objections from the Novato Federated Women's Club and two councilmen, the Novato City Council last night voted to go ahead with acquisition of property across the street from the Novato Community House for a new city civic center.

The vote, after a lengthy public hearing, was 3-2, with councilmen Fred F. Ruegg and Dorothy P. Young voting no, according to City Mgr. Phillip J. Brown.

Brown said that none of the opponents of the land acquisition argued that the community house — in which the city council chambers, city offices and police departments are presently housed — is adequate.

Instead, he said, Mrs. Young and Ruegg as well as others in the audience thought that other, possibly less expensive sites, should be investigated.

Thelma Jones, president of the Novato Federated Women's Club, said that some 20 members of the club who toured the present facilities this week were "shocked and appalled" by conditions in the police department and likened the facility to the "old west."

However, she and three other members of the club, Dixie Calvo, Barbara Rucker and Kathleen Taylor, asked that a public hearing on the whole civic center matter be set for November and that no further land negotiations take place until after the hearing.

The request was denied when the council voted to instruct Cal-Trans, a firm hired by the city, to go ahead with negotiations to buy the property. The firm also was instructed to arrange rental fees with property owners who wish to stay in their homes after purchase by the city until construction of a new civic center is begun.

Betty Machado, member of the Novato Unified School District board and the women's club, said today she will file suit in Marin Superior Court seeking an injunction halting all negotiation for purchase of the proposed site.

Mrs. Machado called Novato taxpayers "an endangered species" and said the matter ought to be put to a public vote.

Brown said for some years the city council has been setting aside money for land for a new civic center to house city offices, police department and the council chambers. Presently there is something over $400,000 in the fund, and $300,000 of this has been budgeted for land purchase this year.

Last night the council voted to change the fund's designation from land purchase only to include development of the building. The intention is, Brown said, to have enough cash on hand to pay for the civic center, which is proposed to be built in 1977-78.

Mrs. Machado said one reason for a public vote on the matter is that she does not believe that most voters realize the entire project will cost approximately $800,000.

In other but related action last night, the city council voted 3-2 to go ahead with refurbishing of the community house, at a cost of approximately $100,000.

Brown said a majority of the council thought roof repair, heating and ventilating problems and expansion of the city council chambers should be taken care of, even in view of the new facility.

He said there never has been any intention by the city of abandoning the community house and that it will be used for recreational and other group meetings if and when the new center is built.

Mrs. Young and Ruegg voted against the refurbishing expense on the basis that the money would be better spent on the new civic center.

Simon Says Surcharge Would Affect 28 Per Cent Of People

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, defending President Ford's proposed 5 per cent income tax surcharge before Congress, said today it would affect only 28 per cent of all taxpayers. (See related story on page 2.)

But he encountered skepticism from members of the House Ways and Means Committee, which shapes the nation's tax laws.

Ranking Republican Herman T. Schneebeli, Pa., said the fate of the surtax would rest with what American voters say during the next four weeks, while congressmen campaign for reelection.

"You have a big selling job to do," Schneebeli said. "You better get your public relations forces to work very vigorously."

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ways and Means, expressed doubt Ford could allow the surtax to die, as planned, after 1975.

Ford presented his long-awaited message on inflation to Congress yesterday. It contained proposals for heavier taxes on the middle class and the wealthy, tax incentives to revive business and exhortations to Americans to pinch pennies and drive less.

A liberal, Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, was critical of the surtax proposal, saying it was a "transfer of revenues from individuals to the corporate sector" since Ford had proposed major tax advantages for businesses which expand or modernize.

"You're going to affect the lifestyle, the buying power, the ability to fight inflation of 65 million people," Vanik said.

Simon said 82.5 million tax returns are normally filed by American householders. He said the Treasury calculated that the surtax, which would hit persons making $7,500 a year or families earning $15,000, would fall only upon 28 per cent of them —23 million returns.

If the average return represents three people, that would account for 69 million taxpayers.

Ullman said he was concerned Congress "may have to re-act it (surtax) on a year by year basis" to recapture the revenue that would be lost by Ford's proposed permanent tax relief for business.

Simon said the surtax was necessary to help the victims of inflation and spur business investment needed for a healthy economy.

Ullman said Ford understated the problem in yesterday's address to Congress. Ullman said the economy was "an even worse" problem than Ford said and the problem would "get worse before its gets better."

Unified Housing Aid Pact Urged

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Marin County supervisors yesterday urged Marin's 11 cities to join the county in a common effort to secure more than $8 million in federal "community development" funds over the next six years. (Other Marin supervisors' stories, page 23.)

The board's request came as Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella reported on available funding under the recently enacted Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

In order for the county to receive the estimated $8.4 million, Campanella told supervisors it will require cooperation from the cities.

The funds, he continued, may be used for such things as urban renewal, recreation, preservation of historical sites and open spaces, housing code enforcement, slum clearance, construction or improvement of water and sewer systems, parks, flood and drainage facilities, street lighting, parking facilities, recycling and fire protection facilities, among other things.

He said the use of the funds should be aimed at providing benefits to low and moderate-income persons.

Under one allocation formula, the county as a whole can receive an estimated $8.4 million. Under another, it may be only $1.5 million.

Under the new act's guidelines, a higher level of funding will be given metropolitan cities with populations of more than 50,000 and urban counties with populations of more than 200,000.

Campanella said no city in Marin can qualify as a "metropolitan city" based on the 1970 census, though the county as a whole may be able to qualify as an "urban county."

In order for the county to qualify, he explained, it must have the power to operate housing and redevelopment activities in incorporated and unincorporated areas totaling 200,000 population.

Currently the county has such authority only over unincorporated areas, totaling less than 100,000 residents.

Campanella said he was not sure what kind of legal agreement would be required between the cities and county to expand its housing and redevelopment authority.

If the cities and county cannot agree, he continued, the county would fall into another category and could expect only about $1.5 million instead of $8.4 million.

It was not clear what the cities would receive if each seeks funding independently.

Campanella said the funds from the new act could be used as the county's share of matching funds for other federal grants.

He said the county has until

Brezhnev, Ford Plan A Summit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and Soviet Communist Party Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev are actively considering plans to hold a summit meeting next month, administration officials said today.

Emphasizing that "nothing is firm yet," the officials said the Ford-Brezhnev conference could be tacked on to Ford's scheduled visits to Japan Nov. 19-21, and a subsequent two-day stop in South Korea.

The two leaders were said to be considering a summit session in a third country or on a Pacific island, probably at the end of Ford's Far East swing.

The administration officials said discussion of such a meeting came up in regular U.S.-Soviet diplomatic consultations recently and both sides were considering it.

"This would have to be more than a get-acquainted session — a chance for them to talk about substantive issues," one official added.

The White House already has said that Ford expects to hold a full-blown summit meeting with Brezhnev next summer in the United States, following up on an invitation to the Soviet leader that was extended by former President Richard M. Nixon last June in Moscow.

But an earlier meeting, officials said, would give Ford and Brezhnev an opportunity to review a broad range of issues of major importance to the two superpowers, presumably including strategic arms control negotiations now under way in Geneva and expanded U.S.-Soviet trade.

Earlier diplomatic reports from Moscow said Brezhnev was thinking of inviting Ford to a summit next month in Siberia. They said the Kremlin wanted such a meeting as soon as possible to clarify future relations between the two countries in view of Nixon's resignation last August.

Garbage Truck Snarls Power

A garbage truck that became entangled in a power line at 11:23 a.m. yesterday knocked out power for 1,670 San Pedro Peninsula residents for about an hour.

Pacific Gas and Electric engineer Robert H. Williams said a garbage truck was unloading a large bin on Lochinvar Road when it snagged a power line and pulled down a conductor.

Power was restored in a hour for all but five customers, he added.

County Moves To Buy Open Space In Mill Valley

The Marin County Open Space District board tentatively agreed yesterday to purchase two parcels of land within the city limits of Mill Valley.

Purchase of the lands is subject to the working out of final details in the acquisition documents.

The first parcel, slightly more than 18 acres above the Scott Valley subdivision, is to be purchased jointly by the city and county — each putting up $50,000. The price amounts to $5,438 per acre.

Owners of the property, which was subdivided to become the fourth unit of the Scott Valley tract off Camino Alto, had offered the property for $150,000 earlier this year but the price was dropped when the validity of the subdivision was questioned.

The second parcel, 72 acres above the Mill Valley golf course, is to be purchased by the county without assistance from the city.

Pierre W. Joske, general manager of the open space district, told directors that the county negotiated a $247,311 purchase price for the land — $3,416 per acre. It is owned by Hilarita Silberberg and others.

Joske said both parcels are part of the North Ridge acquisition plan.

Earlier diplomatic reports from Moscow said Brezhnev was thinking of inviting Ford to a summit next month in Siberia. They said the Kremlin wanted such a meeting as soon as possible to clarify future relations between the two countries in view of Nixon's resignation last August.

Garbage Truck Snarls Power

A garbage truck that became entangled in a power line at 11:23 a.m. yesterday knocked out power for 1,670 San Pedro Peninsula residents for about an hour.

Pacific Gas and Electric engineer Robert H. Williams said a garbage truck was unloading a large bin on Lochinvar Road when it snagged a power line and pulled down a conductor.

Power was restored in a hour for all but five customers, he added.

Unified Housing Aid Pact Urged

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Marin County supervisors yesterday urged Marin's 11 cities to join the county in a common effort to secure more than $8 million in federal "community development" funds over the next six years. (Other Marin supervisors' stories, page 23.)

The board's request came as Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella reported on available funding under the recently enacted Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

In order for the county to receive the estimated $8.4 million, Campanella told supervisors it will require cooperation from the cities.

The funds, he continued, may be used for such things as urban renewal, recreation, preservation of historical sites and open spaces, housing code enforcement, slum clearance, construction or improvement of water and sewer systems, parks, flood and drainage facilities, street lighting, parking facilities, recycling and fire protection facilities, among other things.

He said the use of the funds should be aimed at providing benefits to low and moderate-income persons.

Under one allocation formula, the county as a whole can receive an estimated $8.4 million. Under another, it may be only $1.5 million.

Under the new act's guidelines, a higher level of funding will be given metropolitan cities with populations of more than 50,000 and urban counties with populations of more than 200,000.

Campanella said no city in Marin can qualify as a "metropolitan city" based on the 1970 census, though the county as a whole may be able to qualify as an "urban county."

In order for the county to qualify, he explained, it must have the power to operate housing and redevelopment activities in incorporated and unincorporated areas totaling 200,000 population.

Currently the county has such authority only over unincorporated areas, totaling less than 100,000 residents.

Campanella said he was not sure what kind of legal agreement would be required between the cities and county to expand its housing and redevelopment authority.

If the cities and county cannot agree, he continued, the county would fall into another category and could expect only about $1.5 million instead of $8.4 million.

It was not clear what the cities would receive if each seeks funding independently.

Campanella said the funds from the new act could be used as the county's share of matching funds for other federal grants.

He said the county has until

County Moves To Buy Open Space In Mill Valley

The Marin County Open Space District board tentatively agreed yesterday to purchase two parcels of land within the city limits of Mill Valley.

Purchase of the lands is subject to the working out of final details in the acquisition documents.

The first parcel, slightly more than 18 acres above the Scott Valley subdivision, is to be purchased jointly by the city and county — each putting up $50,000. The price amounts to $5,438 per acre.

Owners of the property, which was subdivided to become the fourth unit of the Scott Valley tract off Camino Alto, had offered the property for $150,000 earlier this year but the price was dropped when the validity of the subdivision was questioned.

The second parcel, 72 acres above the Mill Valley golf course, is to be purchased by the county without assistance from the city.

Pierre W. Joske, general manager of the open space district, told directors that the county negotiated a $247,311 purchase price for the land — $3,416 per acre. It is owned by Hilarita Silberberg and others.

Joske said both parcels are part of the North Ridge acquisition plan.

Martha Presses Petition

NEW YORK (AP) — Martha Mitchell's lawyer said yesterday that she's had to take odd jobs because she needs money. But an attorney for her husband claimed she lives in surroundings that rival the grandeur of the Taj Mahal.

Mitchell

The contrasting views came out of a state Supreme Court hearing at which Mrs. Mitchell pressed her petition for $3,000 a week temporary alimony from her estranged husband, former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell.

Mitchell was not present at the hearing. He is on trial in Washington on charges of taking part in the Watergate cover-up. Mrs. Mitchell was present in a spectator's seat. She declined to talk with newsmen.

Justice Manuel Gomez reserved decision on the alimony, a preliminary to Mrs. Mitchell's suit for separation. She has charged abandonment.

Dam Moves Ahead

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Construction of Auburn Dam on the north fork of the American River received the go-ahead yesterday after environmentalist groups agreed to drop their lawsuit challenging the $847.5 million project.

The action came as U.S. District Court Judge Thomas J. MacBride began a hearing on an amended environmental impact statement he ordered the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation to prepare following a 10-week trial last April.

Yesterday, the Natural Resources Defense Council, the Save The American River Association and the Environmental Defense Fund agreed to dismissal of their suit.

Bid Dampened

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Jewish settlers opposed to territorial concessions and Arab diplomats backing guerrilla demands and speaking openly of the possibility of a new war today complicated Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's bid to get the stalled Middle East peace talks moving.

Both the settlers and the Egyptians tried to head off moves toward an Israeli-Jordanian disengagement pact, threatening one of the options open to Kissinger on his latest Middle East peace mission.

In Beirut, the newspaper An Nahar said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam alerted the Palestine guerrilla movement to the possibility of another Middle East war in the near future.

Cabinet Sworn In

ATHENS (UPI) — A 19-member caretaker cabinet under Premier Constantine Caramanlis took the oath of office today and pledged to bring democracy back to the land where it was born.

The new nonpolitical interim government will run the country until the Nov. 17 elections.

Changes Plea

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Stanley Goldblum, mastermind of one of the biggest business frauds in U.S. history, brought his federal court trial to a surprise halt yesterday by pleading guilty.

It had been expected that the complex trial, brought on by the $2 billion Equity Funding Corp. scandal, which bagan only last week, would last six weeks to two months.

Goldblum pleaded guilty to five of the 45 charges against him, including conspiracy, mail and securities fraud and making false statements in registration of securities.

The prosecution agreed to drop the remaining charges. Goldblum could get up to 30 years in prison. U.S. District Court Judge Jesse W. Curtis scheduled sentencing for Feb. 10.

Protest Erupts

ROME (UPI) — A protest strike in the auto capital of Turin erupted into fistfights today, hampering settlement of Italy's political crisis and threatening to set off a new round of labor unrest.

Police said at least 13 persons were injured, one of them seriously, in fights between picketers and strike breakers at the Fiat auto works in Turin, the Detroit of Italy.

Leveling Off

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's divorce rate is leveling off and officials speculated today that more marriages were surviving because of the nation's troubled economy.

During the first six months of this year the number of divorces stood at 59,361 compared to 57,475 during the same period in 1973 — or a 3.3 per cent increase. It was the lowest six month increase in the last seven years.

"I found a general trend that divorce rates decrease in the times of economic hardship," Brinkley Long, a Sacramento County Superior Court marriage counselor, told UPI.

Mansfield: Proposals Not Enough

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said today he could support a surtax if it was placed on higher incomes, but on the whole President Ford's new anti-inflation proposals were not strong enough to cure the economy.

Mansfield's comments were indicative of Congress' reaction to Ford's economic message yesterday — a general willingness to work with the President to help fight inflation but a feeling that the measures did not go far enough or hit too hard at the middle income Americans.

The President's program was "a move in the right direction," Mansfield said, "but not anywhere near strong enough."

It was doubtful Congress could act on any kind of a tax bill this year, Mansfield said, but he believed that action could be taken on increased benefits for the jobless and housing assistance as Ford requested.

Mansfield said he intended to support Ford's proposal for a 5 per cent tax surcharge but disagreed with the President on who should be affected by the added tax.

Mansfield said he would like to see such a tax surcharge applied to families earning more than $20,000 or $25,000 a year and individuals earning more than $15,000 annually. Ford's tax would be levied on families earning $15,000 or more and individuals earning more than $7,500.

"It's a good start but the bullet has not been bitten," Mansfield said.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., attacked the plan and Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., defended it in a joint televised appearance on the NBC Today show.

"It's far too little in it's impact," said Proxmire, who suggested the President crack down hard on "very, very big price increases" in steel, nonferrous metals, chemicals and oil.

PRESIDENT FORD
As he spoke yesterday

Percy called the Ford proposal "a good beginning," but said he felt the 5 per cent income surtax at the $7,500 individual and $15,000 family income level was too low.

Within hours of Ford's speech that also called for business tax revisions that could mean $700 million a year to industry, Congress was making some movement.

The chairman of the Appropriations Committee, Rep. George Mahon, R-Tex., introduced a resolution imposing a $300 billion ceiling on budget outlays next year, a proposal similar to Ford's request.

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking Committee, said he would support Ford's plan to pump $3 billion in government funds into mortgage lending if it could be directed toward low and moderate income housing, but he said the program still fell far short of the needs.

$5.25 Billion Unemployed Program Said Prepared

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan told Congress today the administration is prepared to spend $5.25 billion on unemployment insurance and a jobs program in the "unlikely event" that unemployment reaches 7 per cent this year.

Brennan testified at a hastily called meeting of Senate and House labor subcommittees on President Ford's job related economic proposals, including tax reform, additional unemployment benefits, public service jobs and a community improvement corps.

Organized labor was highly critical of the proposals — particularly a 5 per cent tax surchage on family incomes over $15,000 and a larger return to business than to low income individuals.

Noting that the September unemployment rate rose to 5.8 per cent, Brennan explained that the President's proposed "National Employment Assistance Act of 1974," terminating Dec. 31, 1975, would come into play only when the national unemployment rate averages 6 per cent or more for three months.

The act proposes unemployment pay for workers who have exhausted all other unemployment compensation or who are not eligible for such pay. It also would create work projects under the Community Improvement Program paying a maximum wage of $7,000 a year.

Brennan said the act would authorize $500 million for community projects when the unemployment level reaches 6 per cent for three months, another $750 million should it reach 6.5 per cent; and an additional $1 billion at 7 per cent.

Brennan estimated that some 2.75 million jobless experienced workers would be eligible for special unemployment assistance.

Butz Reveals Soviets Sought 6 Million Tons Of Wheat, Grain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz has revealed that the Soviets had been negotiating for as much as 6 million tons of wheat and grain before last weekend's sale of 3.4 million tons was postponed under White House pressure.

He also said one of Treasury Secretary William Simon's assignments when he goes to Moscow later this week will be to establish some ground rules on how much grain the Soviet Union can buy from exporters in the United States.

Assistant Secretary of State Thomas Enders, appearing yesterday before the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee, said Simon will "define the amount of grain that can be lifted from the United States this year."

Enders said the State Department was reluctant to make such definitions earlier this year although it probably would have headed off the sale by two giant grain exporters that was thwarted Saturday.

Appearing before the same committee, Butz said a problem arose when the "price-oriented economy" of the U.S. clashed with the "state trading company" of the Soviet Union, "and the two don't mesh."

Butz said when a White House meeting was hurriedly called to stop the contracts from going through, the Agriculture Department had evidence the Soviets were negotiating for as much as 6 million tons of wheat and corn.

He said the White House was called in because the deal had "diplomatic overtones."

The secretary said he was certain the new export reporting policy instituted Monday will guarantee no repeats. It requires large export contracts to receive prior U.S. government approval.

Butz also said the United States has imposed no ban on exports to any country — something he strongly opposes — except where trade is prohibited by law.

Meanwhile, Edward Cook, president of Cook Industries of Memphis, told the committee that he had backed out on a sale of wheat and soybean oil to Iran because he was advised, in effect, "that export controls are in place" regarding Russia, China, and oil exporting nations.

A White House spokesm John W. Hushen, said Coo company was asked "to h the contract in abeyance" not ordered to cancel it as w the case of the Russian gr sale.

Schoonmaker Waterfront Proposal Approval Urged

A group of residents and businessmen from the Napa Street Pier and Boby's Boatyard in Sausalito last night urged the city council to consider approving at least the marine elements of the proposed Schoonmaker Development apart from its other commercial, recreational and residential plans for the city's waterfront.

Spokesman Robert Thompson called for quick council action because the Schoonmaker developer, the O'Meara Chandler Corp., plans to tear down the pier and boatyard within 90 days.

Thompson, an attorney rebuilding a sailboat at the boatyard, presented a petition signed by 21 persons asking council approval for a marina, a new pier, a boatyard capable of handling large fishing vessels and houseboats, tennis courts and parking facilities.

He told councilmen that Schoonmaker representative Steve Siskind has promised to restore and improve the boatyard and pier rather than tear the derelict structures down while new marine facilities are built at the site.

"This isn't something Sausalito doesn't need," said Albert Schultz, owner of a chandlery on the pier. He pointed out that several businesses and dozens of persons, including 15 families living in houseboats, will be displaced if the pier and boatyard are destroyed.

Councilmen, however, took no action on the request after advice from City Atty. Leland H. Jordan and planning director Herb Case that the developer would have to amend his development application to permit separate consideration of the marine aspects by the city planning commission.

Music Irks Belvedere Residents

A spokesman for 35 families along the Belvedere shoreline complained last night about loud rock and roll booming across Richardson Bay from a Sausalito nightspot and urged the city council to do something about it.

Dr. William Rothman, who first complained about loud music from Zack's restaurant before the council in July, said he doubts the sincerity of efforts by the restaurant operators to stem the noise problem. He claimed the music has become progressively louder since then.

Rothman, a physician, called on the council to take decibel readings on the bay side of the waterfront establishment and enforce the $500-a-day fine in the city's noise control ordinance if the restaurant is found in violation.

Gordon Hansen, representing Zack's, denied the music is coming from Zack's but pointed out that baffles and other soundproofing materials are being considered for the nightspot.

Councilmen told city staff to measure the noise level on the bay side of the restaurant to determine if the city's noise control law is being violated.

The Sausalito City Council also:

WOLFBACK RIDGE — Agreed on a 3-1 vote, Sally Stanford dissenting, that density allowed on Wolfback Ridge should be reduced from one dwelling per half-acre to one dwelling per acre. The matter was referred to the planning commission for public hearings.

LANDMARKS — Sent to the planning commission for its review a proposed ordinance for designating historical landmarks in the city.

TRANSIT — Supported on an experimental basis a proposal by the city-county planning council that a new lane on Highway 101 be open only to buses.

DOGS — Rejected a request by the County of Marin to raise dog license fees from $5 to $7.50. Robin Sweeny dissented.

NEW COLLEGE — Set next Wednesday for a joint city council and planning commission meeting with representatives of New College to discuss the possibility of a college building on three acres of surplus federal property on the city's waterfront.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned until 8 p.m. Tuesday in council chambers.

Incumbents Hold Lead

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Poll reported today that incumbent Sen. Alan Cranston, a Democrat, and incumbent Attorney General Evelle Younger, a Republican, both hold commanding leads in their races for reelection.

Pollster Mervin D. Field reported that with five weeks to go in the campaign, Cranston leads Republican H. L. Richardson 59 per cent to 24 per cent with 17 per cent undecided.

Younger leads William Norris 47 per cent to 28 per cent with 25 per cent undecided.

Field said the secret of both incumbents' success appeared to be their ability to attract members of the rival party.

Cranston has the support of 33 per cent of GOP voters with another 21 per cent undecided. And 32 per cent of the Democrats now say they are leaning toward Younger with another 25 per cent undecided.

Frisco To Host Flower Festival

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco will host a three day wine and flower festival next week, according to Mayor Joseph Alioto.

The mayor, standing on a flower-decorated cable car, announced yesterday that the Oct. 18-20 event would include street fairs, music, decorated cable cars and tastings of California wine.

Sausalito School District May Sue County For Lost Revenue

The Sausalito School District may sue the County of Marin for more than $500,000 in property tax revenue it claims has been lost since property in the Marin City Redevelopment Area was taken off the tax rolls.

The district board Monday named Trustees Douglas G. Fancher and Betty Times to a committee charged with investigating the possibility of suing to recover the money, according to Supt. Donald W. Johnson.

When the redevelopment area was formed in the 1950s, county supervisors promised to reimburse the school district for lost property taxes for education of Marin City children occupying tax exempt housing, Johnson said.

The last substantial payment, $43,000, was made in 1968. Since then, according to the superintendent, the amount of money paid by the county to the school district has been negligible.

Last year, Johnson said, the county paid only $1,714 for the education of more than 170 Marin City children. Sausalito residents, whose children represent about 40 per cent of district enrollment, have been forced to shoulder 91 per cent of the property tax burden.

According to district figures, $506,629 in property tax money has been lost to the district since 1961.

Many Are Now Borrowing On Their Life Insurance

By DAVID T. COOK
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — With bank and finance company charges at double-digit figures, an increasing number of people are using the cash value of their permanent life insurance policies as a source of low-cost loans.

While term insurance benefits flow only after the insured's passing, permanent life insurance provides policyholders the right to borrow at a fixed low interest rate against the accumulating cash value of their policy.

Premiums on permanent life policies are substantially higher than those on term insurance.

Borrowing on life insurance can produce substantial savings in interest costs. For example, a New York resident who needs an unsecured personal loan could pay up to 12.15 per cent interest at a bank and more at a finance company. The state-regulated rate on life insurance loans in New York: 5 per cent.

As a result of comparable savings in other states, gross loans on life insurance policies rose 6.4 per cent from June to July, reaching their highest monthly level this year and the third largest level on record, the American Life Insurance Association reports.

Total loans outstanding at the end of June were $21.321 billion, up 14 per cent over last year, reports the Institute of Life Insurance, another industry association.

Demand for life insurance loans was even higher than the industry average at some of the insurance firms contracted by the Monitor. At the Hartford Insurance Company life insurance borrowing is up 24 per cent over last year, a spokesman said.

The life insurance industry is not providing bargain insurance rates voluntarily but because of contractual commitments and state regulation.

For example, some of Hartford Insurance Company's older policies stipulate a 4.8 per cent interest rate on life insurance loans. Policies the firm writes today specify a 6 per cent interest rate.

The maximum interest rate that can be written into a life insurance policy is regulated in most states by an insurance commissioner. The most common state-regulated interest rate is 6 per cent, although some states, including New York, require lower rates.

Only North Dakota has adopted a so-called model law regulating life insurance loan interest rates. The law drafted by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) allows firms to raise the maximum interest rate charged on loans by 1 per cent a year during periods of rising interest rates.

Unless you want to draw off one-half of an insurance company's assets, policy loan rates will have to keep up with prevailing rates, asserts on NAIC official.

Because life insurance loans are regarded as a "contractual right," no firms have yet taken formal steps to restrict loans, an Institute of Life Insurance official says.

But at least one major insurer admits to "pointing out" to policy holders who want loans that they are "depleting an asset, and if something happens they are not going to have as much insurance as they thought."

This free advice is aimed not only at protecting the consumer but also the insurance firm's investment portfolio. When loan demand is up, firms have to keep a substantial amount available for payout. The higher interest investment alternatives for these funds are thus curtailed.

The high loan trend is causing concern in the insurance industry. The high demand "can't help but . . . impair the investment performance of the industry," Arthur C. Cragoe, senior vice-president of Franklin Life Insurance Co., said in a recent speech.

Although insurance companies are concerned about the rapidly rising demand for life insurance loans, they are not expected to stop writing policies with loan possibilities.

Insurance officials admit that the loan offer is a major selling point for permanent life insurance policies.

Since permanent policy sales have fallen substantially behind those of lower-cost term insurance, life insurance loans will likely remain available for the foreseeable future.

Teachers' Pay Hiked 8 Per Cent

An 8 per cent across-the-board raise for the approximately 125 teachers who work under the Marin County superintendent of schools office was approved last night by the Marin County Board of Education.

The settlement ended negotiations which began last January, according to Robert E. Spain, assistant superintendent. The teachers had asked a wage increase and benefits package which came to about a 15-per cent increase, Spain said.

The county schools office operates schools for handicapped youngsters, juvenile hall school, San Quentin schools and other specialized learning centers.

In other action, the board approved pay raises for substitute teachers in the children's centers and preschool program of $3 a day, from $27 to $30.

Woman Hurt In Car Crash

A Guerneville woman suffered broken ribs and cuts and bruises yesterday when her auto and another collided on Highway 101 and both vehicles rolled over.

The California Highway Patrol said Mrs. Koenig's auto and a car driven by Alanna Harrington, 18, of 61 Knoll Road, Mill Valley, were both northbound at 10:10 a.m. when they collided broadside. Miss Harrington was taken to Marin General Hospital for treatment of minor injuries and released.

Cities To Get In-Lieu Funds

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Marin County will receive $21,052 and Sonoma County $22,019 in September apportionments of in-lieu motor vehicle license fees, according to the state controller's office.

Cities' shares are:

Belvedere, $329; Corte Madera, $1,094; Cotati, $358; Fairfax, $970; Larkspur, $1,566; Mill Valley, $1,677; Novato, $4,469; Petaluma, $3,944; Rohnert Park, $1,456; Ross, $347; San Anselmo, $1,665; San Rafael, $5,656; Sausalito, $781; Tiburon, $860.

Group Advocates Ecology Pricing

By JOHN HERITAGE
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

One U.S. environmental group strongly believes that environmental goals can make as much sense economically as they do ecologically. Now, the organization has launched a nationwide effort that may prove it.

The Environment Defense Fund (EDF) is focusing its economy-ecology reform efforts on the pricing policies of the electric utilities. With this industry's high fuel consumption and pollution, it is a serious source of environmental concern. And with higher costs for fuel and construction, the utilities also have economic troubles.

The gist of the EDF's argument is that traditional electricity rates not only have encouraged wasteful energy use, but now are saddling utilities with unmanageable costs. The environmental group contends that it is possible to devise changes in the rates structure which would benefit environmentalists and industry alike, a case it is pressing before regulatory commissions in four states.

Until a few years ago, electric power policies seemed beyond any such questioning. Greater energy demand seemed a boon for everyone. Larger power plants could be built, achieving "economies of scale." And the savings could be passed on to the consumer.

This growth-oriented policy has always been strongly supported by electricity pricing methods. Typically, the large user is charged much less per kilowatt-hour than the small one. The utilities felt that the difference is justified because greater electricity demand can be met at lower unit costs. The EDF argues that the quantity-discount method has helped promote extravagant energy use.

But since the last decade, the electric power industry's fortunes have been dramatically reversed. (And even the industry acknowledges the need for a new look at rate policies.) Efficiency for fossil-fuel plants has hit a plateau, and nuclear plants have technical problems. Oil, coal and building prices have soared. And massive utility expansion plans are conflicting with long-neglected environmental values.

"Now, it no longer makes sense to have electric rates or advertising that promote growth," says Ernest Habicht Jr., the EDF's energy director. "Not even the utilities benefit."

The remedy, the EDF contends, is to set rates that actually discourage unwise growth in electricity demand. Extra charges would be levied for electricity used during "peak" hours, when the strain is greatest on utility system capacity. Price breaks for big users would be eliminated — a reform already being adopted in some states.

The EDF argues that pricing for slower growth would buy time for the electric power industry, easing the need for expensive new plants and giving research a chance to develop new cost-saving technologies. It also would encourage energy-conservative measures such as better-insulated homes, more efficient industrial processes, and less air-conditioner use. And it would soften environmental impact, by slowing the growth in new facilities and fuel needs.

The EDF's campaign got a boost in August when the Wisconsin Public Service Commission ordered a utility to explore "peak hour" pricing. With such precedents, the EDF hopes to bring rate policy reviews and adjustments in every state. Its success could dispel the widespread notion that good ecology is bad economics.

Revised Figures In Mill Valley Rate

This year's property tax rate in the Mill Valley School District is $3.342 per $100 assessed valuation, about 27 cents less than last year. If the district's ballot Measure J passes in November, the rate would jump to $3.48 in 1975-76. But the district estimates that it would drop to $3.23 in 1976-77 and to $2.98 in 1977-78.

Yesterday's Independent-Journal story on the district election gave inaccurate tax figures which were slightly lower than those listed above. Yesterday's figures were furnished in a citizens committee report on the election. The revised figures above come from district business manager Carroll D. Killingsworth.

Proposed Sign Plan 'Startles'

Members of the Larkspur Chamber of Commerce yesterday "were amazed to learn that a new proposed sign ordinance would, in essence, require a change in 99 per cent of all business signs in Larkspur," according to Sue Schaefer, secretary.

Mrs. Schaefer said a chamber committee reviewed the proposed ordinance. Members also "were startled to find that the present ordinance was not even considered or used as a guideline in rewriting a new proposed sign ordinance," Mrs. Schaefer said.

The 30 members present voted unanimously to form a 15-member committee, headed by Neil R. Brixon, former mayor and city councilman, to draw up a sign ordinance acceptable to Larkspur merchants and present this proposal to the city council.

Larkspur City Mgr. Harlan Barry told the chamber members that 25 copies of the proposed sign ordinance will be available today at the Larkspur City Hall for interested merchants.

April 15 to submit an application for the funds and must set up a citizens' committee to help develop a plan for their use.

Funding under the housing section of the act is still up in the air and will be based on a "housing assistance plan," to be developed by the citizens' committee as part of its overall plan on use of community development funds.

On a related matter, the assistant county administrator reported that the county may be in line for funding under the federal Public Works and Economic Development Act.

He said the matching fund program, requiring the county to put an amount equal to the federal grant, is aimed at promoting economic growth and job opportunities.

He could give no estimate on the amount Marin might receive, though he said it would not be large since only $5.3 million is available to "urban counties" in the western states.

To qualify requires preparation of an "overall economic development plan" for upgrading the county's economy, he said.

2 Men Survive Lightning Bolts

MOUNTAIN VIEW (UPI) — Lightning struck twice during a rare thunderstorm on the San Francisco Peninsula, and both men it hit lived to tell about it.

"I really thought I had died. It was like a truck ran over me. It went right through me," Arthur Sanchez, 22, said from his hospital bed yesterday.

Sanchez, a roofer, was tarring the roof on an apartment house in Sunnyvale when the thunderstorm struck Monday.

Three miles away and 32 minutes later, Lester Tikvica, 51, a fruit grower in Sunnyvale, was hitching a four-foot steel rod to his tractor when lightning struck him.

When Tikvica woke up three hours later in a hospital bed, he said, "I felt like I'd been in a car wreck."

Strawberry Plans Annual Meeting

The Strawberry Area Community Council will hold its annual meeting at 8 p.m. today at the Strawberry Recreation Center.

County Supervisor Michael Wornum will attend to answer questions. Topics will include Strawberry open space, flood control and auto traffic.

FORD

dent, said he would defer any comment on his pardon of Nixon until his scheduled Oct. 17 appearance before a House Judiciary subcommittee.

Ford's testimony originally scheduled for Thursday was postponed until after a Watergate cover-up jury is impaneled and sequestered.

In his opening remarks before taking questions from the press, Ford announced he will meet Mexico's chief of state, Luis Echeverria Alvarez, in the Arizona border town of Nogales Oct. 21 for a review of bilateral relations.

Ford said he and Echeverria will meet at both sides of the border and "discuss a wide range of subjects ... to seek to strengthen our traditionally good relations."

This will be the 22nd border meeting between U.S. and Mexican presidents since William Howard Taft met Porforio Diaz in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, in 1907.

Questioning brought out a disagreement between Ford and his Secretary of the Treasury, William E. Simon. The secretary told the House Ways and Means Committee today that he opposes ending the oil depletion allowance, which allows oil companies to reduce their taxes often to zero.

But Ford, pressed on his endorsement of a bill ending the allowance, said "the answer is yes" when asked whether he favors ending the allowance, despite Simon's stand.

Ford said he had checked carefully into Nelson A. Rockefeller's $50,000 gift to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and found no "impropriety."

"I've been assured that every tax has been paid and that all legal problems were satisfied," Ford said.

Ford said he had looked briefly at the two other major gifts Rockefeller gave former aides and said he "assumed that the law had been adhered to and there was no impropriety."

The news conference apparently was timed partly to give him a quick chance to elaborate on economic proposals he laid out Tuesday. The President also chose to experiment with a new press conference format, offering reporters a chance to follow up on questions if they want.

United Way At 7.8% Of Its Goal

Campaign leaders said Monday the sum represents 7.8 per cent of the $100,000 goal set this year for the cities of Petaluma, Rohnert Park and Cotati.

The entire Northbay campaign, which includes Sonoma and Mendocino counties, has raised $55,834 to date, or 8.7 per cent of the $639,581 goal.

President Arthur Lafranchi of Petaluma said the total collected so far lags behind the percentage in hand this time last year, when 10.3 per cent of the hoped-for amount had been collected.

The annual drive supports 37 community service organizations in the two counties.

Drought, Rain In Hong Kong

HONG KONG (UPI) — Hong Kong's water department crews, drenched to the skin by a driving rain, today turned off water mains throughout the British Crown Colony, leaving its 4.2 million residents with only 10 hours of water a day.

The late monsoon rains began about mid-morning but government officials said it probably was too late in the season for enough rain to fall to fill Hong Kong's half-empty reservoirs.

The worst drought in eight years forced the government to begin rationing water Sept. 25.

Mrs. Rossi Succumbs At Age 62

Edna Maree Rossi, a resident of San Rafael for more than 60 years, died yesterday at a local hospital after a short illness. She was 62.

A native of Petaluma, Mrs. Rossi came to San Rafael as a baby and lived there all her life.

She taught for more than 25 years in Sonoma and San Rafael schools, retiring seven years ago.

Mrs. Rossi was also active in church work at St. Raphael's Church.

She was married to Charles Rossi from 1949 until his death in 1960.

She is survived by her brother, Harold Solari of San Rafael.

A Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated Friday at 10 a.m. at St. Raphael's Church.

Rosary will be recited tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Keaton's Mortuary.

Burial will be at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

MARGARET RAVANI

Funeral for Margaret Ravani of Fairfax will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow at Star of the Sea Church in San Francisco.

Mrs. Ravani, 65, died Sunday at her home after an extended illness.

Mrs. Ravani was born in San Francisco and was graduated from Lowell High School. She came to Marin County as a young woman and after her marriage to the late Edmund Ravani, a jeweler, made her home in Fairfax for some 40 years.

She is survived by three brothers, B. Gilmore Dowd of San Francisco, J. Alfred Dowd of Sausalito, William Gerald Dowd of Saratoga, and a sister, Bernadette C. Corsiglia of South San Francisco. She was also the sister of the late Juanita E. Flaherty.

Rosary will be at 8 p.m. today at McAvoy, O'Hara Mortuary in San Francisco. Burial will be at Golden Gate National Cemetery in Daly City.

MAUREEN SCHERTZER

Maureen Schertzer, a Petaluma homemaker, died yesterday in a Santa Rosa hospital after a long illness. She was 34.

She was a native of Scotland and reared and educated in South Africa and Canada.

Mrs. Schertzer lived in Southern Sonoma the last two years, moving there after living in San Francisco. The family home is at 555 Fair Avenue.

She was a member of the Petaluma Newcomers Club, the Hillcrest Hospital Ladies Auxiliary and Elim Lutheran Church of Petaluma.

She is survived by her husband, Berndt Schertzer; three sons, Stephen, Eric and David Schertzer, all of Petaluma; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Abbott of San Francisco; and a sister, Margaret Barrett of Inverness.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. Friday at the Sorensen Funeral Home, with the Rev. Thorval Evenson officiating. Inurnment will be private at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

ROSA KOPF

Funeral was today for Rosa Kopf of Penngrove, a longtime Southern Sonoma resident who died in a San Francisco hospital Sunday after a short illness. She was 67.

Mrs. Kopf was a native of Switzerland who came to the United States 45 years ago. For many years she and her late husband, Hans, operated a poultry ranch near Petaluma. During most of the last 14 years Mrs. Kopf was a nurse's aide at Petaluma General Hospital. Her home was at 2295 Goodwin Avenue.

She is survived by three daughters, Eridoline Hamilton and Marilyn Blankenship, both of Petaluma, and Susan Kopf of Fresno; a son, Gary Hans Kopf of Rohnert Park, nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Cypress Hill Memorial Park, Petaluma.

ANNA SCHWINDT

Private Mass of the Christian Burial for Anna Schwindt of Novato was held today in Novato.

Mrs. Schwindt died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness. She was 90.

She had lived in Novato for the past seven years. The family home is at 1758 Indian Valley Road. She was a native of Council Bluffs, Iowa.

She was a retired seamstress.

She is survived by a son, Ad N. Schwindt of Novato, and a daughter, Henriette (Jo) Binswanger of Reno, five grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

JOSEPH SCHLESINGER

Private funeral will be held tomorrow in San Francisco for Joseph D. Schlesinger, a resident of San Rafael for the past 24 years.

Schlesinger, who was 91, died Monday at a local convalescent hospital.

He was born in England but came to California as a young child.

He worked as a maintenance man in a San Francisco apartment building before retiring.

Many Are Now Borrowing On Their Life Insurance

By DAVID T. COOK
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — With bank and finance company charges at double-digit figures, an increasing number of people are using the cash value of their permanent life insurance policies as a source of low-cost loans.

While term insurance benefits flow only after the insured's passing, permanent life insurance provides policyholders the right to borrow at a fixed low interest rate against the accumulating cash value of their policy.

Premiums on permanent life policies are substantially higher than those on term insurance.

Borrowing on life insurance can produce substantial savings in interest costs. For example, a New York resident who needs an unsecured personal loan could pay up to 12.15 per cent interest at a bank and more at a finance company. The state-regulated rate on life insurance loans in New York: 5 per cent.

As a result of comparable savings in other states, gross loans on life insurance policies rose 6.4 per cent from June to July, reaching their highest monthly level this year and the third largest level on record, the American Life Insurance Association reports.

Total loans outstanding at the end of June were $21.321 billion, up 14 per cent over last year, reports the Institute of Life Insurance, another industry association.

Demand for life insurance loans was even higher than the industry average at some of the insurance firms contracted by the Monitor. At the Hartford Insurance Company life insurance borrowing is up 24 per cent over last year, a spokesman said.

The life insurance industry is not providing bargain insurance rates voluntarily but because of contractual commitments and state regulation.

For example, some of Hartford Insurance Company's older policies stipulate a 4.8 per cent interest rate on life insurance loans. Policies the firm writes today specify a 6 per cent interest rate.

The maximum interest rate that can be written into a life insurance policy is regulated in most states by an insurance commissioner. The most common state-regulated interest rate is 6 per cent, although some states, including New York, require lower rates.

Only North Dakota has adopted a so-called model law regulating life insurance loan interest rates. The law drafted by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) allows firms to raise the maximum interest rate charged on loans by 1 per cent a year during periods of rising interest rates.

Unless you want to draw off one-half of an insurance company's assets, policy loan rates will have to keep up with prevailing rates, asserts on NAIC official.

Because life insurance loans are regarded as a "contractual right," no firms have yet taken formal steps to restrict loans, an Institute of Life Insurance official says.

But at least one major insurer admits to "pointing out" to policy holders who want loans that they are "depleting an asset, and if something happens they are not going to have as much insurance as they thought."

This free advice is aimed not only at protecting the consumer but also the insurance firm's investment portfolio. When loan demand is up, firms have to keep a substantial amount available for payout. The higher interest investment alternatives for these funds are thus curtailed.

The high loan trend is causing concern in the insurance industry. The high demand "can't help but . . . impair the investment performance of the industry," Arthur C. Cragoe, senior vice-president of Franklin Life Insurance Co., said in a recent speech.

Although insurance companies are concerned about the rapidly rising demand for life insurance loans, they are not expected to stop writing policies with loan possibilities.

Insurance officials admit that the loan offer is a major selling point for permanent life insurance policies.

Since permanent policy sales have fallen substantially behind those of lower-cost term insurance, life insurance loans will likely remain available for the foreseeable future.

Teachers' Pay Hiked 8 Per Cent

An 8 per cent across-the-board raise for the approximately 125 teachers who work under the Marin County superintendent of schools office was approved last night by the Marin County Board of Education.

The settlement ended negotiations which began last January, according to Robert E. Spain, assistant superintendent. The teachers had asked a wage increase and benefits package which came to about a 15-per cent increase, Spain said.

The county schools office operates schools for handicapped youngsters, juvenile hall school, San Quentin schools and other specialized learning centers.

In other action, the board approved pay raises for substitute teachers in the children's centers and preschool program of $3 a day, from $27 to $30.

Woman Hurt In Car Crash

A Guerneville woman suffered broken ribs and cuts and bruises yesterday when her auto and another collided on Highway 101 and both vehicles rolled over.

The California Highway Patrol said Mrs. Koenig's auto and a car driven by Alanna Harrington, 18, of 61 Knoll Road, Mill Valley, were both northbound at 10:10 a.m. when they collided broadside. Miss Harrington was taken to Marin General Hospital for treatment of minor injuries and released.

Cities To Get In-Lieu Funds

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Marin County will receive $21,052 and Sonoma County $22,019 in September apportionments of in-lieu motor vehicle license fees, according to the state controller's office.

Cities' shares are:

Belvedere, $329; Corte Madera, $1,094; Cotati, $358; Fairfax, $970; Larkspur, $1,566; Mill Valley, $1,677; Novato, $4,469; Petaluma, $3,944; Rohnert Park, $1,456; Ross, $347; San Anselmo, $1,665; San Rafael, $5,656; Sausalito, $781; Tiburon, $860.

Group Advocates Ecology Pricing

By JOHN HERITAGE
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

One U.S. environmental group strongly believes that environmental goals can make as much sense economically as they do ecologically. Now, the organization has launched a nationwide effort that may prove it.

The Environment Defense Fund (EDF) is focusing its economy-ecology reform efforts on the pricing policies of the electric utilities. With this industry's high fuel consumption and pollution, it is a serious source of environmental concern. And with higher costs for fuel and construction, the utilities also have economic troubles.

The gist of the EDF's argument is that traditional electricity rates not only have encouraged wasteful energy use, but now are saddling utilities with unmanageable costs. The environmental group contends that it is possible to devise changes in the rates structure which would benefit environmentalists and industry alike, a case it is pressing before regulatory commissions in four states.

Until a few years ago, electric power policies seemed beyond any such questioning. Greater energy demand seemed a boon for everyone. Larger power plants could be built, achieving "economies of scale." And the savings could be passed on to the consumer.

This growth-oriented policy has always been strongly supported by electricity pricing methods. Typically, the large user is charged much less per kilowatt-hour than the small one. The utilities felt that the difference is justified because greater electricity demand can be met at lower unit costs. The EDF argues that the quantity-discount method has helped promote extravagant energy use.

But since the last decade, the electric power industry's fortunes have been dramatically reversed. (And even the industry acknowledges the need for a new look at rate policies.) Efficiency for fossil-fuel plants has hit a plateau, and nuclear plants have technical problems. Oil, coal and building prices have soared. And massive utility expansion plans are conflicting with long-neglected environmental values.

"Now, it no longer makes sense to have electric rates or advertising that promote growth," says Ernest Habicht Jr., the EDF's energy director. "Not even the utilities benefit."

The remedy, the EDF contends, is to set rates that actually discourage unwise growth in electricity demand. Extra charges would be levied for electricity used during "peak" hours, when the strain is greatest on utility system capacity. Price breaks for big users would be eliminated — a reform already being adopted in some states.

The EDF argues that pricing for slower growth would buy time for the electric power industry, easing the need for expensive new plants and giving research a chance to develop new cost-saving technologies. It also would encourage energy-conservative measures such as better-insulated homes, more efficient industrial processes, and less air-conditioner use. And it would soften environmental impact, by slowing the growth in new facilities and fuel needs.

The EDF's campaign got a boost in August when the Wisconsin Public Service Commission ordered a utility to explore "peak hour" pricing. With such precedents, the EDF hopes to bring rate policy reviews and adjustments in every state. Its success could dispel the widespread notion that good ecology is bad economics.

Revised Figures In Mill Valley Rate

This year's property tax rate in the Mill Valley School District is $3.342 per $100 assessed valuation, about 27 cents less than last year. If the district's ballot Measure J passes in November, the rate would jump to $3.48 in 1975-76. But the district estimates that it would drop to $3.23 in 1976-77 and to $2.98 in 1977-78.

Yesterday's Independent-Journal story on the district election gave inaccurate tax figures which were slightly lower than those listed above. Yesterday's figures were furnished in a citizens committee report on the election. The revised figures above come from district business manager Carroll D. Killingsworth.

Proposed Sign Plan 'Startles'

Members of the Larkspur Chamber of Commerce yesterday "were amazed to learn that a new proposed sign ordinance would, in essence, require a change in 99 per cent of all business signs in Larkspur," according to Sue Schaefer, secretary.

Mrs. Schaefer said a chamber committee reviewed the proposed ordinance. Members also "were startled to find that the present ordinance was not even considered or used as a guideline in rewriting a new proposed sign ordinance," Mrs. Schaefer said.

The 30 members present voted unanimously to form a 15-member committee, headed by Neil R. Brixon, former mayor and city councilman, to draw up a sign ordinance acceptable to Larkspur merchants and present this proposal to the city council.

Larkspur City Mgr. Harlan Barry told the chamber members that 25 copies of the proposed sign ordinance will be available today at the Larkspur City Hall for interested merchants.

April 15 to submit an application for the funds and must set up a citizens' committee to help develop a plan for their use.

Funding under the housing section of the act is still up in the air and will be based on a "housing assistance plan," to be developed by the citizens' committee as part of its overall plan on use of community development funds.

On a related matter, the assistant county administrator reported that the county may be in line for funding under the federal Public Works and Economic Development Act.

He said the matching fund program, requiring the county to put an amount equal to the federal grant, is aimed at promoting economic growth and job opportunities.

He could give no estimate on the amount Marin might receive, though he said it would not be large since only $5.3 million is available to "urban counties" in the western states.

To qualify requires preparation of an "overall economic development plan" for upgrading the county's economy, he said.

2 Men Survive Lightning Bolts

MOUNTAIN VIEW (UPI) — Lightning struck twice during a rare thunderstorm on the San Francisco Peninsula, and both men it hit lived to tell about it.

"I really thought I had died. It was like a truck ran over me. It went right through me," Arthur Sanchez, 22, said from his hospital bed yesterday.

Sanchez, a roofer, was tarring the roof on an apartment house in Sunnyvale when the thunderstorm struck Monday.

Three miles away and 32 minutes later, Lester Tikvica, 51, a fruit grower in Sunnyvale, was hitching a four-foot steel rod to his tractor when lightning struck him.

When Tikvica woke up three hours later in a hospital bed, he said, "I felt like I'd been in a car wreck."

dent, said he would defer any comment on his pardon of Nixon until his scheduled Oct. 17 appearance before a House Judiciary subcommittee.

Ford's testimony originally scheduled for Thursday was postponed until after a Watergate cover-up jury is impaneled and sequestered.

In his opening remarks before taking questions from the press, Ford announced he will meet Mexico's chief of state, Luis Echeverria Alvarez, in the Arizona border town of Nogales Oct. 21 for a review of bilateral relations.

Ford said he and Echeverria will meet at both sides of the border and "discuss a wide range of subjects ... to seek to strengthen our traditionally good relations."

This will be the 22nd border meeting between U.S. and Mexican presidents since William Howard Taft met Porforio Diaz in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, in 1907.

Questioning brought out a disagreement between Ford and his Secretary of the Treasury, William E. Simon. The secretary told the House Ways and Means Committee today that he opposes ending the oil depletion allowance, which allows oil companies to reduce their taxes often to zero.

But Ford, pressed on his endorsement of a bill ending the allowance, said "the answer is yes" when asked whether he favors ending the allowance, despite Simon's stand.

Ford said he had checked carefully into Nelson A. Rockefeller's $50,000 gift to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and found no "impropriety."

"I've been assured that every tax has been paid and that all legal problems were satisfied," Ford said.

Ford said he had looked briefly at the two other major gifts Rockefeller gave former aides and said he "assumed that the law had been adhered to and there was no impropriety."

The news conference apparently was timed partly to give him a quick chance to elaborate on economic proposals he laid out Tuesday. The President also chose to experiment with a new press conference format, offering reporters a chance to follow up on questions if they want.

United Way At 7.8% Of Its Goal

Campaign leaders said Monday the sum represents 7.8 per cent of the $100,000 goal set this year for the cities of Petaluma, Rohnert Park and Cotati.

The entire Northbay campaign, which includes Sonoma and Mendocino counties, has raised $55,834 to date, or 8.7 per cent of the $639,581 goal.

President Arthur Lafranchi of Petaluma said the total collected so far lags behind the percentage in hand this time last year, when 10.3 per cent of the hoped-for amount had been collected.

The annual drive supports 37 community service organizations in the two counties.

Drought, Rain In Hong Kong

HONG KONG (UPI) — Hong Kong's water department crews, drenched to the skin by a driving rain, today turned off water mains throughout the British Crown Colony, leaving its 4.2 million residents with only 10 hours of water a day.

The late monsoon rains began about mid-morning but government officials said it probably was too late in the season for enough rain to fall to fill Hong Kong's half-empty reservoirs.

The worst drought in eight years forced the government to begin rationing water Sept. 25.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Rossi Succumbs At Age 62

Edna Maree Rossi, a resident of San Rafael for more than 60 years, died yesterday at a local hospital after a short illness. She was 62.

A native of Petaluma, Mrs. Rossi came to San Rafael as a baby and lived there all her life.

She taught for more than 25 years in Sonoma and San Rafael schools, retiring seven years ago.

Mrs. Rossi was also active in church work at St. Raphael's Church.

She was married to Charles Rossi from 1949 until his death in 1960.

She is survived by her brother, Harold Solari of San Rafael.

A Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated Friday at 10 a.m. at St. Raphael's Church.

Rosary will be recited tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Keaton's Mortuary.

Burial will be at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

MARGARET RAVANI

Funeral for Margaret Ravani of Fairfax will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow at Star of the Sea Church in San Francisco.

Mrs. Ravani, 65, died Sunday at her home after an extended illness.

Mrs. Ravani was born in San Francisco and was graduated from Lowell High School. She came to Marin County as a young woman and after her marriage to the late Edmund Ravani, a jeweler, made her home in Fairfax for some 40 years.

She is survived by three brothers, B. Gilmore Dowd of San Francisco, J. Alfred Dowd of Sausalito, William Gerald Dowd of Saratoga, and a sister, Bernadette C. Corsiglia of South San Francisco. She was also the sister of the late Juanita E. Flaherty.

Rosary will be at 8 p.m. today at McAvoy, O'Hara Mortuary in San Francisco. Burial will be at Golden Gate National Cemetery in Daly City.

MAUREEN SCHERTZER

She was a native of Scotland and reared and educated in South Africa and Canada.

Mrs. Schertzer lived in Southern Sonoma the last two years, moving there after living in San Francisco. The family home is at 555 Fair Avenue.

She was a member of the Petaluma Newcomers Club, the Hillcrest Hospital Ladies Auxiliary and Elim Lutheran Church of Petaluma.

She is survived by her husband, Berndt Schertzer; three sons, Stephen, Eric and David Schertzer, all of Petaluma; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Abbott of San Francisco; and a sister, Margaret Barrett of Inverness.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. Friday at the Sorensen Funeral Home, with the Rev. Thorval Evenson officiating. Inurnment will be private at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

Highway Taxes Apportioned

SACRAMENTO — Marin County will receive $156,958 and Sonoma County $237,821 in September apportionments of state highway users taxes, the state controller's office has announced.

Cities shares are:

Belvedere, $2,420; Corte Madera, $7,120; Cotati, $2,641; Fairfax, $6,355; Larkspur, $10,020; Mill Valley, $10,700; Novato, $27,843; Petaluma, $25,073; Rohnert Park, $9,508; Ross, $2,531; San Anselmo, $10,623; San Rafael, $35,129; Sausalito, $5,196; Tiburon, $5,686.

Lena Cancels Show In Boston

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Singer Lena Horne yesterday canceled an Oct. 23-26 concert series at the Symphony Hall in Boston to protest the racial strife there brought on by court-ordered school integration.

"Stoning of black children and the beating of black citizens forces me to cancel my appearance," Miss Horne said.

ROSA KOPF

Funeral was today for Rosa Kopf of Penngrove, a longtime Southern Sonoma resident who died in a San Francisco hospital Sunday after a short illness. She was 67.

Mrs. Kopf was a native of Switzerland who came to the United States 45 years ago. For many years she and her late husband, Hans, operated a poultry ranch near Petaluma. During most of the last 14 years Mrs. Kopf was a nurse's aide at Petaluma General Hospital. Her home was at 2295 Goodwin Avenue.

She is survived by three daughters, Eridoline Hamilton and Marilyn Blankenship, both of Petaluma, and Susan Kopf of Fresno; a son, Gary Hans Kopf of Rohnert Park, nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Cypress Hill Memorial Park, Petaluma.

ANNA SCHWINDT

Private Mass of the Christian Burial for Anna Schwindt of Novato was held today in Novato.

Mrs. Schwindt died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness. She was 90.

She had lived in Novato for the past seven years. The family home is at 1758 Indian Valley Road. She was a native of Council Bluffs, Iowa.

She was a retired seamstress.

She is survived by a son, Ad N. Schwindt of Novato, and a daughter, Henriette (Jo) Binswanger of Reno, five grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

JOSEPH SCHLESINGER

Private funeral will be held tomorrow in San Francisco for Joseph D. Schlesinger, a resident of San Rafael for the past 24 years.

Schlesinger, who was 91, died Monday at a local convalescent hospital.

He was born in England but came to California as a young child.

He worked as a maintenance man in a San Francisco apartment building before retiring.

UPPER INCOME HOUSING — Gov. Ronald Reagan and his wife, Nancy, use gold-painted shovels to break ground for the new governor's mansion. The $1.29 million structure will be built on a knoll overlooking the scenic American River in Carmichael, a suburb six miles east of the state capital at Sacramento. (UPI Telephoto)

Governor's Home Ground Broken

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Using gold painted shovels, Gov. Ronald Reagan and his wife, Nancy, have broken ground for the $1.29 million governor's mansion on a small hill overlooking the scenic American River.

"Well honey, we did it," said a smiling Mrs. Reagan after a brief and informal ceremony yesterday at the mansion site in suburban Carmichael about six miles east of the capital city.

Reagan dug two extra heaps of dirt, saying he wanted to "start it well enough so no one will dare stop."

The residence has long been sought by Reagan as a home for future governors. His enthusiasm was not diminished by the fact he would never live in the one-story sprawling structure.

"We'll just let someone else have that experience," said Reagan, who is leaving office in January.

"I never thought that it would come about," added Mrs. Reagan. "Even though we'll never live there, that was never the main point."

Edmund G. Brown Jr., Democratic candidate for governor, and a bachelor, has called the mansion an "impractical white elephant." He indicated he would not live there, if elected.

His Republican opponent, Houston Flournoy, a father of three, said it would be a good place to rear children.

Bud O. Stevenson, a Redwood City contractor, was awarded the building job last week after the state Supreme Court rejected an appeal by project opponents attempting to block construction.

Reagan said the need for the house on the 11-acre site, donated by Reagan supporters, was dictated by the requirement for space when governors raise children.

Within the adobe-coated brick walls and tilt roof of the new mansion will be six bedrooms, a courtyard, guest rooms, formal and family dining rooms, two rooms for employes and a study. The living area will total 12,000 square feet, about five times the average three-bedroom house.

The residence is tentatively scheduled for completion by next August.

The legislature appropriated $1.45 million for the project to include construction, design and environmental impact study costs.

A Dog Show Planned At Fairgrounds

Welsh corgis, doberman pinschers, spaniels, great danes, Alaskan malamutes, Siberian huskies, puliks, pomeranians, poodles and bullmastiffs are only a few of the breeds which will appear at the fourth annual Expo K-9 on Oct. 27 at the Marin County Fairgrounds.

The event, sponsored by the Blue Ribbon Dog Breeders, will begin at 9 a.m. with judging of various breeds.

Demonstrations of canine utility and intelligence, including rescue work, cadence drill teams, agility performances, retrieving and sledding are planned.

Dog cart rides for children also will be available.

In the Veterans Memorial Building, there will be booths staffed by commercial firms, breed clubs and kennel clubs.

Last year, some 10,000 spectators attended Expo K-9, according to Phyllis Greer of Novato, chairman.

Rohnert Park Council Directs McDonald's To Reduce Lighting

The McDonald's hamburger outlet planned for Rohnert Park will be built with a little less neon lighting than usual because of the intervention of the city council.

Although approval of architectural plans for new developments is usually left to the planning commission, the McDonald's case came before the council Monday because Councilman David L. Eck felt that the planning body approved the design without first turning a critical eye upon it.

At Eck's behest, the council directed the developer to delete a series of yellow neon bars which were to have glowed from the building's roof.

According to City Clerk Kathryn P. Logue, the council agreed that the lights were esthetically unpleasing and that they would consume electricity while serving no useful purpose. The hamburger outlet is to be built at Commerce Boulevard and Hunter Drive.

The Rohnert Park City Council Also:

SUIT — Was informed by City Atty. John Flitner that the Santa Rosa Urban Renewal Agency's lawsuit seeking to prevent development of a regional shopping center north of the city will be heard Tuesday before Sonoma Superior Court Judge Joseph P. Murphy Jr.

ALLEY — Agreed to share the city golf course parking lot and billboard with the 24 lane bowling alley being planned next door by James Decker of Santa Rosa, and set a public hearing for Oct. 29 on Decker's site plan.

SUBDIVISION — Approved a final map for Country Club Terrace condominium subdivision, a 54-unit development on Country Club Drive opposite the Valley Village mobile home park. Because the city sewage plant is operating near capacity and because the Santa Rosa plant which is to augment the city's capacity for treatment won't be completed for two years, the council told the developer the map approval carried no guarantee that sewage treatment would be available when the project is completed.

APPOINTMENT — Named Chet Crowley of 8685 Laurelwood Drive to the cultural arts commission for a four year term.

SCHOOLS — Endorsed the Petaluma High School District's Nov. 5 ballot request for permission to increase spending per pupil by $200.

MEETING — Set the next regular council meeting for 7 p.m. Oct. 29 instead of Oct. 21, when several members will attend the League of California Cities convention in Los Angeles.

Legion Will Tackle Loud Party Problem

The San Anselmo City Council last night agreed to postpone taking any action about noisy parties at the American Legion Log Cabin while the American Legion Post attempts to solve the problem.

A retired San Anselmo police chief, Donald T. Wood, representing the veterans' group, told the city council that "two incidents in August" were the result of "deliberate misrepresentation" by persons hiring the hall.

Sixty-eight neighbors of the building on Sonoma Avenue recently signed a petition asking the city council to set up restrictions for groups holding parties and dances at the hall. They complained about "noisy brawls" at the Log Cabin on Aug. 3 and 24 and "too many times previously." The neighbors said in each case the police had been called several times, finally shutting down the dances.

The neighbors asked that amplified music and loudspeakers be prohibited at the building in the residential neighborhood and that other restrictive measures be adopted.

Wood told the council that the American Legion will discuss the matter at its next meeting and that he was going to propose that the building be restricted to dances by "recognized groups." He mentioned service clubs and the League of Women Voters as examples.

The matter was postponed until Oct. 22.

The San Anselmo City Council Also:

INTERIM — Adopted another interim resolution controlling permits for new building until the city's general plan is adopted. The resolution will expire Jan. 15 or the date the plan is approved. It replaces a similar measure banning new building which expired today. Woodrow V. Capurro voted against the measure.

BUSES — Endorsed an exclusive bus lane on Highway 101 from Greenbrae to Richardson Bay Bridge with Pieter Toal voting no because he did not think provision for car pools was adequately spelled out.

CODES — Introduced for future passage as ordinances 1973 editions of the uniform building code, uniform housing code, uniform mechanical code and uniform plumbing code and material and property standards.

DRAINAGE — Agreed to have the staff investigate and discuss at the next meeting what can be done about a drainage problem at the end of Skyline Road.

CLOSED — Went into closed session to discuss salary negotiations with city firemen.

ABSENT — Councilman John H. Colteaux was absent.

2 Democrats Miss TV Campaign Spots

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Democratic candidates for state office have missed two television appearances this week and at least one Republican opponent is unhappy about it.

On Monday, Assemblywoman March K. Fong, candidate for secretary of state, did not appear for the taping of her installment in the public television series about statewide races. She sent word she had a previous engagement.

Cory's absence yesterday was criticized by Bagley, who accused the Democrat of "sham," and "an act of a devious politician."

Cory had originally canceled his appearance because the taping was scheduled at strike-bound KQED. When the filming was shifted to KPIX with the blessings of the strikers, Cory said he had made other plans which could not be canceled.

"I am looking forward to debating Mr. Bagley Oct. 16 before the Sacramento Press Club," Cory said.

Bagley said Cory was in San Francisco at the time of the taping, and "I'd like to know what is more important about coming to San Francisco than appearing before 20 million television viewers."

Bagley said the affair raises "a question of political morality in this post-Watergate period."

Cory has appeared with Bagley on a television show previously in Los Angeles, but Bagley complained that Cory, the frontrunner in the race, had canceled another appearance scheduled in Los Angeles next Sunday.

Registered GOP Voters Lagging

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Californians have become Democrats and Independents in greater numbers than Republicans to capture almost two-thirds of the state's registered voters, state figures disclosed today.

The Secretary of State's office released preliminary figures showing that 9.65 million persons had registered to vote 54 days before the November general election, compared with 9.3 million persons eligible to vote in the June Primary. The office said the final figure should be more than 9.8 million eligible voters.

Up until Sept. 12, Democratic registration showed the largest gain since the primary election, climbing 114,887 to 5.3 million voters.

Independents, or those who declined to state a party preference, showed the next largest increase, gaining 23,826 voters over primary election figures to reach 576,295.

The Republican party managed the smallest registration increase, gaining only 13,976 voters for 3.5 million.

As of 54 days before the Nov. 5 election, Democrats claimed a majority of the registration with 56.5 per cent. Combined with the 6 per cent held by the Independents, the two categories accounted for 62.5 per cent of the registered voters. Republicans numbered 36.4 per cent of the registered voters.

Rockefeller Told To Explain Gifts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Rules Committee today asked Nelson A. Rockefeller to provide a "full explanation" of some $800,000 in gifts he gave to former aides, including Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The vice presidential nominee assured chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., he would provide the explanation "as soon as possible."

"I don't know whether there's a good explanation for the gifts or not," Cannon told newsmen after a brief committee meeting. "I must say I have some question in my mind or I wouldn't have asked for a full explanation.

Cannon said he didn't think the gifts constituted a conflict of interest "but they do raise the question of influence of wealth in a political system on government."

Cannon said he talked with Rockefeller on the phone "and he assured me he would respond fully as soon as possible."

The chairman said the committee would meet in executive session after the congressional recess to discuss the former governor's reply on the gift issue. At the same time, he said, they would take up the audit of Rockefeller's income tax now under way by the Joint Tax Committee and the Internal Revenue Service.

"We won't be able to make a decision until we get back from recess" on whether Rockefeller will be recalled to answer questions on the gifts at a public hearing," Cannon said.

Other Committee members who meet Friday to study Rockefeller's financial reports said they were not alarmed at the gifts —including $550,000 to one former chief aide and $50,000 to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger five years ago.

Additionally, the multi-millionaire former New York governor has made nominal campaign contributions to a number of congressmen who will vote on his confirmation.

"I didn't see anything which disturbed me," said Senate Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia. "But one never knows what may develop tomorrow or the next day."

"I see nothing which alarms me yet," said Sen. James Allen, D-Ala. "I guess a fellow is entitled to give his money away to whomever he wants."

Both Allen and Byrd said they wanted to hear a complete explanation of the Rockefeller gifts.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said the disclosures "could well reopen hearings" on the nomination.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said Rockefeller should be recalled and questioned about the gifts. "The question of personal gifts to political figures raises a grave question of propriety," Helms said.

Planning For College To Be Discussed

Planning for college will be discussed by members of the Tamalpais High School counseling department at 7:30 p.m. today in the school's student center, counselor Charles Crawford has announced.

Topics will include college admissions, requirements and financial aid. The program is open to all students and their parents.

Singer Testifies For Jailed Con

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Country music star Johnny Cash, saying drugs are "a worse prison than you can build with walls and bars," testified on behalf of a 24-year-old drug offender trying to win freedom on parole from the Tennessee penitentiary.

Afterward, the State Board of Pardons and Paroles recommended the sentence of Larry Hilton of Kingsport, Tenn., be reduced from 11 years to five to 15 years, making him eligible for earlier parole.

Planning For College To Be Discussed

Planning for college will be discussed by members of the Tamalpais High School counseling department at 7:30 p.m. today in the school's student center, counselor Charles Crawford has announced.

Topics will include college admissions, requirements and financial aid. The program is open to all students and their parents.

Singer Testifies For Jailed Con

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Country music star Johnny Cash, saying drugs are "a worse prison than you can build with walls and bars," testified on behalf of a 24-year-old drug offender trying to win freedom on parole from the Tennessee penitentiary.

Afterward, the State Board of Pardons and Paroles recommended the sentence of Larry Hilton of Kingsport, Tenn., be reduced from 11 years to five to 15 years, making him eligible for earlier parole.

FOR $16 A DAY, PER PERSON, ONLY TWA GIVES YOU HOTELS, A CAR AND OTHER GOODIES IN THE EAST.

THE COPLEY PLAZA

Copley Plaza Sheraton, Boston.

New York Sheraton, New York.

FREEWHEELER U.S.A.

TWA has a plan that can save you a lot of money on your next vacation. It's called Freewheeler and this is what it gives you for $16 a day, per person, when 2 people are traveling together.

An economical Pinto, from Hertz, with unlimited mileage if you return the car where you rented it.

There are three catches.

You pay for gas and taxes. You must buy the Freewheeler Plan for at least 4 consecutive days. Or, if you're staying at Sheraton Hotels, for at least 6 days. And if you're traveling alone, the rate is $32 a day. On the other hand, if there are more than 2 of you traveling together, the rate goes down.

Besides the Freewheeler Plan, TWA gives you its Little Black Book. Free.

TWA'S LITTLE BLACK BOOK

TWA
KERRY KENNEDY

Thanks to special arrangements we've made with local proprietors, it has discounts on dinners, drinks, theaters, places of interest, horseback riding, sailboating and golf. You can pick up your Little Black Book in most destinations when you present your ticket or boarding pass at any TWA Ticket Counter.

And if you want to charge your trip, you can. On TWA's Getaway* Card. It's good at more than 19,000 places around the world, including designated travel agents.

For flight reservations and more information on our Freewheeler Plan, see your Travel Agent.

TWA's Individual Tour Plans.

The prices you see below are for TWA's Individual Tour Plans which save you up to 30% on airfares alone. They also include $65 in ground arrangements. Which qualifies you for the airfare to begin with, and takes care of our minimum Freewheeler requirements. The airfares also have departure time restrictions and minimum/maximum stay requirements.

Philadelphia $320
Boston $337
New York $326
Chicago $259
Washington/Baltimore $313

THE PERFECT HOST

Sebastiani Zinfandel Wine, 5th

A beef chuck roast such as those that are featured this week would be in excellent company with a bottle of Sebastiani Zinfandel Wine. This is a dry red wine that is refreshingly light. It has a berry-like bouquet and a "bramble" flavor that may remind you of wild blackberries. Zinfandel is at its best when served at room temperature

Try this fine wine at $2.29 a fifth.

Officials Pondering Illegal Fill Found At Kappas Yacht Harbor

Illegal bay fill has been found at Kappas Yacht Harbor just north of Sausalito, but it may be too much of a pollution hazard to remove, the staff of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission reported today.

The fill was dumped on the site as part of the work to upgrade the harbor to conform with sanitary and building codes, a project sought for years by critics who term the present harbor a nautical slum.

Alan R. Pendleton, staff counsel for the commission (BCDC), told the Independent-Journal it still is unknown how much illegal fill has been placed on the site and what to do about it.

State and federal fish and game officials have been asked to advise the commission whether removing the fill would aggravate pollution in Richardson Bay, Pendleton said. A recommendation is expected within two weeks, he added.

There is no automatic penalty for illegal bay fill, Pendleton said. Marin County Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales could prosecute it as a misdemeanor, Pendleton said, adding "I doubt he would." Such prosecution generally is viewed by districts attorney as not worth pursuing, he said.

The staff's recommendation will go to the full commission on Nov. 7. The county public works department has halted further filling on the project pending the commission's decision on what to do about it.

The situation is complicated by the fact that the weight of the fill has pushed up a wave of bay mud parallel to the bicycle path that runs along the site.

Pendleton said the fill appears to be 20 to 30 feet wider than provided in the BCDC permit. It runs some 400 feet along the bay's edge, he said. Also at issue is fill put on a road into the harbor, fill that appears to be a foot higher than allowed by the permit.

Pendleton said an engineer on the project said the excess fill occurred because no engineer supervised the dumping of the fill.

Riles Nominated For U.S. Council

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — President Ford has nominated California schools chief Wilson Riles to a three-year term as a member of the National Council on Educational Research, Riles announced yesterday.

The nomination is subject to Senate confirmation. Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, already has served one year on the council.

FIRE CALLS

YESTERDAY:

Rigorous Coastal Policies Drafted

Tough policies to give the poor as well as the well-heeled access to the coast, and to restrict use of private land along the ocean, have been drafted by the staff of the North Central Coast Regional Commission.

The proposals also call for limiting growth to existing villages, establishing a continuous band of public land along the entire shoreline, and cutting the number of lots in existing subdivisions.

Forums to get public reaction to the policies will be held over the next two weeks. The sessions, all at 7:30 p.m., will be Tuesday at the First Unitarian Church in San Francisco, next Wednesday in the Santa Rosa Public Library, Oct. 17 at Granada School in Corte Madera and Oct. 21 at the Bolinas Community Public District office.

The set of 13 proposed policies on "intensity of development" are the eighth in a series of reports to guide drafting of a long range general plan for the future of the coast.

The proposals include policies that military bases and other lands controlled by public agencies along the coast be opened to the public. Such lands account for 15 per cent of the state's coastline, the report said.

Existing public parks such as Point Reyes National Seashore and Golden Gate National Recreation Area, it said, should develop day and overnight facilities "to provide for the greatest number of people to enjoy the coastal experience."

No development should be allowed at or near the coast that would block access, "unnecessarily" interfere with views "or generate excess demand for use of public beach resources."

It also would prohibit residential development "removed from employment centers." Development should be confined to established villages, with boundaries fixed to limit their expansion, the policies declare.

Such services as sewer and water systems and roads "should be provided or expanded only to the extent they will not conflict with limits on coastal development," it says.

Reducing the number of lots in existing subdivisions, it conceded, probably will mean their public purchase.

Existing housing serving moderate and low-income persons should not be demolished unless replacement housing is guaranteed, the policies state. New housing and visitor facilities "shall serve persons of low and moderate income," it says.

New developments also should be required to restore "coastal resources," it said.

Cautioning that public access to the coast needs protection, the report quoted Mark Twain's adage, "Buy land, they've stopped making it."

Women Suffer Discrimination, Study Says

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Women are systematically discriminated against in federal agencies, a survey by the San Francisco chapter of Federally Employed Women concluded today.

"Not only are the women discriminated against, but they are more frequently employed at lower grade levels, have fewer opportunities for training and promotion, and receive fewer awards for their performance than their male counterparts," said Maria Fort, who conducted the survey.

The 46 federal agencies, representing 25,000 employees, in the Bay Area were asked for data. She said, "The results were unequivocal, based on both the narrative and numerical response received."

Federally Employed Women is a group organized in Washington in 1968 to seek job equality for women. The group now has 54 chapters nationwide.

Oil Price Drop Seen Unlikely

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Oil prices are unlikely to drop very soon, according to the chairman of Standard Oil Company of California.

H.J. Haynes, Standard's top executive, said yesterday that for the "medium term" there "would seem to be a better prospect for reductions."

In the long range, he said, the price of oil will be determined by the cost of alternative sources of energy.

Speaking before the San Francisco Security Analysts Organization, Haynes said his company expects its profit pattern to "follow a favorable trend."

3 Marinites Nabbed For Hashish Oil

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Three San Anselmo residents have been arrested in San Anselmo by federal narcotics agents because of delivery of two crates from Katmandu, Nepal containing three pounds of potent hashish oil.

Arrested Monday at 222 Floribel Avenue by a team of federal and local officers were Barry Jay Bishop, 26, Joel Alan Rafofsky, 25, and Linda Jean Huber, 24, according to a federal spokesman.

Rafofsky, to whom the crates were mailed, is being held in lieu of $15,000 bail, Bishop in lieu of $10,000 bail and Miss Huber in lieu of $5,000, according to Robert J. DeFauw, special agent in charge of the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration in San Francisco.

The three were to appear before a federal magistrate today, he said.

DeFauw said the tar-like oil was hidden between laminated sections of two packing crates filled with statues and other artworks from Nepal. Federal authorities were alerted when a forklift punctured one of the creates and the hashish oil oozed out, he said.

He said the drug confiscated Monday has a street value of about $100,000.

Pan-Am Employees Seeking Equality

That was the message given to a Marin group of Pan-American Airlines employees and their families who met today at a Tamalpais Valley home to discuss their financially troubled airline and how they could help it.

The 30 who gathered were just one of many groups of Pan-Am employees around the world who are pressuring Congress to end what they think are practices which discriminate against Pan-Am in favor of foreign airlines coming into the United States.

John Bell, a Novato co-pilot, urged the group to wire Capitol Hill; to phone radio talk shows; to call relatives and friends; to pass out flyers in supermarkets.

Employees at the meeting still had their jobs, but the airline's pilots have just agreed to take a 10 per cent pay cut to help out, one pilot reported.

What the group wants is a government policy forcing United States government employees and contractors to fly on American owned airlines for trips overseas. They want the government to pay the same postal rates to United States flag airlines as it pays to foreign airlines, who now get higher rates.

They want the secretary of transportation to resolve what they call discriminatory practices by foreign governments such as charging high landing fees to American owned airlines landing at foreign airports. (Meanwhile, fees charged to foreign carriers landing here are comparatively nominal.)

They want the department of commerce to advertise to encourage American to fly on American-owned carriers.

"We don't want an outright grant," Bell told the group. "That doesn't solve any problems. We just want to plug the loopholes."

Why not give up and look for other jobs?

"It's a hell of a good company," said Bell, "or I wouldn't have stayed with them."

Sexy Picture Prompts Suit

NEW YORK (UPI) — Describing herself as a "well known professional model of great reputation," Robin Nord of Manhattan today sued Cosmopolitan Magazine for $2 million, charging it wrongfully used her picture with a caption stating "I want sex."

The suit, filed in Manhattan Supreme Court, charged that the item was intended to charge that she was "an unchaste woman and was a woman of loose morals and character."

The suit said that the item appeared in the October 1974 issue as part of an announcement of the contents of the November edition.

ATTACKED IN BOSTON

Riot-equipped Boston policeman Roger Delminaco holds a rock in his injured hand after it smashed through the window of a police van following racial disturbances at English High School yesterday. At least 30 persons were injured yesterday in disorders stemming from a court-ordered school busing plan in Boston. Mayor Kevin H. White and black leaders have appealed for federal help to calm the violence that has marred school integration attempts.

Van Camp Proposes Computer Check On Validity Of Voters

Brian Van Camp, Republican nominee for secretary of state, today proposed that Californians be permitted to ballot in elections only after their names are checked against a statewide computer list of registered voters.

Each person would be issued a special "voters card" bearing his social security number, and each polling place would be equipped with a device to validate the card through the statewide computer.

Van Camp said such a system is needed to eliminate voter fraud. He did not estimate its cost.

The former state corporations commissioner, who resigned to campaign full time, proposed the system to screen voters in a talk before a dozen leading businessmen at the Bank of Marin in San Rafael. The purpose of his appearance was to help raise $60,000 for television advertising to be broadcast in the closing weeks of the campaign.

As an example of voter fraud, Van Camp cited the City of Berkeley. It has 90,000 people eligible to vote, but 94,000 registered to vote, he said.

As California's chief elections officer, the secretary of state should "assure the health of the electoral system," Van Camp said. "We need to bring the state's full processes to bear to eliminate voter fraud," he said.

The incumbent, Democrat Edmund G. Brown Jr., his party's nominee for governor, has made the office "a political football and private political machine," Van Camp declared. Brown's administration of the office also has increased the delay to process vital business documents from two or three days to three or four weeks, he added.

Van Camp sharply criticized his Democratic opponent, Assemblyman March K. Fong of Oakland, for using her position in the Legislature to promote her campaign.

While he spent $9,000 in the primary election contest on air travel and $7,000 for telephones, she spent $98 on air travel and $700 for telephones, Van Camp said. The taxpayers paid the difference, he said.

She also has had a "phony" committee consultant, Michael Gagan, running her campaign at the taxpayers' expense, Van Camp said. Gagan left the state payroll only last week, he added.

Such information never reaches the voters, however, because it is kept secret by the Legislature, Van Camp objected. The Legislature's budget of $55 million for this fiscal year, he argued, "is an abuse of the public spending" and finances the reelection of incumbents so effectively that challengers are discouraged from running.

"We've got public financing of elections," he quipped, "the problem is you've got to belong to the club to get it."

An independent commission should be created to set legislative salaries, he proposed, commenting it's time "to get the fox out of the hen house."

Van Camp also said the primary election should be moved from June to September to cut the cost of campaigning and "save wear and tear on the voter."

Kissinger's New Tour Under Way

CAIRO (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived in Cairo today at the start of his seventh Middle East tour to seek a peaceful settlement of the Middle East conflicts and to seek lower oil prices in talks with Arab oil producing nations.

He stopped off in Madrid for an unannounced 45 minute meeting with Spanish Foreign Minister Pedro Cortina at heavily guarded Torrejon air base outside Madrid and discussed the current negotiations with Spain on a renewal of U.S. air base leases there.

Kissinger was seen off at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington by President Ford and some cabinet members in an unusual gesture that showed the importance Ford attaches to the Kissinger mission. Kissinger said, "This is the first time in a long time that one can go on these missions with an America that is at peace with itself."

A high-ranking American official traveling with the Kissinger party said progress is expected to be made during the Middle East trip but that no final Arab-Israeli settlement is expected to be reached during this tour.

The official said Kissinger may visit the Middle East capitals twice if necessary, but does not plan any extended shuttle diplomacy as in the past. Officials also said Kissinger definitely would visit Saudi Arabia during this tour but no schedule was announced.

Kissinger arrived in Cairo at 6:45 p.m. (9:45 a.m. PDT). He had been met in Madrid by Cortina and other Spanish officials for what the Spanish Foreign Ministry called "talks of mutual interest."

ATTACKED IN BOSTON

Riot-equipped Boston policeman Roger Delminaco holds a rock in his injured hand after it smashed through the window of a police van following racial disturbances at English High School yesterday. At least 30 persons were injured yesterday in disorders stemming from a court-ordered school busing plan in Boston. Mayor Kevin H. White and black leaders have appealed for federal help to calm the violence that has marred school integration attempts.

Van Camp Proposes Computer Check On Validity Of Voters

Brian Van Camp, Republican nominee for secretary of state, today proposed that Californians be permitted to ballot in elections only after their names are checked against a statewide computer list of registered voters.

Each person would be issued a special "voters card" bearing his social security number, and each polling place would be equipped with a device to validate the card through the statewide computer.

Van Camp said such a system is needed to eliminate voter fraud. He did not estimate its cost.

The former state corporations commissioner, who resigned to campaign full time, proposed the system to screen voters in a talk before a dozen leading businessmen at the Bank of Marin in San Rafael. The purpose of his appearance was to help raise $60,000 for television advertising to be broadcast in the closing weeks of the campaign.

As an example of voter fraud, Van Camp cited the City of Berkeley. It has 90,000 people eligible to vote, but 94,000 registered to vote, he said.

As California's chief elections officer, the secretary of state should "assure the health of the electoral system," Van Camp said. "We need to bring the state's full processes to bear to eliminate voter fraud," he said.

The incumbent, Democrat Edmund G. Brown Jr., his party's nominee for governor, has made the office "a political football and private political machine," Van Camp declared. Brown's administration of the office also has increased the delay to process vital business documents from two or three days to three or four weeks, he added.

While he spent $9,000 in the primary election contest on air travel and $7,000 for telephones, she spent $98 on air travel and $700 for telephones, Van Camp said. The taxpayers paid the difference, he said.

She also has had a "phony" committee consultant, Michael Gagan, running her campaign at the taxpayers' expense, Van Camp said. Gagan left the state payroll only last week, he added.

Such information never reaches the voters, however, because it is kept secret by the Legislature, Van Camp objected. The Legislature's budget of $55 million for this fiscal year, he argued, "is an abuse of the public spending" and finances the reelection of incumbents so effectively that challengers are discouraged from running.

"We've got public financing of elections," he quipped, "the problem is you've got to belong to the club to get it."

An independent commission should be created to set legislative salaries, he proposed, commenting it's time "to get the fox out of the hen house."

Van Camp also said the primary election should be moved from June to September to cut the cost of campaigning and "save wear and tear on the voter."

Three Are Seeking Sausalito Seat

WAYNE BONNETT
'No home building'

EARL F. DUNPHY
'Some home building'

SERGE TRUBACH
'Nothing but homes'

By PAUL LIBERATORE

Three candidates with divergent views on development of the waterfront — Sausalito's last major undeveloped property — are competing for the crucial fifth seat on the city council in a special election Nov. 5.

Official candidates Wayne Bonnett, 33; a graphic designer, and Earl F. Dunphy, 69, a retired machinist and 18-year council veteran before being defeated for reelection in March, are considered front runners for the council vacancy created by the resignation of Leonard F. Rappa.

Artist Serge Trubach, 62, who failed to obtain enough valid signatures on his filing papers and whose name will not appear on the ballot, is conducting a write-in campaign.

The fifth seat is considered the swing vote on the council, which has lacked a majority on several key issues since Rappa stepped down in April after only five weeks in office.

Bonnett, making his first bid for the council, says the Schoonmaker project and other current commercial, residential and recreational proposals would cause "irreversible environmental effects" in the Marinship and central waterfront areas.

"The major flaw with the projects is not only in their density, which is obviously too high, but also in their uses," he says. Bonnett favors uses for the waterfront that will "stabilize the industrial base" of the city, such as light maritime industry, resident-serving commercial enterprises and business activities supporting commercial fishing and boating.

He is against residential development of the waterfront because private homes would discourage public use of the shoreline, appeal to upper income persons and exclude middle and low income families and eventually force out light industry, "especially one as fragile as commercial fishing."

Bonnett also opposes the expansion of tourism beyond the downtown business district. "Since tourism is here to stay," he says, "its costs in services beyond its revenue generation must be offset by permanent and productive nontourist business expansion in Marinship, our last available undeveloped area."

He was chairman of Sausalito Citizens for Open Space, San Francisco publicity chairman for People for Open Space, a director of Ecology Action Educational Institute and a member of the Central School bond issue committee. Bonnett and his wife, Linda, live at 532 Sausalito Boulevard.

Dunphy served on the council from 1936 to 1944 and from 1964 to March, when he was defeated for reelection by Rappa and Violeta Autumn, a former planning commissioner.

He considers current development proposals for the waterfront "much, much too extensive" and says they must be "hammered down" according to recommendations in a recent traffic study of Bridgeway and other waterfront streets.

Dunphy favors "preserving and encouraging boating and boat repair facilities and the fishing industry as natural uses of our wterfront," but believes some residential development is inevitable and that waterfront property has become "much too valuable for industry."

He opposes "any further encouragement of tourist attractions in Sausalito" and supports "preserving and encouraging as much of the waterfront for public use and access as possible."

A resident for 56 years, Dunphy served on the city planning commission from 1946 to 1956, as acting postmaster from 1949 to 1951 and on the Marin County Grand Jury in 1956.

He and his wife, Blanche, live at 33 Filbert Avenue.

Trubach, making his ninth consecutive bid for a council berth, says current development proposals for the waterfront are inflationary and would overburden police, fire and other municipal services.

As an alternative to mass development, he suggests that the waterfront be divided into lots and sold to individuals for private homes.

He also favors revamping the annual Sausalito Art Festival, which he describes as "a low-cost flea market" whose only object is to make money."

A resident for 21 years, Trubach is a former organizer of the Sauslaito Art Festival and a past member of the California State Fair Art Jury.

A widower, he lives at 631 Bridgeway.

Realignment Of Outfall Considered

Ross Valley Sanitary District directors have agreed to relocate a portion of the district's outfall sewer to allow realignment of East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard on a portion of district property if the City of Larkspur meets its conditions.

Conditions are that the sanitary district receive land of comparable value for any given up for the road, and that the project not interfere with sanitary district operations on the site.

Directors at their meeting Monday said they want Larkspur to come back with a proposal to meet these conditions, said Dist. Mgr. Ned J. Ongaro.

The Ross Valley Sanitary District Board of Directors Also:

SEWERS — Heard report from Dist. Eng. Warren E. Nute estimating cost at $500,000 for installation of sewers for the East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard development.

REPAIRS — Approved a $4,600 estimated cost to repair service lines in on Woodland Road, Kentfield.

STRIPES — Approved estimated expenditure of $500 to paint street stripes after sewer line work on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Ross.

PLAN CHANGES — Agreed to City of Larkspur request to keep city informed of sanitary district treatment plant changes within the city.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Oct. 21 at the district office, 103 East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

Lineage Law Is Overturned

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A law requiring newspapers to report how much political candidates spend on advertising was declared unconstitutional yesterday by District Court Judge Joe Pavlikowski.

He granted a permanent injunction against the Nevada secretary of state and attorney general, at the request of Cal Sunderland, publisher of the Humboldt Sun.

The judge said the law had a chilling effect on legislative political advertising, placed a prior restraint on publication of the ads, violated freedom of the press and discriminated against print journalism.

Mexican Music To Be Offered

The traditions and customs of the widely varying states of Mexico will be exhibited in music and dance by the Ballet Folklorico Mexicano in a performance Oct. 24 at 8 p.m. at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

Graciela Tapia, appointed by President Echeverria in 1972 as assistant consul for cultural affairs to the Mexican Consulate in Los Angeles, is choreographer and artistic director of the company.

She has programmed a series of dances that range from fiestas to pagan dances.

Highlighting the program will be the appearance of Jorge Tyller, the original modern interpreter of the "Deer Dance," perhaps the oldest of all Mexican dances. It was part of a prehunting rite of the Yaqui Indians who migrated to what now is the site of Sonora some 25,000 years before Christ.

Another solo performance will be that of Daniel Armas, master of the ancient Moorish instrument called the salterio. The Mariachi Ucatlan and singers Alberto de Velasco and Sara Mariano, will provide additional music for the company of 45 dancers.

Fallopian Tube Transplanted

FRANKFURT, West Germany (UPI) — A gynecologist says he has performed the world's first transplant of a frozen fallopian tube, overcoming the problem of rejection of foreign tissue.

Dr. Georg Sillo-Seidl said yesterday he performed the operation on a 31-year-old mother of three children who had been sterilized during her first marriage but wanted a child from her second husband.

Sillo-Seidl said the earlier sterilization operation had been so badly carried out that his only option was to transplant a fallopian tube or oviduct.

WHAT'S IN STORE..
Dating No Game

Have you wondered how the dates you see printed on perishable and semi-perishable products help you as a consumer? Alpha Beta has an "open dating" system which means that the date printed on such items as dairy products, bakery goods, potato chips, and peanut butter is easily read. We don't play games and hide the pull date with a code. This information is there to help you in your shopping to be sure you are buying and using fresh food.

The date you see on Alpha Beta labels represents the last day of sale. By buying not later than this date you will have time to store and use the product at home at optimum freshness. This does not mean that the item will be unacceptable or that you shouldn't use it after that. If the product is handled and stored properly, you will be able to use it at its best.

Save your perishable food shopping for last when you're doing errands. Don't give refrigerated and frozen foods a chance to get warm. We want you to have all the freshness we guarantee with Alpha Beta products.

WHAT'S IN STORE..
Dating No Game

Have you wondered how the dates you see printed on perishable and semi-perishable products help you as a consumer? Alpha Beta has an "open dating" system which means that the date printed on such items as dairy products, bakery goods, potato chips, and peanut butter is easily read. We don't play games and hide the pull date with a code. This information is there to help you in your shopping to be sure you are buying and using fresh food.

The date you see on Alpha Beta labels represents the last day of sale. By buying not later than this date you will have time to store and use the product at home at optimum freshness. This does not mean that the item will be unacceptable or that you shouldn't use it after that. If the product is handled and stored properly, you will be able to use it at its best.

Save your perishable food shopping for last when you're doing errands. Don't give refrigerated and frozen foods a chance to get warm. We want you to have all the freshness we guarantee with Alpha Beta products.

Bombings, Picketings Hit West Virginia

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — A dynamite blast ripped the doorway of one elementary school, another school was firebombed and roving pickets closed all but one Kanawha County coal mine today following a vow by ban-the-book protesters to "FIGHT UNTIL DEATH."

Federal agents said an explosion at the Wet Branch Elementary School in the Cabin Creek area was caused by a stick of dynamite tossed through the front door. The blast blew out the doorway and tore a gaping hole in the floor.

The firebombing occurred at the Midway Elementary School on Campbell Creek, across the Kanawha River from Cabin Creek, both located in the heart of the southern West Virginia soft coal fields.

Angry parents, demanding permanent removal of controversial textbooks from classrooms, manned picket lines at mines throughout the county. The parents have termed the textbooks "obscene, un-American and anti-Christian."

Miners refused to cross the picket lines and went home. Officials closed the mines and estimated that 2,100 miners were idled.

Quinn Morton, president of the Kanawha County Coal Operators Association, said only one mine in the county continued to operate. He said 30 carloads of pickets appeared at one mine and blocked the entrance.

Two agents from the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division, investigated the Wet Branch explosion and confirmed that dynamite had been used. It was first believed that blasting powder of a type used in coal mines had caused the explosion.

"It appears that someone kicked the panel out of a wooden front door and threw a stick of dynamite inside," one agent said.

The 100 pupils who normally attend the Wet Branch school were told to report to another school in the area. The 300 pupils at the Midway School reported for classes, however.

Although all the controversial textbooks have been removed from county schools for a 30-day period for a review by a citizens committee, protesters were not satisfied. They want the books banned permanently.

The Rev. Charles C. Quigley, one of the protest leaders, had vowed to "continue picketing even if they throw everyone into the county jail.

"These are parents who love their children and will fight until death, if necessary."

The violence flared during the third day of the renewed protest which began originally shortly after classes began last month for the fall term, and erupted anew Monday. At least 21 persons have been arrested since Monday for violating a ban on picketing.

During the height of the anti-book crusade last month, 10,000 miners walked off the job in sympathy with the protesters and schools were closed for 65,000 students in a three county

6 European Banks Aid U.S. Failure

NEW YORK (UPI) — Franklin National Bank was declared bankrupt by the government yesterday but six European banks stepped in to bail it out of receivership and promised to honor all deposits. It was the largest bank failure in U.S. history.

The new owners said the more than 100 branches of the bank in the New York area were to open for regular banking business today.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which placed the bank in receivership, said the money of the bank's 620,000 depositors, including 6,000 persons with more than the insured limit of $20,000, would be protected.

And, said Frank Wille, chairman of the FDIC, "all checks written on the Franklin ... will be honored. The clearance process goes forward as if there was no failure."

An officer for the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, which had loaned Franklin National $1.7 billion to keep its doors open through the summer, said it was the biggest U.S. bank ever to fail.

The biggest previous collapse was the failure last October of the $1.2 billion U.S. National Bank, a cornerstone in the financial empire of San Diego financier C. Arnholt Smith.

Wille told a news conference the failure of the nation's 20th largest bank was not a sign that other major banks would fall under the crunch of inflation.

"We do not expect this to be repeated in the American banking system," he said.

He said 1 per cent of the nation's 18,000 banks are on the FDIC's list of banks with some degree of financial trouble, but "at this time, there is no bank in this size category —$1 billion in assets or more —in this type situation."

Rather, he said, it was an indication of strength "that the American banking system can absorb a problem of this magnitude and open all offices without missing a beat."

Alfred Hayes, president of the New York Federal Reserve, blamed Franklin National's loss of $38 million in foreign exchange transactions and "large operating losses" for the bank failure.

"I think all you can do is describe them as bad management," Hayes said.

In a series of fast-moving steps, Franklin National, which had assets in excess of $3.5 billion before falling into deep financial trouble, was declared insolvent and put into receivership by the Treasury Department's comptroller of the currency.

The FDIC then put the bank up for sale to the highest bidder.

The six European banks, operating as European-American Bank and Trust, paid $1.7 billion for the bank's assets and liabilities, including $125 million as a "purchase premium."

Dixie Group To Meet Tuesdays

The Dixie School District Citizen Finance Advisory Group held its first meeting last night and decided to meet each Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the administration office.

The 40-member group is charged with studying district finances and the possibility of holding a tax rate election, according to Supt. Clifford W. Campbell.

He said the group will elect officers at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Franklin National Bank was declared bankrupt by the government yesterday but six European banks stepped in to bail it out of receivership and promised to honor all deposits. It was the largest bank failure in U.S. history.

The new owners said the more than 100 branches of the bank in the New York area were to open for regular banking business today.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which placed the bank in receivership, said the money of the bank's 620,000 depositors, including 6,000 persons with more than the insured limit of $20,000, would be protected.

And, said Frank Wille, chairman of the FDIC, "all checks written on the Franklin ... will be honored. The clearance process goes forward as if there was no failure."

An officer for the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, which had loaned Franklin National $1.7 billion to keep its doors open through the summer, said it was the biggest U.S. bank ever to fail.

The biggest previous collapse was the failure last October of the $1.2 billion U.S. National Bank, a cornerstone in the financial empire of San Diego financier C. Arnholt Smith.

Wille told a news conference the failure of the nation's 20th largest bank was not a sign that other major banks would fall under the crunch of inflation.

"We do not expect this to be repeated in the American banking system," he said.

He said 1 per cent of the nation's 18,000 banks are on the FDIC's list of banks with some degree of financial trouble, but "at this time, there is no bank in this size category —$1 billion in assets or more —in this type situation."

Rather, he said, it was an indication of strength "that the American banking system can absorb a problem of this magnitude and open all offices without missing a beat."

Alfred Hayes, president of the New York Federal Reserve, blamed Franklin National's loss of $38 million in foreign exchange transactions and "large operating losses" for the bank failure.

"I think all you can do is describe them as bad management," Hayes said.

In a series of fast-moving steps, Franklin National, which had assets in excess of $3.5 billion before falling into deep financial trouble, was declared insolvent and put into receivership by the Treasury Department's comptroller of the currency.

The FDIC then put the bank up for sale to the highest bidder.

The six European banks, operating as European-American Bank and Trust, paid $1.7 billion for the bank's assets and liabilities, including $125 million as a "purchase premium."

Dixie Group To Meet Tuesdays

The Dixie School District Citizen Finance Advisory Group held its first meeting last night and decided to meet each Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the administration office.

The 40-member group is charged with studying district finances and the possibility of holding a tax rate election, according to Supt. Clifford W. Campbell.

He said the group will elect officers at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Zen Macrobiotic Diet Dangerous

(Fifth of 12 articles on dieting compiled by the Dairy Council of California from research by the California Dietetic Association.)

The Zen Macrobiotic Diet — designed to bring the dieter health and happiness — is so deficient in nutrients that the California Dietetic Association (CDA) warns that it can kill.

The CDA pamphlet "A Dozen Diets For Better Or For Worse" evaluates the macrobiotic diet, introduced by the late Japanese writer Georges Ohsawa. The pamphlet condemns it.

"It should be obvious," they say, "that a diet with multiple deficiencies (as found in the macrobiotic diet) would have no power to cure the diseases which Ohsawa proclaims."

"In fact," the dietitians continue, "these (types of) diets have caused life-threatening deficiencies."

The theory behind the diet is the eastern philosophy of Yin and Yang. According to Ohsawa, the dieter will find health and harmony of soul, mind and body if he chooses a balance of Yin and Yang foods.

A series of 10 diets is offered with Zen Macrobiotics. They range from the mildest, which allow portions from all of the four food groups, to the most extreme which allows only brown rice.

According to Ohsawa, the brown rice-only diet is the easiest, simplest and wisest.

Ohsawa discourages meat eating.

"If man eats animal foods his judgment will be low and simple because he depends for sustenance upon animals whose judgment is low and simple," according to the pamphlet explanation.

He also discourages drinking liquid because as he says, foods already contain enough liquid, and too much would upset the Yin-Yang balance.

The CDA discourages the diet.

Dietitians encourage a varied diet, choosing foods from all of the four food groups, for good health.

Homemade Soup Secrets Can Save Time, Money

By CAROLYN COPPOCK
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

The old-fashioned secrets of homemade soup can help you spend less time in the kitchen, less money on food, and yet give you delicious meals of good quality.

With a little planning you can cook enough on one night to enjoy for two or three days.

Here are some recipes that will introduce you to the basic rules for making soups, but don't be afraid to experiment.

Remember a few guidelines:

Fresh meat — simmer four hours.

Cooked meat (leftover) — simmer two hours.

Always salt water because it draws juices from meat. Salt again to taste just before serving.

Keep pots covered.

Use a bone whenever possible. Add two tablespoons vinegar to draw even more food and flavor from the bone.

To remove grease, scoop off filmed layer after chilling. If heated soup still shows grease on surface, skim with a paper towel.

Save all leftovers, even a drop or two of gravy. Put in a tightly covered bowl and save for "soup night."

BEEF-MINESTRONE

Buy a three or four-pound chuck roast with bone. Cut in three-inch strip of meat with the bone and put aside for your soup. Prepare your roast as usual for the first night's meal.

While it's cooking, you can begin your soup.

Beef with bone
1 grated potato
5 tbsp. instant minced onion
1 can tomato paste
2 tbsp. chopped parsley
1 tsp. thyme
4 fresh tomatoes, quartered
2 tbsp. vinegar
2 ounces elbow macaroni
7 cups water
3 large chopped carrots
1 bunch chopped leeks
2 tbsp. celery flakes
1 bay leaf
1 tsp. oregano
1 tsp pepper
1 fresh chopped zucchini
½ cup soaked kidney beans

In large pot cover beef with seven cups water. Add seasonings, vinegar, tomato paste, fresh peeled tomatoes, and onions. Cover, bring to a boil, reduce heat, and simmer three hours.

Remove meat. Cut into bite-size pieces. Discard any fat and bone. Return meat to pot. Add vegetables and simmer 45 minutes longer. Cool, cover, and refrigerate. Next night bring to a boil, add macaroni and kidney beans. Reduce heat and simmer 30 minutes. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese before serving.

CHICKEN-VEGETABLE

Buy enough chicken (either roasting or stewing) for your favorite recipe, making sure you will have enough left over for at least two cups of chicken. After dinner remove all bones and cut up leftover meat for your soup.

Chicken meat and bones
1 grated potato
1 pound fresh peas
1 bay leaf
2 tbsp. vinegar
2 ounces noodles
¼ tsp. curry
2 quarts water
5 tbsp. instant minced onion
2 tbsp. celery flakes
½ tsp. paprika
2 tsp. salt
½ cup gravy (optional)

In large pot cover chicken meat and bones with water. Add onions, vinegar, seasonings, and any gravy you might have. Bring to boil, reduce heat, cover, and simmer two hours.

Remove bones and discard. Add vegetables and simmer 45 minutes. Cool, cover, and refrigerate. Next night skim off fat and bring to a boil. Reduce heat, add noodles, and simmer 20 minutes. Salt to taste before serving.

Chicken Divan Includes Blue Cheese Sauce

A creamy blue cheese sauce makes the difference in this Chicken Divan recipe.

Broccoli spears are covered with chicken or turkey slices, then smothered in a mixture of cheese, cream, onions and butter — a dish special enough for company.

CHICKEN DIVAN

2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen broccoli spears, cooked and drained
12 thick slices cooked chicken or turkey
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 small onion, chopped
¼ cup flour
2 cups (1 pint) half and half
⅓ cup firmly packed crumbled blue cheese
Salt and pepper
Paprika

In a saucepan, melt butter and saute onion until golden. Stir in flour. Gradually stir in half and half. Add cheese and stir over low heat until sauce bubbles and thickens and is smooth. Add salt and pepper to taste. Pour sauce over top of cassrole.

Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) for 30 to 35 minutes or until lightly browned and bubbly. Sprinkle with paprika. Serves six.

Young, Tender Carrots Best

Freshly harvested carrots are available the year round. Most of them are marketed when relatively young, tender, well-colored and mild-flavored. California and Texas market most carrots.

When purchasing carrots, the Department of Agriculture advises looking for well-formed, smooth, well-colored and firm carrots.

Avoid those with large green "sunburned" areas at the top (which must be trimmed) and roots which are flabby from wilting or show spots of soft decay.

Green Is Found In Produce Department

By M.J. LAGIES
Copley News Service

Supermarkets put a higher markup on produce than on almost anything else they sell.

The figures vary slightly from chain to chain, but the average nationwide is known to be between 28 and 36 per cent.

In contrast, the markup on some staples such as sugar, flour and coffee is often only a few pennies. After expenses, the store may just break even on them.

Why pick on fruit and vegetables?

"I've been in the business for nearly 35 years and it's always been that way," says John Mabee, president of the Big Bear chain.

Mabee and his colleagues are quick to point out that if the chains were to lower their profit margin on produce, they would have to raise it somewhere else in the store.

They also like to quote a widely circulated profit figure for the retail food industry last year: 0.9 per cent for all the nation's stores combined.

This does, however, include the failures of hundreds of smaller stores which did not have the resources and merchandising know-how of the big ones.

Even the big ones can lose money. Arden-Mayfair dropped $5 million in 1973. So did the A & P chain.

Most of the larger chains reported net profits of between 1 and 2 per cent. Safeway made 1.3 per cent, Lucky Stores 1.4 per cent, Albertson 1 per cent and Southland Corp. (Seven-Eleven) 1.7 per cent.

These figures are based on sales, not on total net worth of the companies. They can be misleading since they do not reflect expansion.

For instance, if a chain clears $100 million after expenses and spends $95 million of that on new stores, then it reports its net profit at $5 million, not $100 million.

About 18 per cent of the supermarkets' profits, according to a survey conducted by one of the nation's largest growers, comes from produce.

Supermarket men readily admit that their markup on produce is relatively high, but say the drastic general price rises of the last few years reflect an increase in built-in costs, not a change in pricing policy.

They charge more because it costs them more, they say.

Costs are up all along the chain from the field to the cash register.

For example, it costs about $1.60 to grow 20 pounds of tomatoes.

By the time they reach the supermarket checkout, the cost has more than quadrupled, to about $6.90. Anything above that is profit for the store.

These figures may vary with the season, the market, the number of middlemen and a number of other factors.

But for illustration purposes, this is how the cost progression of a 20-pound lot of tomatoes may appear:

|---|---|
| Growing cost | $1.60 |
| Grower's profit | 1.00 |
| Harvest, truck to packer | .75 |
| Container | .65 |
| Packer | .50 |
| Truck to warehouse | .30 |
| Warehouse costs | .20 |
| Truck to store | .30 |
| Store's costs | 1.60 |
| Total | $6.90 |

Everyone's expenses are up.

Water is more expensive, too. In one Southern California

Cheese Appetizers Offer Variety To Add Life To Small Gatherings

Fall is a time for home entertaining and these bite size cheese appetizers offer a most welcome variety of flavors and textures, for small holiday gatherings.

Individual quiche tarts are elegant with their colorful garnishes and pretty shapes. A Spanish flavor to entertaining comes in the shape of Nachos, crisp fried corn tortillas topped with cheese.

PARTY QUICHES

¾ cup butter
2¼ cups flour
1 tsp. salt
5 eggs
1 cup grated Monterey jack cheese
¼ cup grated Romano cheese
½ pint whipping cream
½ cup milk
¼ tsp. pepper
¼ tsp. marjoram
¼ tsp. oregano
2 tbsp. flour for filling

Combine butter, two and one-fourth cups flour and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Cut in butter finely. Mix in one egg to form dough. Divide into 36 equal portions and press each portion into small buttered (one-ounce) tart pan. Combine cheeses, four eggs, cream, milk, three-fourths teaspoon salt, pepper, marjoram, oregano and two tablespoons flour. Spoon into tart shells, dividing cheese equally. Bake in 350 degree oven about 35 minutes or until light golden. Carefully remove from pans. Serve warm with various garnishes on top. Makes three dozen.

Note: Sliced ripe or green olives, baby shrimp, crisp crumbled bacon may be added to the tarts after filling with the basic mixture. When baked garnish top with the same ingredient.

TOASTED CHEESE ROLLS

8 slices white bread
Butter
½ cup grated Monterey jack cheese
½ cup grated Provolone cheese
¼ cup mayonnaise
¼ tsp. thyme

Trim crusts from bread. Spread with butter. Mix cheeses, mayonnaise and thyme. Spread on buttered bread and carefully roll up. Place seam-side down in shallow baking pan. Melt one-fourth cup butter and spoon over rolls. Bake in 450 degree oven six minutes or until toasted. Cut each roll into two pieces. Serve hot. Makes 16 pieces.

NACHOS

Fry corn tortillas in one-half-inch hot oil in skillet until very crisp. Turn once in oil. Drain on paper towels. Sprinkle tortillas with grated Monterey jack or cheddar and Romano cheeses, about one-fourth cup total cheese on each tortilla. Place on shallow pan and run under broiler until hot and bubbly. Cut into eight wedges with sharp knife. Serve hot. Makes eight pieces per tortilla. Dip into hot chili sauce, if desired.

STUFFED CARAWAY CHEESE AND ROLL SLICES

1 (8-ounce) package cream cheese
2 cups grated Monterey jack cheese (½ pound)
3 tbsp. milk
⅓ cup diced pimiento
½ green pepper, diced
¼ cup finely chopped onion
2 tsp. caraway seeds, crushed in mortar
2 tsp. paprika
¼ tsp. pepper
6 long french rolls

Beat together all filling ingredients. Hollow out fresh rolls, using apple corer. Stuff cheese mixture inside, about ½ cup per roll. Wrap and chill. Slice off as desired. Makes four to five dozen slices.

Salads Can Be Used For Lunch Or Dinner

Salads are a pleasant change for lunch or dinner. Here are two that use in-season vegetables.

CASTROVILLE CRAB SALAD

4 large artichokes
2 quarts water
1 tablespoon salt
2 tbsp. vinegar
2 cups crab meat, fresh or frozen
1 cup chopped celery
2 hard-cooked eggs, diced
3 tbsp. chopped green onion
⅔ cup real mayonnaise
2 tsp. prepared mustard
Lettuce

Rinse artichokes, trim stems close to base and trim tips of leaves with kitchen shears. Heat water with salt and vinegar to boiling. Add artichokes and cook until tender, about 45 minutes. Drain and cool. Spread outer leaves slightly and pull out center cone of leaves. With sharp knife, cut off tender part of cone and chop finely. With a teaspoon, scrape out and discard the fuzzy "choke" from center. Dice crab and combine with celery, eggs, onion and chopped artichoke. Mix mayonnaise with mustard and blend lightly with crab mixture. Spoon into center of each artichoke. Set into bowls lined with lettuce to serve. Makes four servings.

CALIFORNIA SALAD, STROGANOFF

Lettuce
1 cup Brussels sprouts
1½ cups cauliflowerets
Marinade
1 can (1 lb.) sliced beets
Stroganoff Dressing

Core and rinse lettuce; drain thoroughly. Refrigerate in disposable plastic bag or plastic crisper. Cook Brussels sprouts and cauliflowerets in boiling salted water just until tender. Drain well and cut vegetables in halves. Toss gently with about ¼ cup Marinade; chill. Drain beets and toss with about 3 tablespoons Marinade; chill. When ready to serve, line individual chilled salad plates with leaves of lettuce. Shred remaining lettuce and divide among plates. Drain vegetables. Arrange beets and cauliflower in circle on each plate, with a ring of Brussels sprouts in center. Fill center with Stroganoff Dressing. Makes four servings.

Marinade: Combine ⅓ cup corn oil, 1½ tablespoons white wine vinegar, 1 tablespoon dry sherry, ½ teaspoon seasoned salt, ⅛ teaspoon each dry mustard and dill weed, and a generous dash pepper. Shake together well in small covered jar.

Stroganoff Dressing: Stir 1½ tablespoons Marinade and ¼ teaspoon seasoned salt into ½ cup dairy sour cream.

Chicken Divan Includes Blue Cheese Sauce

Broccoli spears are covered with chicken or turkey slices, then smothered in a mixture of cheese, cream, onions and butter — a dish special enough for company.

CHICKEN DIVAN

2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen broccoli spears, cooked and drained
12 thick slices cooked chicken or turkey
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 small onion, chopped
¼ cup flour
2 cups (1 pint) half and half
⅓ cup firmly packed crumbled blue cheese
Salt and pepper
Paprika

In a saucepan, melt butter and saute onion until golden. Stir in flour. Gradually stir in half and half. Add cheese and stir over low heat until sauce bubbles and thickens and is smooth. Add salt and pepper to taste. Pour sauce over top of cassrole.

Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) for 30 to 35 minutes or until lightly browned and bubbly. Sprinkle with paprika. Serves six.

Young, Tender Carrots Best

Freshly harvested carrots are available the year round. Most of them are marketed when relatively young, tender, well-colored and mild-flavored. California and Texas market most carrots.

When purchasing carrots, the Department of Agriculture advises looking for well-formed, smooth, well-colored and firm carrots.

Avoid those with large green "sunburned" areas at the top (which must be trimmed) and roots which are flabby from wilting or show spots of soft decay.

Cheese Appetizers Offer Variety To Add Life To Small Gatherings

Fall is a time for home entertaining and these bite size cheese appetizers offer a most welcome variety of flavors and textures, for small holiday gatherings.

Individual quiche tarts are elegant with their colorful garnishes and pretty shapes. A Spanish flavor to entertaining comes in the shape of Nachos, crisp fried corn tortillas topped with cheese.

PARTY QUICHES

¾ cup butter
2¼ cups flour
1 tsp. salt
5 eggs
1 cup grated Monterey jack cheese
¼ cup grated Romano cheese
½ pint whipping cream
½ cup milk
¼ tsp. pepper
¼ tsp. marjoram
¼ tsp. oregano
2 tbsp. flour for filling

Combine butter, two and one-fourth cups flour and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Cut in butter finely. Mix in one egg to form dough. Divide into 36 equal portions and press each portion into small buttered (one-ounce) tart pan. Combine cheeses, four eggs, cream, milk, three-fourths teaspoon salt, pepper, marjoram, oregano and two tablespoons flour. Spoon into tart shells, dividing cheese equally. Bake in 350 degree oven about 35 minutes or until light golden. Carefully remove from pans. Serve warm with various garnishes on top. Makes three dozen.

Note: Sliced ripe or green olives, baby shrimp, crisp crumbled bacon may be added to the tarts after filling with the basic mixture. When baked garnish top with the same ingredient.

TOASTED CHEESE ROLLS

8 slices white bread
Butter
½ cup grated Monterey jack cheese
½ cup grated Provolone cheese
¼ cup mayonnaise
¼ tsp. thyme

Trim crusts from bread. Spread with butter. Mix cheeses, mayonnaise and thyme. Spread on buttered bread and carefully roll up. Place seam-side down in shallow baking pan. Melt one-fourth cup butter and spoon over rolls. Bake in 450 degree oven six minutes or until toasted. Cut each roll into two pieces. Serve hot. Makes 16 pieces.

NACHOS

Fry corn tortillas in one-half-inch hot oil in skillet until very crisp. Turn once in oil. Drain on paper towels. Sprinkle tortillas with grated Monterey jack or cheddar and Romano cheeses, about one-fourth cup total cheese on each tortilla. Place on shallow pan and run under broiler until hot and bubbly. Cut into eight wedges with sharp knife. Serve hot. Makes eight pieces per tortilla. Dip into hot chili sauce, if desired.

STUFFED CARAWAY CHEESE AND ROLL SLICES

1 (8-ounce) package cream cheese
2 cups grated Monterey jack cheese (½ pound)
3 tbsp. milk
⅓ cup diced pimiento
½ green pepper, diced
¼ cup finely chopped onion
2 tsp. caraway seeds, crushed in mortar
2 tsp. paprika
¼ tsp. pepper
6 long french rolls

Beat together all filling ingredients. Hollow out fresh rolls, using apple corer. Stuff cheese mixture inside, about ½ cup per roll. Wrap and chill. Slice off as desired. Makes four to five dozen slices.

Salads Can Be Used For Lunch Or Dinner

Salads are a pleasant change for lunch or dinner. Here are two that use in-season vegetables.

CASTROVILLE CRAB SALAD

4 large artichokes
2 quarts water
1 tablespoon salt
2 tbsp. vinegar
2 cups crab meat, fresh or frozen
1 cup chopped celery
2 hard-cooked eggs, diced
3 tbsp. chopped green onion
⅔ cup real mayonnaise
2 tsp. prepared mustard
Lettuce

Rinse artichokes, trim stems close to base and trim tips of leaves with kitchen shears. Heat water with salt and vinegar to boiling. Add artichokes and cook until tender, about 45 minutes. Drain and cool. Spread outer leaves slightly and pull out center cone of leaves. With sharp knife, cut off tender part of cone and chop finely. With a teaspoon, scrape out and discard the fuzzy "choke" from center. Dice crab and combine with celery, eggs, onion and chopped artichoke. Mix mayonnaise with mustard and blend lightly with crab mixture. Spoon into center of each artichoke. Set into bowls lined with lettuce to serve. Makes four servings.

CALIFORNIA SALAD, STROGANOFF

Lettuce
1 cup Brussels sprouts
1½ cups caulifloweret s
Marinade
1 can (1 lb.) sliced beets
Stroganoff Dressing

Core and rinse lettuce; drain thoroughly. Refrigerate in disposable plastic bag or plastic crisper. Cook Brussels sprouts and cauliflowerets in boiling salted water just until tender. Drain well and cut vegetables in halves. Toss gently with about ¼ cup Marinade; chill. Drain beets and toss with about 3 tablespoons Marinade; chill. When ready to serve, line individual chilled salad plates with leaves of lettuce. Shred remaining lettuce and divide among plates. Drain vegetables. Arrange beets and cauliflower in circle on each plate, with a ring of Brussels sprouts in center. Fill center with Stroganoff Dressing. Makes four servings.

Marinade: Combine ⅓ cup corn oil, 1½ tablespoons white wine vinegar, 1 tablespoon dry sherry, ½ teaspoon seasoned salt, ⅛ teaspoon each dry mustard and dill weed, and a generous dash pepper. Shake together well in small covered jar.

Stroganoff Dressing: Stir 1½ tablespoons Marinade and ¼ teaspoon seasoned salt into ½ cup dairy sour cream.

Green Is Found In Produce Department

By M.J. LAGIES
Copley News Service

The figures vary slightly from chain to chain, but the average nationwide is known to be between 28 and 36 per cent.

In contrast, the markup on some staples such as sugar, flour and coffee is often only a few pennies. After expenses, the store may just break even on them.

Why pick on fruit and vegetables?

"I've been in the business for nearly 35 years and it's always been that way," says John Mabee, president of the Big Bear chain.

Mabee and his colleagues are quick to point out that if the chains were to lower their profit margin on produce, they would have to raise it somewhere else in the store.

They also like to quote a widely circulated profit figure for the retail food industry last year: 0.9 per cent for all the nation's stores combined.

This does, however, include the failures of hundreds of smaller stores which did not have the resources and merchandising know-how of the big ones.

Even the big ones can lose money. Arden-Mayfair dropped $5 million in 1973. So did the A & P chain.

Most of the larger chains reported net profits of between 1 and 2 per cent. Safeway made 1.3 per cent, Lucky Stores 1.4 per cent, Albertson 1 per cent and Southland Corp. (Seven-Eleven) 1.7 per cent.

These figures are based on sales, not on total net worth of the companies. They can be misleading since they do not reflect expansion.

For instance, if a chain clears $100 million after expenses and spends $95 million of that on new stores, then it reports its net profit at $5 million, not $100 million.

About 18 per cent of the supermarkets' profits, according to a survey conducted by one of the nation's largest growers, comes from produce.

Supermarket men readily admit that their markup on produce is relatively high, but say the drastic general price rises of the last few years reflect an increase in built-in costs, not a change in pricing policy.

They charge more because it costs them more, they say.

Costs are up all along the chain from the field to the cash register.

For example, it costs about $1.60 to grow 20 pounds of tomatoes.

By the time they reach the supermarket checkout, the cost has more than quadrupled, to about $6.90. Anything above that is profit for the store.

These figures may vary with the season, the market, the number of middlemen and a number of other factors.

But for illustration purposes, this is how the cost progression of a 20-pound lot of tomatoes may appear:

|---|---|
| Growing cost | $1.60 |
| Grower's profit | 1.00 |
| Harvest, truck to packer | .75 |
| Container | .65 |
| Packer | .50 |
| Truck to warehouse | .30 |
| Warehouse costs | .20 |
| Truck to store | .30 |
| Store's costs | 1.60 |
| Total | $6.90 |

Everyone's expenses are up.

Water is more expensive, too. In one Southern California

Lemon Pie Is Elegant, Light And Tasty—A Real Favorite

And if a survey were taken, lemon would probably come out high in the flavor-favorite category.

The souffle pie is an elegant dessert — cool, light and good-looking. The graham cracker crust is special, too, because it is flavored with vanilla extract and ground walnut meats.

The Vanilla-Lemon Coconut Pie is unusual in that paper-thin slices of unpeeled lemons are used in the filling.

VANILLA-LEMON SOUFFLE PIE

5 eggs, separated
1 cup sugar, divided
2 tablespoons grated lemon peel
½ cup fresh lemon juice
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
½ cup water
1 tablespoon pure vanilla extract
1 cup heavy cream
nutted cracker crust

In a mixing bowl beat egg yolks until light and fluffy. Gradually beat in ½ cup of the sugar; beat until mixture falls from beaters in ribbons. Add lemon peel and juice and salt; blend well. Turn into a heavy saucepan; cook and stir over low heat until mixture thickens and coats a metal spoon. (Be careful not to overcook or mixture will curdle.) Sprinkle gelatin over water; let stand 5 minutes to soften. Blend into lemon mixture; stir until dissolved. Add vanilla extract. Cool, stirring occasionally. In a large mixing bowl beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in remaining ½ cup sugar; beat until stiff but not dry. Beat cream until stiff. Fold egg whites into lemon mixture. Then fold in whipped cream. Turn into prepared Nutted Cracker Crust. Refrigerate until set. Garnish with whipped cream if desired.

Nutted Cracker Crust: In a small mixing bowl combined 1¼ cups graham cracker crumbs, ⅓ cup ground walnuts and 5 tablespoons sugar. Stir in 5 tablespoons melted butter or margarine and 1 tablespoon pure vanilla extract; blend well. Pat crumb mixture over bottom and sides of a 9-inch pie plate. Bake in a preheated slow oven (300 degrees) 15 minutes. Cool shell before filling.

VANILLA-LEMON COCONUT PIE

2 large lemons, unpeeled
2 cups sugar
4 eggs
4 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
¾ cup flaked or shredded coconut

Pastry for 2 crust 9-inch pie.

With a sharp knife or electric knife slice lemons paper thin; remove pits. Place in a medium-size bowl. Add sugar; mix well. Let stand for 2 hours, blending occasionally. In a small mixing bowl beat eggs. Stir in vanilla extract and coconut. Add to lemon mixture; blend well. On a lightly floured board roll half the pastry ⅛-inch thick to fit bottom and sides of a 9-inch pie pan. Pour in lemon mixture. Roll remaining pastry. Place over filling; trim, flute edges and make slits for steam to escape. Bake in a preheated hot oven (400 degrees) for 12 minutes. Reduce oven temperature to moderate (350 degrees); bake until a knife inserted into center of pie comes out clean, about 30 to 35 minutes. Cool and serve.

area, for example, water now costs $131 per acre foot, compared to $30 five years ago. The cost of leasing land has gone up about 50 per cent in the same span, from $100 per acre to $150 per acre.

Wages are up in all phases of the operation.

Truck drivers make up to $6.21 per hour straight time, retail clerks up to $5.18. On Sundays, it's time and a half. On holidays, triple time.

Farm labor is more expensive. The minimum wage is $2.25 per hour, but good workers earn much more on a piece basis.

It costs about $1.35 to pick and pack 24 pounds of nectarines, according to figures supplied by California state farm advisers, while it only costs 86 cents (up to $1.66 for early varieties) to grow them.

Much produce is packed in ice during shipping. That adds to freight rates. A 25-pound box of green onions (48 bunches) contains no more than 13 pounds of onions. The rest is ice and container.

With all these expenses to pay, supermarkets try to hold down their costs in two ways: buying as directly as possible, reducing the number of middlemen, and efficient distribution.

The chains try to buy most of their produce directly from the grower or from the shipper. The shipper, usually also a packer, puts together shipments from several growers and prepares them for trucking.

This produce is trucked directly from the side of the field, or from the shipper's dock, to the supermarket warehouses and from there to the various stores.

Approximately 75 per cent of all produce is bought in this manner.

Marin Music Chest Elects Mrs. Palmer

Melba Palmer of San Rafael has been named new president of the Marin Music Chest, succeeding Florence Lesoine.

Mrs. Palmer has been a member of the board of directors and artistic council of the Music Chest for eight years and has been vice president for the past four.

Mrs. Palmer brings a wealth of musical experience to her role.

She is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y. She appeared as organ soloist with the Eastman Rochester Symphony Orchestra under Dr. Howard Hanson, conductor, and studied organ with Catharine Crozier, world renowned concert organist.

She is a member and past program and tea chairman of the Thursday Musical Club. She is a former vice president of the Marin Symphony Association, coordinator of its youth programs and chairman of the children's concert series.

She served for five years as a volunteer music therapist at Marindale School for orthopedically handicapped children and for one year with deaf children at the Gallinas Valley School.

An elder in the First Presbyterian Church of San Anselmo, she is active on the worship committee, is director of flute ensembles and member of the liturgical dance choir. She is a member of the San Francisco chapter of the American Guild of Organists, and is a member and past president of the San Francisco Alumnae Chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon, international music sorority.

A resident of San Rafael for 16 years, Mrs. Palmer is the mother of Melody, a sophomore at San Rafael High School who is a flutist in the school's symphonic band.

Her nomination as president of the Music Chest was presented to the annual board meeting Monday at the Marin Art and Garden Center and accepted unanimously. Other officers elected were Erma Thaning, first vice president; Georgia Jordan, second vice presidnet, Alam Tomlinson, third vice president, Parnel Finn, treasurer; Ida Scott, assistant treasurer, and Betty Nelson, secretary.

Meeme Rixford headed the nominating committee.

Mrs. Lesoine will continue on the executive committee of the Music Chest as concert manager.

History, Bond Issue Topics For AAUW

The open space bond issue and local Marin history are the subjects for the public meeting of the Novato Branch of the American Association of University Women to be held Monday, in the library of Sinaloa Junior High School in Novato. Coffee will be served at 7:30 p.m. with the meeting beginning at 8.

The open space committee will present a 20-minute slide program. Pro and con arguments on the bond issue which will appear on the November ballot will be discussed by Gail Wilhelm and Phil Coady.

Following the presentation, Pat Simpkins, an instructor of California history at Indian Valley Colleges, will speak on local Marin history and interesting happenings of the 49er Gold Rush and San Francisco Vigilante eras.

A Collage Depicts His Life

A collage representing his life was presented to Carlos R. Freitas of San Rafael this week in appreciation of his 40 years as an active supporter of the Marin Music Chest.

The collage is the creation of two Ross women, Florence Lesoine and Elizabeth Casson. Mrs. Lesoine is a member of the Marin Society of Artists and retiring president of the Music Chest. Mrs. Casson is president of the Sonoma Valley Art Center.

Child Rearing: 'It's Just Not Possible'

By BETH ASHLEY

The business of child-rearing — one of America's most intense preoccupations — is "impossible, unnecessary and maybe even undesirable," an audience at College of Marin was told last night.

Dr. Richard Farson, president of Esalen Institute, opened a four-part lecture series on "S.O.S. — Stress In Our Society," co-sponsored by the College of Marin and the Marin Association for Mental Health.

The author of a book called "Birthrights — A Bill of Rights for Children," Farson said it is "a terrible disability, being a child," and predicted that the next big movement for freedom in our society will be "children's liberation."

He traced the place of children in history — from the days that they were totally ignored as a separate class to 1974 when we are "obsessed with children."

"Children are the No. 1 topic of conversation in America today. We as parents are so anxious, so worried, so attentive, we have so programmed and so standardized (our children's) lives that we have occupied their every waking moment with something that's 'good for them.' "

And there, Dr. Farson believes, lies the great fault with parenthood today. "How would you like to have someone doing what's 'good for you' all day long? People who think they know what's good for you are very dangerous people!"

There are more books and training programs on the subject of parenthood than any other, Farson stated, and "people are trying to 'do' parenting as never before in any other society. The implication here is that it's a 'doable' job.

"I'm here to tell you that parenting isn't possible."

Experts who write books on parenting "are writing about their own hangups," he said. "I've been in this business 20 years, I've written a book about it, I have five children of my own, but I don't know how to do it.

"We simply don't know how to grow people."

Moreover, "it doesn't matter all that much." Farson alleged that "there is not a shred of evidence to show that it makes any difference" whether you as a parent have been strict or permissive, with your child or away from him, are up with the latest theories or are totally ignorant of them.

"As a matter of fact, there is a theory that the thing that will mature a child fastest is calamity, adversity — the things you wouldn't wish on anyone. Studies . . . suggest that the child who grows up in the most nurturing situation is the child who will have the greatest trou-

Cancer Victim Defies Fate

By JOAN LISETOR

When Michele Thunes was a little girl her goal was to be rich, famous, beautiful and sing with the Metropolitan Opera. Today at 43 she is living each day to its fullest, and her goal is to reach her 45th birthday.

Mrs. Thunes has cancer.

"Eighteen months before my mother had had a mastectomy, so I always checked myself," she said. "I contacted my doctor immediately, and by the time I got to his office in the afternoon the lump was not there. The doctor examined me and found a lump in the left breast. He scheduled a biopsy, although he was sure it was benign."

The normal procedure is for a biopsy to be performed while the patient is still in surgery, and if a malignancy is discovered the mastectomy is performed immediatley, Mrs. Thunes explained.

"I wouldn't sign the consent form for the removal of the brest because, if it was going to be removed, I wanted to deal with it out of surgery," she said.

WHEN SHE awoke from the anesthetic after the biopsy she was told by a nurse that she was a "lucky girl." The nurse assumed if she came out of surgery intact, she did not have cancer.

She was feeling elated about her good luck that night, when the doctor sat on the edge of her hospital bed and said, "I have bad news. There is a malignancy."

"I argued with him saying, 'but the nurse told me it was benign,' " she said. "Then he tried to talk me into staying in the hospital and having the surgery immediatley. I wanted to get out for a few days. He let me."

She had the support of fellow members of Alanon, an organization of the families of alcoholics, and a "delightful, warm boyfriend."

In a few days she went peacefully back to Marin General Hospital for the surgery.

"When I went home from the hospital in five days I could put both arms above my head. The doctor had said I wouldn't be able to. I was back to a normal life in seven weeks. There was no big trauma. The nodes showed no signs of cancerous growth, and, in fact, the cyst the doctor had felt was benign. He told me he had discovered the malignancy, a tumor about half the size of a pea.

"It was discovered early. I was cured, so there were no other tests."

SHE HAD NO health problems for the next 18 months, when suddenly one day she collapsed.

"I was terribly thirsty and tired. I slept from 5 p.m. until 10 the next morning, then went straight to the doctor because I had a small fever. Cancer was the furthest thing from my mind," she said. "They did tests, a bone survey, liver scan, but I still wasn't thinking of

She Was Cashing Her Check When Quake Hit

By MOLLY MARIN

Dolores Miller of San Rafael was cashing a travelers' check at the desk of her hotel Thursday at 9:21 a.m. The time is imprinted in her mind, because the hotel was in Lima, Peru, where at that moment an earthquake rocked the city and surrounding area.

Miss Miller was among a group of travel agents, touring Peru for six days as guests of an airline.

"At 9:20 I was in the hotel elevator, and at 9:22 I would have been outside where broken glass was falling," she said.

The terrible sensation that lasted less than two minutes felt like two hours, she said. Most of the rest of her group were in their rooms and being Californians ran for doorways. One man was in the bathtub, where a wave hit him in the face. Although the hotel split apart and windows popped out, no one was hurt.

After the initial shock, Miss Miller said, there was mass confusion everywhere as people tried to get home. Traffic was jammed, and she said she saw two cars hit head on, the drivers get out, pull them apart and go right on.

The group flew home that night as originally scheduled despite damage and a brief closing of the airport. With her she brought a mirror, a souvenir from Peru. Although the mirror cracked during the quake, she said, it looks like a mosaic, and no one will know . . .

Grandmothers Only Grown-Ups Who Have Time, Verse Says

DEAR HELEN:

Could you please reprint the description of Grandmothers that appeared back in 1968? — HOPEFUL

DEAR HOPEFUL:

A grandmother is a lady who has no children of her own, so she likes other people's little girls and boys. Grandmas don't have to do anything except be there. They're old, so they shouldn't play hard or run. Sometimes they are fat, but not too fat to tie kids' shoes.

They wear glasses and funny underwear. They can take their teeth and gums off.

It is better if they don't typewrite or play cards except with us. They don't have to be smart, only answer questions like why dogs hate cats and how come God isn't married.

They don't talk baby talk like visitors do, because it is hard to understand. When they read to us, they don't skip or mind if it is the same story again.

Everybody should try to have one, especially if you don't have televisions, because grandmas are the only grownups who have got time! — AUTHOR UNKNOWN

DEAR HELEN:

I work in a restaurant. Last night I kicked a little baby. No I'm not sadistic. The baby had been put on the floor next to the mother's chair while she ate. Luckily the child wasn't hurt.

This is becoming quite a problem, what with the popularity of those little plastic baby-holders. But they don't protect infants from being stepped on by people in a hurry, especially if they're carrying a load of dishes. Think how terrible it would be if silverware — a sharp knife or fork fell on the baby!

Hope you'll print this as a warning. — CONCERNED WAITRESS

DEAR HELEN:

My sister was divorced several years ago and has since remarried. My husband and I have remained on friendly terms with her ex-husband who will be re-marrying soon.

We have been invited to the wedding. I'd like to go, but my sister feels we shouldn't. Will it be — NO GO?

DEAR NO GO:

No!! — Go!! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

From time to time, stutters and stammers are mentioned in HHU. Maybe this advice from the speech department of St. Mary's Hospital, London, might help?

Have one person read aloud from a book or magazine. The stammerer is to repeat after the reader the words he hears. He has to concentrate on the spoken message since he cannot see the printed words. Speech experts call this echo-like repetition "shadowing."

Most stammerers have little difficulty in shadowing the spoken words, and their fluency increases with practice.

"Parenting is too important a relationship to know how to do it," he said. "Like a romance: if you knew how to do it, it isn't a romance."

To free children from the rigors of being "reared," Farson proposed a bill of rights for children:

1. The right to self-determination. ("There should be an end to the double standard between adults and children — the same rules should apply to everyone. Children should be allowed to make their own choices about eating, sleeping, choosing their associates and life goals.")

2. Right to an alternative home environment. (He described a child living in a world furnished for adults: "they go through life looking at gum on the under side of tables.")

3. Right to a responsive environment. (Urban sprawl has deprived children of access to the total environment: "They can't get to anything because they have to cross a dangerous highway to do so.")

4. Right to information. ("Schools and libraries systematically deny them the information they would most like to have.")

5. Right to self-education. Farson called for alternatives to "incarceration in the classroom."

6. Right to freedom from personal punishment.

7. Right to sexual freedom. ("Children are sexual from birth." "Children should have all the information there is.")

8. Right to economic power. The right to work.

9. Right to political power.

10. Right to justice ("One hundred thousand children are in jail right now for crimes that wouldn't be crimes if adults had committed them.")

The issues surrounding children's liberation are social ones, not personal ones, Farson said. "They are not within our control. I'm sure we are all going to continue to do our damndest to be responsible parents, but I'm sure we overdo it. The best advice I have is lay off.

"We must stop trying to 'fix' people. People are pretty good the way they are."

Cheryl Peterson, Scott Brendel Wed

Cheryl Lynn Peterson and Scott Brendel, both of San Rafael, were married Saturday, Sept. 28, at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo.

Cheryl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd L. Peterson of Lucas Valley, the sister of Chip Peterson and granddaughter of Eva Schomisch of Kaukauna, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brendel of Terra Linda are the bridegroom's parents. Jeff Brendel of San Rafael is his brother and Francine Brendel of Santa Rosa his sister. Lillie Brendel of Springfield, Ore., is his grandmother.

Kathleen Muldoon of Pacific Grove was honor attendant for the bride, and bridesmaids were Miss Brendel and Nancy Mahanna and Karen Wilson of Thousand Oaks.

Best man was Chris Lee of Corvallis, Ore. and Dave Jones of Chico, Jeff Brendel and Chip Peterson were ushers.

A reception followed at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

The bride is a graduate of Terra Linda High School and California State University at Chico where she received a registered nursing degree. She is employed at Novato General Hospital.

Scott is the owner-operator of an Exxon service station in Lucas Valley. He is also a graduate of Terra Linda High School.

The young couple will live in San Rafael, following a trip to Seattle and Spokane.

Cancer Victim Defies Fate; Looks Forward To Birthday

cancer. They thought for awhile I had mononucleosis, and when that proved negative my doctor sent me to a hemotologist, who was also a chemotherapist. That was the first mention of cancer."

On her 15th visit to the hemotologist he said to her, "That's the little devil that's causing the trouble." When she questioned him he said, "You have cancer of the liver."

"The doctor told me about a procedure that had a 90 per cent sure rate. He scheduled it. Well, he scheduled it three times, and each time it was canceled. I knew the cancer had spread, and I felt very insecure with three doctors who were so unsure of treatment," she said.

In her frustration she sought out another doctor, Dr. Ernest Rosenbaum. He began chemotherapy shots the first time she saw him in December of last year. In February she began receiving cobalt treatment on her spine, where another tumor had developed. Although she had had a hysterectomy she was sterilized through the use of radiation as part of the treatment. Two weeks after the sterilization she was back in the hospital with what she called labor-like pains.

"They killed the pain, and then my stomach swelled up like I was pregnant. I was stuck with tubes, I.V.s, everything," she said.

"My ex-husband had been staying with my children (Derek, 16, Scott, 14, and Stacy, 13.) My daughter called and told me they had been left alone for five days and had nothing to eat or wear, and I decided I was going home. I did what I had always wanted to do — defied authority. I pulled the I.V. out and went home."

SHE WENT back to her job as secretary for the music department at College of Marin, but could only work about two hours a day.

"When I stood up for more than five minutes my legs felt like they had tourniquets around them, and I got to the point of thinking, 'If this is living' I don't want to live anymore," she said.

In addition to her health problems she had problems with her children. They were not very supportive at that time, she said, and seemed to take the attitude, "Why has this happened to me?" Money also became a problem, although her doctor bills are covered by insurance. Food cost more because she was forced to use short cuts and convenience foods. Help was offered by the Department of Public Social Services, but "I had been on welfare and didn't want to get back in that trap," she said.

"My doctor got mad at me because I was 'schlepping' around. Then I got mad at myself. I stopped felling sorry for myself. Although there will forever be that part of me that says, 'Why did this have to happen to me?' I know if I don't look or feel sick, I'm not sick. It doesn't prey on my mind. I live one day at a time. You know, it took me 41 years to grow up, and now my reward is I'm going to die at 45 or less, but I remember what Dr. Thomas Dooley said, 'I have places to go, promises to keep before I sleep.' "

Her condition at the moment is stable, she said, and she leads a normal life, except that she tires easily. In December she will begin treatment that will cause her short, curly hair to fall out. She has already lost her eyelashes and her eyebrows have thinned.

"I'd RATHER be a live baldy than a corpse with a full head of hair," she said. "Lincoln said, 'A man is about as happy as he makes up his mind to be.' I've made an intellectual, not an emotional decision, to be happy. I am in control of my emotional state. I spent the first 41 years of my life reacting, now I'm acting. The illness has given me the right to speak out."

When you are blind or crippled it is obvious, she said, but when you are walking around with cancer people don't know.

"Half of me says I don't want to be pampered, but the other half says what about the days when I can't feel good enough to stand in the line at the supermarket. That half says we should have stickers so we can get ahead in line or park closer as the handicapped, but maybe that would be bad," she said.

Her efforts have gone into an organization, Friends of Cancer Immunology of Northern California. Its members support reserach in the hopes it will develop new diagnostic and therapeutic measures to fight cancer. She is angered when she hears federal funds for research have been cut back, she said.

"I feel like I'm on borrowed time. Without chemotherapy I would be dead. I'm not old, but it doesn't matter who cancer happens to or when. It's never the right time or the right person," she said.

Family Service Agency Opens Novato Office

A branch office of the Family Service Agency of Marin was opened earlier this month at 1510 Grant Avenue, Novato.

The office was opened to make agency services more convenient to North Marin residents, according to Wendy Buchen, president of the agency's board of trustees.

The office will be used for family and marriage counseling as well as parent discussion groups and other meetings yet to be scheduled.

The Family Service Agency is a private, non-profit agency supported by the United Bay Area Crusade, fees from clients and from private donations. Client fees are based on a sliding scale determined by ability to pay.

The agency services an average of 350 Marin families a month, with 75 in the Novato area. Main office of the agency is at 1005 A Street, San Rafael.

Grandmothers Only Grown-Ups Who Have Time, Verse Says

DEAR HELEN:
Could you please reprint the description of Grandmothers that appeared back in 1968? — HOPEFUL

DEAR HOPEFUL:
A grandmother is a lady who has no children of her own, so she likes other people's little girls and boys. Grandmas don't have to do anything except be there. They're old, so they shouldn't play hard or run. Sometimes they are fat, but not too fat to tie kids' shoes.

They wear glasses and funny underwear. They can take their teeth and gums off.

It is better if they don't typewrite or play cards except with us. They don't have to be smart, only answer questions like why dogs hate cats and how come God isn't married.

They don't talk baby talk like visitors do, because it is hard to understand. When they read to us, they don't skip or mind if it is the same story again.

Everybody should try to have one, especially if you don't have televisions, because grandmas are the only grownups who have got time! — AUTHOR UNKNOWN

DEAR HELEN:
I work in a restaurant. Last night I kicked a little baby. No I'm not sadistic. The baby had been put on the floor next to the mother's chair while she ate. Luckily the child wasn't hurt.

This is becoming quite a problem, what with the popularity of those little plastic baby-holders. But they don't protect infants from being stepped on by people in a hurry, especially if they're carrying a load of dishes. Think how terrible it would be if silverware — a sharp knife or fork fell on the baby!

Hope you'll print this as a warning. — CONCERNED WAITRESS

DEAR HELEN:
My sister was divorced several years ago and has since remarried. My husband and I have remained on friendly terms with her ex-husband who will be re-marrying soon.

We have been invited to the wedding. I'd like to go, but my sister feels we shouldn't. Will it be — NO GO?

DEAR NO GO:
No!! — Go!! — H.

DEAR HELEN:
From time to time, stutters and stammers are mentioned in HHU. Maybe this advice from the speech department of St. Mary's Hospital, London, might help?

"My doctor got mad at me because I was 'schlepping' around. Then I got mad at myself. I stopped felling sorry for myself. Although there will forever be that part of me that says, 'Why did this have to happen to me?' I know if I don't look or feel sick, I'm not sick. It doesn't prey on my mind. I live one day at a time. You know, it took me 41 years to grow up, and now my reward is I'm going to die at 45 or less, but I remember what Dr. Thomas Dooley said, 'I have places to go, promises to keep before I sleep.' "

Her condition at the moment is stable, she said, and she leads a normal life, except that she tires easily. In December she will begin treatment that will cause her short, curly hair to fall out. She has already lost her eyelashes and her eyebrows have thinned.

"I'd RATHER be a live baldy than a corpse with a full head of hair," she said. "Lincoln said, 'A man is about as happy as he makes up his mind to be.' I've made an intellectual, not an emotional decision, to be happy. I am in control of my emotional state. I spent the first 41 years of my life reacting, now I'm acting. The illness has given me the right to speak out."

When you are blind or crippled it is obvious, she said, but when you are walking around with cancer people don't know.

"Half of me says I don't want to be pampered, but the other half says what about the days when I can't feel good enough to stand in the line at the supermarket. That half says we should have stickers so we can get ahead in line or park closer as the handicapped, but maybe that would be bad," she said.

Her efforts have gone into an organization, Friends of Cancer Immunology of Northern California. Its members support reserach in the hopes it will develop new diagnostic and therapeutic measures to fight cancer. She is angered when she hears federal funds for research have been cut back, she said.

"I feel like I'm on borrowed time. Without chemotherapy I would be dead. I'm not old, but it doesn't matter who cancer happens to or when. It's never the right time or the right person," she said.

Family Service Agency Opens Novato Office

A branch office of the Family Service Agency of Marin was opened earlier this month at 1510 Grant Avenue, Novato.

The office was opened to make agency services more convenient to North Marin residents, according to Wendy Buchen, president of the agency's board of trustees.

The office will be used for family and marriage counseling as well as parent discussion groups and other meetings yet to be scheduled.

The Family Service Agency is a private, non-profit agency supported by the United Bay Area Crusade, fees from clients and from private donations. Client fees are based on a sliding scale determined by ability to pay.

The agency services an average of 350 Marin families a month, with 75 in the Novato area. Main office of the agency is at 1005 A Street, San Rafael.

Marinwood Couple Fete 50 Years Of Marriage

A Marinwood couple who met in grammar school and romanced in their twenties celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Sept. 30.

Camillo Pitto and Albina Salvarezza were both born in San Francisco in the neighborhood between North Beach and the Marina. They attended Hancock Grammar School together; she went on to Girls' High School and he to Lowell. Although they had known each other all this time and shared the same friends, it wasn't until she had gone to work as a saleswoman at the old O'Connor Moffat department store and he to work in a bank that they began to "go together."

They were married in SS. Peter and Paul Church Sept. 30, 1924.

Old friends from their years in San Francisco (they stayed in the old neighborhood until they moved to Marin five years ago) joined them to celebrate the anniversary at a party organized by their two children Veryl (Mrs. Frank) Drews and Kenneth Pitto, both of Terra Linda. The surprise gathering was held at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

In the intervening years Pitto had worked in real estate and then for 35 years as a ship's chandler. He retired in 1963. He has given up earlier hobbies — fishing and woodworking — for work in his garden.

Mrs. Pitto keeps busy caring for their home, attending tea parties and luncheons and visiting with old friends from the city. According to her husband, she is a "great" cook, with Italian dishes her specialty.

They also spend a great deal of time with their children and their six grandchildren, who range in age from 23 to 6.

Their future plans include a trip to Hawaii. Going with them will be Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bacigalupi, old friends from San Francisco in whose wedding the Pittos served as bridesmaid and usher. It will be for both couples a second honeymoon trip in celebration of two golden wedding anniversaries.

Thelma Lauer Will Head Xo Alpha Xi

Thelma Lauer of San Rafael, who has been a member of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority for 25 years, has been elected pesident of Xi Alpha Xi chapter.

She previously served as vice president, secretary and program chairman.

The sorority will celebrate its 25th birthday Saturday at a party with all Marin chapters. Other coming events will be a progressive dinner, Halloween, Christmas and St. Patrick's Day parties and participation in a founders' day.

Mrs. Lauer is a native of Ogden, Utah. She has lived in Marin for 20 years. Her husband, Warren W. Lauer, is in the insurance business, and she is employed as a secretary for National Canners Association in Berkeley. She is also a member of Sunny Hills Terra Linda Guild Four. She was chairman of the Sunny Hills Grape Festival in 1968. Her hobbies are gardening, painting, sewing and swimming.

Gifted Children Unit Is Planning Picnic

Marin Association for Gifted Children will have a family picnic Sunday from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at San Domenico School for Girls in San Anselmo.

Activities will include tennis, swimming and volleyball.

PARENT AND CHILD

Personal Integration Plan: Do-It-Yourself

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Parents: This column is directed at your children. Won't you draw their attention to it, and if too young to read it to themselves, please read it to them.

If you live in a suburb, or in a special section of a large city, or way out in the country, then chances are you don't know many kids who are different from you.

For example, if you live in certain sections of Boston, you only know Italian kids and don't go to school with black or Oriental children. If you live in a Swedish section of Chicago, you also may not know any blacks, Orientals, Spanish-speaking people or Italians.

Or if you live in Clayton, Mo., you may go to school only with other predominantly white Anglo-Saxon Protestant children.

If you live in Harlem, you may not know any Swedish, Italian or Oriental kids.

And so it goes throughout most of the United States. Although this nation is made up of people from every possible national background, there are few times when they actually get to know each other well enough to be good friends.

IF, OF COURSE, your school is a real mix of all kinds of kids of every race, creed and color (as is the high school in Berkeley), then all you have to do to have a variety of friends is to be friendly to the kids you know.

But what can you do if your parents have chosen to live in what's called a homogeneous neighborhood; that is, in a place where people of the same race, creed, or color predominate? You can join the Young Men's Christian Association or Young Women's Christian Association if you're near or in a city. Join the branch of the Y which has the most diverse membership.

You can look for opportunities to participate in citywide activities. For example, is there a citywide marching band? If so, then it should have all races and creeds represented.

You could get your mom interested in joining some such group as the League of Women Voters, which would be made up of people of all types and then ask that whole families get together.

If you are black and you live in a city, you might try to locate a white boy or girl your same age who lives in a suburb or way out in the country. Then one summer you could exchange places. You, the black, go live with a white family. If the family gardens during the summer or keeps chickens, then you could do the chores of the fellow who is taking your place.

And your counterpart could come into the city and live with your folks, finding out how to get odd jobs in the city and learning how to get around on public transportation.

You might want ot overlap for a week at each end so that you not only learn how the other fellow lives, but also you two can learn to be pals as well.

AS YOU GET older, what about spending part if not all of your school day in a school with a greater mix of students? You might have to go live with an aunt or in-law, but you could continue your schooling while learning how to be friends with every kind of kid.

If your parents are active in church affairs, perhaps you could get them to arrange for children from a wide metropolitan area to get together not only for social activities, but also for church-related meetings. In this way, you and your parents can learn to make friends with people who may be of a different race or color, but who are of the same creed.

Ten Marin Leaders Tour PG&E Plants

Ten Marin County public officials and business leaders are guests of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. this week on a three-day tour of hydroelectric plants and other utility facilities.

The tour, which started today, concentrated on power facilities in the Jackson area in Amador County, especially the hydro plant on Tiger Creek near there.

Marin County government officials on the tour, according to PG&E, are supervisors Gary T. Giacomini, Peter R. Arrigoni, and former supervisor Louis H. (Bud) Baar; public works director Ray W. Foreaker; county counsel Douglas J. Maloney, and Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales.

According to PG&E public relations vice-president Robert R. Gros, the utility sponsors and pays for approximately 40 such public information tours each year.

"It would be ideal to take every one of our customers on a tour, to tell them the company story — demonstrate just what's behind turning on a light switch," he said. "But since we obviously can't do that, we're trying to acquaint community leaders with our facilities."

Arrigoni, Baar, Foreaker, Maloney and Robbins went on another tour to the Tiger Creek site in 1972.

Senate Bans Military Aid To Turkey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate today approved legislation banning military aid to Turkey and sent it to the White House, directly challenging President Ford's threat to veto the bill.

The legislation provides that Turkey cannot receive any military assistance from the United States until Ford informs Congress that "substantial progress" has been made toward a Cyprus settlement with Greece.

The House approved identical language Monday, 291-69, and the White House said yesterdaythe President would veto it.

A veto by Ford could threaten the planned congressional recess, scheduled to begin Friday, unless the Senate and House can muster two-thirds majorities to override the rejection.

Planners Request Council Promotion

The Larkspur Planning Commission last night requested the city council promote an interest in water reclamation for the two major proposed projects in the city.

Commissioners suggested in a letter that the city council meet with the Ross Valley Sanitary District and Marin Municipal Water District to discuss water reclamation possibilities for the proposed San Quentin Point and Bon Air shopping center projects, according to Stephen Solomon, associate city planner.

House Passes First Committee System Changes In 26 Years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first change in the House committee system in 26 years will leave the current 21 standing committees as they are, but the reforms passed late yesterday would change some of their functions and procedures.

The 203-165 roll call vote ending a week and a half of bitter floor debate approved a more moderate reform measure than the one proposed by a select committee that worked on the issue for a year and a half.

The bill, which affects only House committees and does not need Senate or presidential approval, takes effect with the new 94th Congress convening in January.

In addition to some minor changes in committee jurisdiction, the measure would for the first time guarantee the minority political party a third of a committee's funds for hiring its own staff, eliminate proxy voting and require early organization of each incoming new Congress.

The original bill would have abolished the Post Office-Civil Service Committee and the House Internal Security Committee.

It would have divided the Education and Labor Committee into separate panels, restricted membership on only one of 15 major committees and seven minor ones and sharply reduced the jurisdiction of the key Ways and Means Committee.

Before passage, the House added a provision giving itself expanded jurisdiction over government spy agencies such as the Central Intelligence Agency.

Administrator Given Job Of Making Up Agendas

The county administrator will take over responsibility for preparing planning commission agendas, it was unanimously decided yesterday by the Marin County Board of Supervisors. (Other Marin supervisors stories, page 1)

The board's action, with Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. absent, removes the responsibility from Planning Director Werner von Gundell, who has been privately criticized in recent months by several commissioners for incomplete preparation of matters coming before the commission.

The shift was proposed by supervisors Arrigoni and Gary T. Giacomini. It directs all county departments to "provide the administrator with the necessary staff and information on a timely basis so that he may successfully discharge the duties we are assigning . . ."

Giacomini told his colleagues yesterday that adoption of the county general plan created a need for greater coordination among various departments on items coming before the commission.

He said planning has gone beyond traditional land use planning and now involves a wider range of concerns such as housing and employment.

County Administrator John F. Barrows will be able to command more involvement from various departments than has occurred in the past, he added.

The aim is to provide the planning commission with the same "cohesive presentations" from departments that are provided the board of supervisors, Giacomini continued.

Currently, he said, some departments either are not asked for information on planning matters or don't bother responding.

Von Gundell said he supported the proposal, but wanted clarification on several points.

The planning director sought, and won, assurances that the county administrator's new responsibilities would not include overseeing the day-to-day operations of the planning department or its work program.

"It's a good idea and I think we should do it," von Gundell told the board, after being assured Barrows' responsibilities would be limited to insuring agenda materials are complete and ready for hearing.

One member of the audience requested the matter be delayed for study of its implications. "I want time to see what's going on," she said.

Giacomini responded that his proposal calls for a review sometime in the future of the administrator's handling of commission agendas.

Chairman Michael Wornum, in voting for the proposal, said at first he was "alarmed that this was a way of cutting down on the authority of the planning department . . . but it may create more technical efficiency. As you know, I don't want to see the planning department eroded."

League Focuses On Lobbying

By REBECCA LARSEN
(Second of two articles)

In its early years, the Marin Conservation League pioneered in preserving open space by purchasing it, but in the last decade, it has become more of a political lobby for preserving the county's amenities through such legislation as rezoning.

It takes stands on government proposals, development projects and ballot propositions. It has groups of citizen watchdogs keeping an eye on building proposals and changes in laws throughout the county. It tries to coordinate efforts of pressure groups and government agencies in various environmental concerns.

The league still does put up some money for land, of course. For example, last year, it donated $14,000, matched by equal funds from the Audubon Canyon Ranch, to buy a 32-acre marsh on Tomales Bay. The property then was dedicated to a league founder, Caroline S. Livermore. (She and the three other founders will be honored at a picnic and ceremonies Saturday on Angel Island.)

ROBERT F. RAAB
Weighs gains

But according to league president Robert F. Raab of San Anselmo, the mass land buys engineered by the league in the 1940s and 1950s probably belong to the past.

"At one time it was possible to acquire land by just raising money and asking the supervisors for matching funds," he says. "But now land is so expensive, and the things we want to buy are too extensive. We want to preserve whole ridges in urban areas — like the North Ridge. That means you're talking about millions of dollars."

Mary Summers, a former league president, notes that another reason for the group's change in tactics was that the public's mood changed from indifference towards the environment to deep concern for saving green space.

"The whole citizenry of the county has awakened now; the board of supervisors now recognizes a need. We have a parks department and bond money. The county and cities are now doing the kind of land buying that the league was doing in the forties and fifties."

Instead of focusing on one project at a time as the league founders did, notes league director Emma Gilman of Larkspur, the organization now is involved in dozens of projects at once.

"You have to have people informed about planning commission actions on zoning; on what the supervisors are doing on the county general plan. So many problems in the county are interrelated with environmental concerns now that you can't ignore them either — like questions of transportation and housing. Things are a lot more complex these days."

The league is divided now into separate units in Northern, Southern and West Marin. Members from each section try to watch over their area and come up with stands that the entire league can follow. "It's impossible for everyone to follow the whole county at once," says Mrs. Gilman.

With so many areas to follow, the league always needs new members — for their volunteer labor as well as their dues, says Raab. There are about 1,500 members now, and the league is conducting a membership drive this fall.

In the last 10 years, Raab thinks, the league's major accomplishments were: Working on a county logging ordinance and a county tidal waterways ordinance protecting areas not sheltered by the Bay Conservation and Development Commission and playing a major role in the establishment of Point Reyes National Seashore and the Golden Gate National Recreation area. Several league members have been appointed to a citizens advisory committee to help the federal government with planning for the recreation area.

The league also has supported the county general plan and worked for saving agriculture in the county. It has advocated saving marshlands in east Corte Madera from development as a shopping center. It has opposed the building of the warm springs dam in Sonoma county on the grounds it would encourage unchecked growth in Sonoma and Marin. It has tried to coordinate efforts to save North Ridge, the open hilltops between Mill Valley, Larkspur and Corte Madera.

In all these areas, the league plays a part, says Raab, but it is part of a broad movement now of governmental and private organizations.

For the future, he foresees that the league will continue to support land use planning in the county and state. "We want to keep our greenbelts and ridgetops open between communities. We want to preserve agriculture and keep our ocean shoreline undeveloped."

Although the environmental movement has caught on around the country, Raab believes Marin County will continue to play a pioneering role.

"Marin has always been in the state of being the place where the action starts in environmental affairs. We've learned a lot here that's useful to others, and in a lot of ways we're still far ahead. We always find that out when we visit Southern California, and they start asking us what's going on up here."

Chief Kelly Quashes Report On Quiz Of Youth In Slaying

A confidential report on the propriety of San Rafael police in questioning a 12-year-old Terra Linda youth in connection with the slaying of Lucy Ann Gilbride will remain secret for now.

San Rafael Police Chief Lawrence R. Kelly said yesterday he hopes to meet soon with Jeannette Pomeroy, mother of Daniel Pomeroy, in hopes "the matter can be resolved."

"The matter" is Mrs. Pomeroy's claim, aired last month before the Marin County Human Rights Commission that her son's rights were violated when questioned by inspectors Bart W. Stinson and Raymond Maynard.

She charged that her son was taken from his home under false pretenses and held for more than five hours without being allowed to telephone her.

Pending his meeting with Mrs. Pomeroy, Kelly said, a report on an in-house investigation into the questioning session will not be released.

The chief refused to say if the report exonerates the officers, but other sources said it clears them of any wrongdoing.

Kelly, when first approached by the Independent-Journal about the report, said it was up to the Marin district attorney's office to release it. (The human rights commission had asked the district attorney and the Marin Grand Jury to look into Mrs. Pomeroy's allegations.)

But after he was told the district attorney has said his office will have nothing to do with the case unless someone wants to file criminal charges against the officers, the chief backed off, saying he won't release the report until meeting with Mrs. Pomeroy, and perhaps not then either.

Mrs. Gilbride, 52-year-old wife of Robert Gilbride, vice principal of Terra Linda High School, was found clubbed and stabbed to death in the family home Aug. 27.

Hearing Set Nov. 12 On New Service Area South Of Novato

A hearing on creation of a new county service area to purchase open space in the South Novato area was set yesterday for Nov. 12 by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

The proposed taxing agency, proposed by supervisors Arnold M. Baptiste and Michael Wornum, would cover about 4,700 acres from Indian Valley south to the Big Rock Ridge and east to include the Marin Golf and Country Club area.

Baptiste hopes to put the measure before area voters next spring along with a tax rate proposal of 35 cents per $100 assessed valuation to finance a $400,000 bond and maintain the open space.

About 1,300 acres around the Indian Valley Colleges campus is being considered for acquisition. Area residents want the country open space district and City of Novato to aid in the purchase if the city's $3 million open space bond issue is successful next month.

Baptiste disagreed with an objection that it was unfair to include in the tax-levying service district large tracts of land in effect already in open space because of agricultural contracts and zoning that limits the number of dwellings from one per 10 acres to one per 60 acres.

To demonstrate his contention of fairness, he gave as an example the efect on the 1,600-acre Hill Ranch. Under current zoning and the agricultural contracts, which prevent development until 1981, the tax rate (based on this year's figures) would be $28, he said. That would increase to about $350 as the contract nears its 1981 expiration date.

"I don't think we're being unfair," he said. The $28 figure is about what the owner of a $40,000 home will pay, he added.

The Marin County Board Of Supervisors Also:

APPOINTMENT — Appointed Barbara Violich, a member of the 1973 grand jury, to the Marin County Airport Land Use Commission.

ROAD — Upheld the appeal of dairy rancher Anthony Silveira that he be allowed to keep a "haul road" built across his ranch north of Novato as part of the Novato Bypass Project. The road was used for hauling rock. The public works department had recommended removal of the road because it lies in the Petaluma Creek flood plain.

PROP 15 — Voted unanimously to endorse Proposition 15 on the Nov. 5 ballot. The measure would remove a constitutional requirement that voters must approve construction of new public housing in their communities.

BUOYS — Authorized the state to install seven mooring buoys off shore from McNear's Beach Park and agreed to pay $140 per year for their maintenance and $210 every five years for repairs and replacement of metal. The county's marine activities committee endorsed the proposal.

MENTAL HEALTH — Were told Dr. James R. Kennedy, a Mill Valley psychiatrist, has been named to the long-vacant position of chief of the crisis unit at the mental health center.

PAY — Amended the salary structure for the assessment appeals board. Members will continue to receive $150 per day for a seven-hour day but $21.43 per hour for a less than seven-hour work day. The commission meets usually once a week during the fall and winter.

One Approved Other Denied

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night approved a permit for an ice cream parlor on Fourth Street, but denied a permit for an auto garage down the block.

The commission issued a permit as requested by owner Philipp Bundschu for an ice cream shop at 1700 Fourth Street. Denied was Sig Herzog's bid for an auto towing and garage facility at 1550 Fourth Street.

The commission also endorsed revisions in the city general plan made by the city council, a spokesman said.

Thief Steals Persian Rugs

A Tamalpais Valley dealer in Persian rugs reported to sheriff's deputies today that $27,750 in carpets was taken last night from his store at 256 Shoreline Highway.

According to deputies, a burglar alarm sounded at the store at Tamalpais Junction at 4:55 a.m., and officers responded. They found an open door but no signs of forced entry and could not decide if anything was missing. Deputies said that the building was checked only moments before the alarm.

When owner Taghi Rezaian went to the store this morning, he said he found 10 rugs missing.

Administrator Given Job Of Making Up Agendas

The county administrator will take over responsibility for preparing planning commission agendas, it was unanimously decided yesterday by the Marin County Board of Supervisors. (Other Marin supervisors stories, page 1)

The board's action, with Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. absent, removes the responsibility from Planning Director Werner von Gundell, who has been privately criticized in recent months by several commissioners for incomplete preparation of matters coming before the commission.

The shift was proposed by supervisors Arrigoni and Gary T. Giacomini. It directs all county departments to "provide the administrator with the necessary staff and information on a timely basis so that he may successfully discharge the duties we are assigning . . ."

Giacomini told his colleagues yesterday that adoption of the county general plan created a need for greater coordination among various departments on items coming before the commission.

He said planning has gone beyond traditional land use planning and now involves a wider range of concerns such as housing and employment.

County Administrator John F. Barrows will be able to command more involvement from various departments than has occurred in the past, he added.

The aim is to provide the planning commission with the same "cohesive presentations" from departments that are provided the board of supervisors, Giacomini continued.

Currently, he said, some departments either are not asked for information on planning matters or don't bother responding.

Von Gundell said he supported the proposal, but wanted clarification on several points.

The planning director sought, and won, assurances that the county administrator's new responsibilities would not include overseeing the day-to-day operations of the planning department or its work program.

"It's a good idea and I think we should do it," von Gundell told the board, after being assured Barrows' responsibilities would be limited to insuring agenda materials are complete and ready for hearing.

One member of the audience requested the matter be delayed for study of its implications. "I want time to see what's going on," she said.

Giacomini responded that his proposal calls for a review sometime in the future of the administrator's handling of commission agendas.

Chairman Michael Wornum, in voting for the proposal, said at first he was "alarmed that this was a way of cutting down on the authority of the planning department . . . but it may create more technical efficiency. As you know, I don't want to see the planning department eroded."

GUNNAR MYRDAL
. . . for economics

Von Hayek, Myrdal Win Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Austrian Friedrich von Hayek and Swede Gunnar Myrdal today were awarded the 1974 Nobel Prize for economics for pioneering work in the theory of money and their successful contributions to central economic theory, the Royal Academy of Sciences announced.

In Oslo, Former Prime Minister Eisaku Sato of Japan and former Irish Foreign Minister Sean McBride shared this year's Nobel Peace prize last night for their contributions "to peace in our times."

According to the Swedish Academy of Sciences both von Hayek and Myrdal carried out "important interdisciplinary research so successfully that their combined contribution should be awarded the Prize for Economic Science."

The specific citation said the award and $123,000 was given to the two men "for their work in the theory of money and economic fluctuations and for their penetrating analysis of the interdependence of economic, social and institutional phenomena."

Reached in Salzburg, Austria, von Hayek said "the prize is a big honor for me and the coronation for my 50 years of work in the scientific field. I did not expect this in any way. I was taken completely by surprise."

The academy said both of this year's economics winners have the ability to find new and original ways of posing questions, "put forward new ideas on causes and politics, a characteristic that often makes them somewhat controversial."

"This is only natural when the field of research is extended to include factors and linkages which economists usually take for granted or neglect," the academy said.

Von Hayek, 75, of Salzburg, Austria, currently lectures at the Rikkyo University in Tokyo. Myrdal, 75, of Stockholm, is currently working at the City University of New York Graduate School.

In a surprise announcement yesterday, the Norwegian Parliament committee presented Sato and McBride with the 1974 Nobel Peace Prize. "Each in his own way contributed to peace," said the committee announcement. "Their efforts were instrumental in contributing to peace in our times."

FIRST TRICK

Declarer won the first trick in dummy with the queen of clubs. He counted six other fast tricks and saw that two additional tricks were needed. All of this was in the best tradition.

South saw that spades was the longest and strangest suit. Without giving the matter any further thought, declarer got to his hand with a heart and led the jack to spades for a finesse.

East was happy to take the queen of spades and return a club. West was just as happy to take four club tricks. Down one.

POOR BIDDING

"Poor bidding," North complained at the end of the hand. "At spades we can't possibly lose more than one spade, one diamond and one club."

"I had a book response of two no-trump," South pointed out. "The books must be wrong."

And there the matter was dropped.

Perhaps the bidding was wrong at that, but try leading dummy's nine of diamonds for a finesse at the second trick. West can win the first or second diamond trick, but he cannot hurt declarer because he is on the wrong side of the king of clubs.

To put it another way, diamonds is the suit that avoids danger. No matter what West returns, South makes the contract with two spades, three hearts, three diamonds and one club.

Von Hayek, Myrdal Win Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Austrian Friedrich von Hayek and Swede Gunnar Myrdal today were awarded the 1974 Nobel Prize for economics for pioneering work in the theory of money and their successful contributions to central economic theory, the Royal Academy of Sciences announced.

In Oslo, Former Prime Minister Eisaku Sato of Japan and former Irish Foreign Minister Sean McBride shared this year's Nobel Peace prize last night for their contributions "to peace in our times."

According to the Swedish Academy of Sciences both von Hayek and Myrdal carried out "important interdisciplinary research so successfully that their combined contribution should be awarded the Prize for Economic Science."

The specific citation said the award and $123,000 was given to the two men "for their work in the theory of money and economic fluctuations and for their penetrating analysis of the interdependence of economic, social and institutional phenomena."

Reached in Salzburg, Austria, von Hayek said "the prize is a big honor for me and the coronation for my 50 years of work in the scientific field. I did not expect this in any way. I was taken completely by surprise."

The academy said both of this year's economics winners have the ability to find new and original ways of posing questions, "put forward new ideas on causes and politics, a characteristic that often makes them somewhat controversial."

"This is only natural when the field of research is extended to include factors and linkages which economists usually take for granted or neglect," the academy said.

Von Hayek, 75, of Salzburg, Austria, currently lectures at the Rikkyo University in Tokyo. Myrdal, 75, of Stockholm, is currently working at the City University of New York Graduate School.

In a surprise announcement yesterday, the Norwegian Parliament committee presented Sato and McBride with the 1974 Nobel Peace Prize. "Each in his own way contributed to peace," said the committee announcement. "Their efforts were instrumental in contributing to peace in our times."

Rhetoric Reigns At Zellerbach

By BLAKE A. SAMSON

"DON JUAN IN HELL," a play in two parts, actually Act III of the four-act "Man and Superman" by George Bernard Shaw, directed by John Houseman; production stage manager, Larry Pool; stage manager, Dean Norton; wardrobe, Christopher Sork. The cast: Don Juan, Ricardo Montalban; the Devil, Edward Mulhare; Commander, Kurt Kasznar; Dona Ana, Myrna Loy.

Although George Bernard Shaw is generally thought to be a devotee of Wagner due to his treatise "The Perfect Wagnerite," his preference was in fact for Mozart. Inspired by Mozart's "Don Giovanni," Shaw set Don Juan, the Commander and Dona Ana into a philosophic debate and dream sequence which he called "Don Juan in Hell."

This debate with the Devil, actually the third act of Shaw's play "Man and Superman" is often excerpted and was presented by itself yesterday at Zellerbach Auditorium on the University of California's Berkeley campus with a cast of well-known Broadway actors.

Ricardo Montalban as Don Juan and Edward Mulhare as the Devil were the strongest members of the cast and were satisfactorily supported by Kurt Kasznar as the Commander and Myrna Loy as his daughter, Dona Ana. John Houseman, winner of an Academy Award as the law professor in the movie "Paper Chase," directed.

Houseman in that movie so clearly presented the complexities of legal philosophy that I wished at times last night that he would replace one or two of his own cast in "Don Juan in Hell." Perhaps then some of the convoluted, long-winded and dogmatic pitfalls of Shaw's difficult rhetoric might have been avoided.

An interpretative reading rather than a theatrical presentation, "Don Juan in Hell" has much to offer those seeking an evening of probing wit and commentary, rather than mere entertainment. The experience was sufficient to send most of the audience out into the night agitatedly continuing the debate.

Next to Mulhare's understated acting and British articulation, Montalban seemed at first to overgesticulate, but he was fighting an uphill battle. Although Don Juan is given the longer monologues, Shaw has made Mulhare's role as the Devil the more appealing of the two. This is essentially Shaw debating with himself and, like playing bridge with oneself, Shaw has failed to play each hand evenly. Thus Montalban usually finds himself finessed by the Devil.

At first, the debate centers around a basic premise of the Devil's! Given the Hell on Earth and the dullness of Heaven, it is "heaven" to be in Hell. This twist gives Shaw the opportunity to pun continuously and to satirize man, morality and earthly life with cutting insight: All the wickedness on earth is done in the name of good, the most conscious of all animals, man, is the most blundering; progress is but sleight of hand, change passing for progress.

After the intermission, the subject turns to woman's role in society with a predictable intensity of debate and a few catcalls from the audience. There are some digs at Gounod, Dante, Milton and Rembrandt as well as continuous jabs at organized religion. In one speech Shaw puts the fathers of the church in the same class as fleas, yet nothing approaches the vitriol reserved for English society.

When Shaw feels he is getting too philosophical, he has the Commander throw in a line or two or comic relief and then the Socratic dialogue continues. Thus Kasznar's sheep-doggy delivery doesn't overly interfere, and Miss Loy can pass with the singular intonation (set rather high and strident) which she uses for most of her lines.

On top of the already dry humor from Shaw, the tendency by Mulhare, Kasznar and Miss Loy to deadpan their delivery and responses is a bit like calling straight gin in a dry martini, but for an evening of extra dry gin over Shaw's philosophic ice, "Don Juan in Hell" is reservedly recommended. It will be repeated tonight and every night at 8 o'clock through Sunday at Zellerbach Auditorium.

'Streetcar' Is Planned At Sonoma

The Tennessee Williams play, "A Streetcar Named Desire," is scheduled for 11 performances in Room 76 of Ives Hall of music at Sonoma State College.

Noon performances are planned for Oct. 28 and Nov. 1.

Performances beginning at 8 p.m. will take place on Oct. 18, 19, 23, 24, 25, 26 and 31, and on Nov. 1 and 2.

The student production, directed by Kent Weishaus who last spring directed the campus production of "Happy Birthday, Wanda June," depicts the tale of a genteel Southern woman who comes to New Orleans to stay with her sister Stella and Stella's somewhat crude husband, Stanley.

Blanche, the gentlewoman, is portrayed by Kathleen Wolfe of Rohnert Park. Stella is played by Corisa Hickman of Cotati and Gene Watkins of Santa Rosa will portray Stanley.

Admission will be $1 for students and $2 for all others.

ROCK REVIEW

Clover Plays Unevenly; Alice Leaves 'Em Yelling For More

By GEORGE NEVIN

SAN FRANCISCO — Alice Stuart and Clover must have had some sort of agreement last night.

Otherwise, how to explain the one-two musical wallop the two Marin-based rock bands delivered to an appreciative audience at San Francisco's Winterland?

First, Clover, an accomplished but spotty group, softened them up with a solid, though slightly overlong, set.

Then, with about 1,000 dancing, whistling fans worked up to the proper controlled frenzy, Miss Stuart came on and delivered the knockout punch — a 50-minute, no-holds-barred set that had them screaming for more.

It was a satisfying performance for both bands, especially for Miss Stuart, and it demonstrated once again what just about everybody who follows the Bay Area rock scene has been saying — Alice is trembling on the brink of a big, nationwide splash.

The concert was one of the first of a new series of events at Bill Graham's aging hockey rink turned rock palace. The Tuesday night concerts will spotlight local talent at a price ($2 in advance) that's refreshingly affordable. It's a welcome trend away from the high-powered and overpriced concerts that have become the norm in the rock field these days.

The night began with a set from Steamin' Freeman, featuring the lyrics of Freeman Lockwood, and ended with a special guest group, the Atlanta Rhythm Section from the Deep South.

In between, though, it as an all-Marin extravaganza.

Clover, which continues to show steady, if unspectacular, progress, delivered a solid, crowd-pleasing but uneven set.

Typically for the group, it started slow, with a few nondescript tunes competently but unimaginatively played.

But soon, things picked up behind the old Clover standby, "Wine and Cigarettes — I've Had Enough," a bittersweet ode to a hangover. The song was carried by lead guitarist John McPhee and by Alex Call, the rhythm guitarist.

Then the band swung into "Santa Fe," which gave McPhee a chance to show off his considerable pedal steel talents. The song must have touched just about every nostalgic nerve in the house with its sad strains.

From maudlin, the mood went to boogie, then the set hit its apex with a rousing yodel performance by Call, who did yeoman duty all night long on vocals. Unfortunately, a few anticlimatic tunes took the edge off the swaying crowd's enthusiasm.

Clover's big failing is its lack of consistency. If the group is to draw more national attention, its highs are going to have to outweigh its lows.

With only a short break, Alice Stuart and her band came on stage and instantly proved that it was she the crowd had come to hear.

Dancing around in a skimpy knit top, heavily fringed, and silver, sequined pants, Alice turned in a professional and workmanlike guitar performance that left no doubt she is that rarity — a woman guitarist who fronts an all-male band with authority.

Soon after the start of her set, Miss Stuart squandered her best song, Hank Snow's "Golden Rocket," the gem of "Believing," her second album.

In an unusual arrangement that had bassist Karl Sevareid singing harmony, Alice failed to cash in on the quality that makes "Golden Rocket" really work on the record — her pure, guileless voice.

Still, it left the appreciative crowd stamping.

Through a bluesy, sensual "Where Can My Baby Be?", the set progressed to the Dylanesque "Rock and Roll Queen" and a soft ballad, "You Win Again." The latter featured a raw, searing solo by Jon Detherage on keyboards that probed the edges of the blues.

Miss Stuart concluded with a lightening series of solid rock offerings that left the frantic crowd begging — vainly — for more.

ACT Opens With 'King Richard'

The American Conservatory Theater will stage the official opening of the 1974-75 season with a performance of Shakespeare's "King Richard III" Saturday at 8:30 p.m. at the Geary Theater in San Francisco.

The play is one of nine to be offered this season. The others are "Pillars of the Community," by Henrik Ibsen; "Horatio," by Ron Whyte, directed by College of Marin's James C. Dunn; "Jumpers," by Tom Stoppard; "Cyrano de Bergerac," by Edmond Rostand; "Taming of the Shrew," by Shakespeare; "Street Scene," by Elmer Rice; "The Ruling Class," by Peter Barnes, and "The Threepenny Opera," by Bertolt Brecht and Kurt Weill.

"King Richard III" is directed by William Ball and stars ACT newcomer Randall Duk Kim in the title role and Elizabeth Cole as Queen Elizabeth.

"Pillars of the Community," translated and directed by Allen Fletcher, opens officially Monday and also will play Tuesday, both at 8:30 p.m.

A reduced-rate preview performance of "Richard" will be given tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. Previews of "Pillars" will be held tonight, tomorrow night, Saturday afternoon and Sunday night, all at 8:30 p.m. except for the 2:30 p.m. Matinee Saturday.

The San Francisco Opera has announced a cast change in Rossini's "La Cenerentola," which opens at the Opera House next Wednesday at 8 p.m. Nassrin Azarmi, soprano, takes the role of Clorinda from Shigemi Matsumoto, whose close relative is ill.

The opera this week performs Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde" at 7 p.m. Friday and 7 p.m. Tuesday, Strauss' "Salome" at 8 p.m. Saturday and Puccini's "Madama Butterfly" at 2 p.m. Sunday.

NBC Announces A Cancellation

NEW YORK (AP) — The NBC television network said yesterday it is cancelling "Sierra," one of nine new NBC series, after the show's 11th program is broadcast in December. No replacement has been decided on yet, the network said.

"Sierra," an hour-long adventure series about U.S. Forest Rangers in the Sierra Nevadas, is broadcast Thursday evenings. It first appeared on NBC Sept. 12.

Low ratings were blamed by NBC for its cancellation, the first announced by any of the three networks during the 1974-75 season.

Rhetoric Reigns At Zellerbach

By BLAKE A. SAMSON

"DON JUAN IN HELL," a play in two parts, actually Act III of the four-act "Man and Superman" by George Bernard Shaw, directed by John Houseman; production stage manager, Larry Pool; stage manager, Dean Norton; wardrobe, Christopher Sork. The cast: Don Juan, Ricardo Montalban; the Devil, Edward Mulhare; Commander, Kurt Kasznar; Dona Ana, Myrna Loy.

Although George Bernard Shaw is generally thought to be a devotee of Wagner due to his treatise "The Perfect Wagnerite," his preference was in fact for Mozart. Inspired by Mozart's "Don Giovanni," Shaw set Don Juan, the Commander and Dona Ana into a philosophic debate and dream sequence which he called "Don Juan in Hell."

This debate with the Devil, actually the third act of Shaw's play "Man and Superman" is often excerpted and was presented by itself yesterday at Zellerbach Auditorium on the University of California's Berkeley campus with a cast of well-known Broadway actors.

Ricardo Montalban as Don Juan and Edward Mulhare as the Devil were the strongest members of the cast and were satisfactorily supported by Kurt Kasznar as the Commander and Myrna Loy as his daughter, Dona Ana. John Houseman, winner of an Academy Award as the law professor in the movie "Paper Chase," directed.

Houseman in that movie so clearly presented the complexities of legal philosophy that I wished at times last night that he would replace one or two of his own cast in "Don Juan in Hell." Perhaps then some of the convoluted, long-winded and dogmatic pitfalls of Shaw's difficult rhetoric might have been avoided.

An interpretative reading rather than a theatrical presentation, "Don Juan in Hell" has much to offer those seeking an evening of probing wit and commentary, rather than mere entertainment. The experience was sufficient to send most of the audience out into the night agitatedly continuing the debate.

Next to Mulhare's understated acting and British articulation, Montalban seemed at first to overgesticulate, but he was fighting an uphill battle. Although Don Juan is given the longer monologues, Shaw has made Mulhare's role as the Devil the more appealing of the two. This is essentially Shaw debating with himself and, like playing bridge with oneself, Shaw has failed to play each hand evenly. Thus Montalban usually finds himself finessed by the Devil.

At first, the debate centers around a basic premise of the Devil's! Given the Hell on Earth and the dullness of Heaven, it is "heaven" to be in Hell. This twist gives Shaw the opportunity to pun continuously and to satirize man, morality and earthly life with cutting insight: All the wickedness on earth is done in the name of good, the most conscious of all animals, man, is the most blundering; progress is but sleight of hand, change passing for progress.

After the intermission, the subject turns to woman's role in society with a predictable intensity of debate and a few catcalls from the audience. There are some digs at Gounod, Dante, Milton and Rembrandt as well as continuous jabs at organized religion. In one speech Shaw puts the fathers of the church in the same class as fleas, yet nothing approaches the vitriol reserved for English society.

When Shaw feels he is getting too philosophical, he has the Commander throw in a line or two or comic relief and then the Socratic dialogue continues. Thus Kasznar's sheep-doggy delivery doesn't overly interfere, and Miss Loy can pass with the singular intonation (set rather high and strident) which she uses for most of her lines.

On top of the already dry humor from Shaw, the tendency by Mulhare, Kasznar and Miss Loy to deadpan their delivery and responses is a bit like calling straight gin in a dry martini, but for an evening of extra dry gin over Shaw's philosophic ice, "Don Juan in Hell" is reservedly recommended. It will be repeated tonight and every night at 8 o'clock through Sunday at Zellerbach Auditorium.

'Streetcar' Is Planned At Sonoma

The Tennessee Williams play, "A Streetcar Named Desire," is scheduled for 11 performances in Room 76 of Ives Hall of music at Sonoma State College.

Noon performances are planned for Oct. 28 and Nov. 1.

Performances beginning at 8 p.m. will take place on Oct. 18, 19, 23, 24, 25, 26 and 31, and on Nov. 1 and 2.

The student production, directed by Kent Weishaus who last spring directed the campus production of "Happy Birthday, Wanda June," depicts the tale of a genteel Southern woman who comes to New Orleans to stay with her sister Stella and Stella's somewhat crude husband, Stanley.

Blanche, the gentlewoman, is portrayed by Kathleen Wolfe of Rohnert Park. Stella is played by Corisa Hickman of Cotati and Gene Watkins of Santa Rosa will portray Stanley.

Admission will be $1 for students and $2 for all others.

Clover Plays Unevenly; Alice Leaves 'Em Yelling For More

By GEORGE NEVIN

SAN FRANCISCO — Alice Stuart and Clover must have had some sort of agreement last night.

Otherwise, how to explain the one-two musical wallop the two Marin-based rock bands delivered to an appreciative audience at San Francisco's Winterland?

First, Clover, an accomplished but spotty group, softened them up with a solid, though slightly overlong, set.

Then, with about 1,000 dancing, whistling fans worked up to the proper controlled frenzy, Miss Stuart came on and delivered the knockout punch — a 50-minute, no-holds-barred set that had them screaming for more.

It was a satisfying performance for both bands, especially for Miss Stuart, and it demonstrated once again what just about everybody who follows the Bay Area rock scene has been saying — Alice is trembling on the brink of a big, nationwide splash.

The concert was one of the first of a new series of events at Bill Graham's aging hockey rink turned rock palace. The Tuesday night concerts will spotlight local talent at a price ($2 in advance) that's refreshingly affordable. It's a welcome trend away from the high-powered and overpriced concerts that have become the norm in the rock field these days.

The night began with a set from Steamin' Freeman, featuring the lyrics of Freeman Lockwood, and ended with a special guest group, the Atlanta Rhythm Section from the Deep South.

In between, though, it as an all-Marin extravaganza.

Clover, which continues to show steady, if unspectacular, progress, delivered a solid, crowd-pleasing but uneven set.

Typically for the group, it started slow, with a few nondescript tunes competently but unimaginatively played.

But soon, things picked up behind the old Clover standby, "Wine and Cigarettes — I've Had Enough," a bittersweet ode to a hangover. The song was carried by lead guitarist John McPhee and by Alex Call, the rhythm guitarist.

Then the band swung into "Santa Fe," which gave McPhee a chance to show off his considerable pedal steel talents. The song must have touched just about every nostalgic nerve in the house with its sad strains.

From maudlin, the mood went to boogie, then the set hit its apex with a rousing yodel performance by Call, who did yeoman duty all night long on vocals. Unfortunately, a few anticlimatic tunes took the edge off the swaying crowd's enthusiasm.

Clover's big failing is its lack of consistency. If the group is to draw more national attention, its highs are going to have to outweigh its lows.

With only a short break, Alice Stuart and her band came on stage and instantly proved that it was she the crowd had come to hear.

Dancing around in a skimpy knit top, heavily fringed, and silver, sequined pants, Alice turned in a professional and workmanlike guitar performance that left no doubt she is that rarity — a woman guitarist who fronts an all-male band with authority.

Soon after the start of her set, Miss Stuart squandered her best song, Hank Snow's "Golden Rocket," the gem of "Believing," her second album.

In an unusual arrangement that had bassist Karl Sevareid singing harmony, Alice failed to cash in on the quality that makes "Golden Rocket" really work on the record — her pure, guileless voice.

Still, it left the appreciative crowd stamping.

Through a bluesy, sensual "Where Can My Baby Be?", the set progressed to the Dylanesque "Rock and Roll Queen" and a soft ballad, "You Win Again." The latter featured a raw, searing solo by Jon Detherage on keyboards that probed the edges of the blues.

Miss Stuart concluded with a lightening series of solid rock offerings that left the frantic crowd begging — vainly — for more.

ACT Opens With 'King Richard'

The American Conservatory Theater will stage the official opening of the 1974-75 season with a performance of Shakespeare's "King Richard III" Saturday at 8:30 p.m. at the Geary Theater in San Francisco.

The play is one of nine to be offered this season. The others are "Pillars of the Community," by Henrik Ibsen; "Horatio," by Ron Whyte, directed by College of Marin's James C. Dunn; "Jumpers," by Tom Stoppard; "Cyrano de Bergerac," by Edmond Rostand; "Taming of the Shrew," by Shakespeare; "Street Scene," by Elmer Rice; "The Ruling Class," by Peter Barnes, and "The Threepenny Opera," by Bertolt Brecht and Kurt Weill.

"King Richard III" is directed by William Ball and stars ACT newcomer Randall Duk Kim in the title role and Elizabeth Cole as Queen Elizabeth.

"Pillars of the Community," translated and directed by Allen Fletcher, opens officially Monday and also will play Tuesday, both at 8:30 p.m.

A reduced-rate preview performance of "Richard" will be given tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. Previews of "Pillars" will be held tonight, tomorrow night, Saturday afternoon and Sunday night, all at 8:30 p.m. except for the 2:30 p.m. Matinee Saturday.

The San Francisco Opera has announced a cast change in Rossini's "La Cenerentola," which opens at the Opera House next Wednesday at 8 p.m. Nassrin Azarmi, soprano, takes the role of Clorinda from Shigemi Matsumoto, whose close relative is ill.

The opera this week performs Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde" at 7 p.m. Friday and 7 p.m. Tuesday, Strauss' "Salome" at 8 p.m. Saturday and Puccini's "Madama Butterfly" at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Let State Know We Need That Bus Lane

Three years ago, the California Legislature passed a bill authorizing the state Division of Highways to include lanes for mass transit in future highway land acquisitions and widening projects.

Division of Highways people, however, were wedded to the idea that roads are just for automobiles and trucks. The notion of having roadways designed for the maximum movement of people was foreign to them. They "never heard of such a thing."

Redesignating the Division of Highways as the Department of Transportation apparently has made no difference in the thinking of its policy makers. To them, roads are not for moving people; they are just for moving cars.

WHEN WIDENING of Highway 101 from Richardson Bay Bridge to the Greenbrae interchange was begun, Golden Gate Bridge District officials asked the state highway designers to provide a lane for buses.

According to Dale W. Luehring, the bridge district's general manager, the bridge officials thought they had a commitment to do so from Division 4 of the Department of Transportation.

They found out otherwise.

TOMORROW at 8 p.m. in San Rafael City Hall, the Department of Transportation will hold a public hearing on whether to set aside an exclusive bus lane on the stretch.

Doing so will speed the buses on their San Francisco-Marin runs. It will enable bus commuters to sleep a little later, to get home a littler sooner.

It will still give more room for automobiles than they now have, so those who must commute by car — or who insist on doing so because they don't like public transportation — may also be able to sleep a little later, get home a little sooner.

It will, of course, make more difference for the bus riders.

And it will make more efficient use of the land taken for the roadway, because at least as many people can be moved on one exclusive bus lane as on three auto lanes.

THERE CAN BE no end to traffic congestion without provisions to make mass transit more rapid and dependable.

The cheapest, simplest way to do this is to set aside exclusive lanes for the buses.

If we hope to bring some orderliness, some comfort, some reason to the nightmare of commuting, it is time we quit pretending that the one-passenger to five-passenger car has the sole right to the highways.

If we want to get that message across to the State Department of Transportation's bureaucrats, we'd better be on hand tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the San Rafael City Hall.

Simple Way To Increase Sewage Plant Capacity

In my experience I have had some interest in water pollution and sewage plants. I would like to suggest that Las Gallinas Sanitary District and the others that I read about in your estimable paper investigate the use of oxygen instead of air in their secondary (i.e., activated sludge) treaters. Air contains only 20 per cent oxygen so that the substitution of 100 per cent oxygen can increase concentration in the aqueous phase up to five times as much.

I have read of cases where the use of oxygen increased the plant's capacity 50 per cent or more and reduced effluent pollution 50 per cent or more. The conversion to oxygen is simple, quick, and cheap. Running expenses are very reasonable.

If tertiary treatment is still required, I would suggest the use of ozone to purify the effluent. Ozone is successfully used in France (even in Paris) to produce drinking water (eau nouveaux). Chlorination of sewage plant effluent can produce long-lasting poisonous chlorinated residues such as pentachlorophenol (an excellent wood preservative because of its long-lasting, highly poisonous nature).

Spending $20 Million To Save $3.4 Million

The deputy director of the Department of Consumer Affairs said that Governor Reagan must take the blame for any failure of that state agency to protect California consumers because their request for more money was refused.

The budget is now $20 million for the CDA, whose director, Patricia Gayman, stated that its activities saved California consumers "more than $3.4 million during the last fiscal year."

Spending $20 million to save $3.4 million, while largely typical of government operations, is still such that the governor's action should be congratulated and the department abolished.

The thought of the future without a Reagan to veto the irresponsible spending ideas from the likes of the Morettis, Moscones et al is downright frightening.

Think what our taxes would be had he not vetoed the hundreds of wild-eyed, costly bills that the politicians are so good at dreaming up. Unfortunately, they apparently spend no time on what is of vital necessity — economizing.

Budget Discloses Excessive Overhead

We do not and should not spend another penny on consultants. We the citizens should do some studying ourselves and begin to ask our supervisors some questions, questions which they should have asked the administrator.

According to the 1973-74 final budget, there are 251 employees in the Department of Social Services. Their yearly salaries are $3,154,000. They distribute $8,154,000 in welfare money. Without benefit of the data processing machine, one can easily figure out that it costs the taxpayer $1,050 to distribute $2,700.

What can we do about this?

Council Should Stick To City's Business

At the Sept. 24 meeting of the San Anselmo City Council, one of the more important items on the agenda was the proposal by our mayor to "decriminalize" the use of drugs and to have our council — but not necessarily our citizens — notify the state legislature of our concurrence. It is not my intent to go into the merits of this proposal but I should like to quote Mr. Colteaux, as reported in the I-J of Sept. 25: "This council has no political jurisdiction to vote one way or another on this thing (drug laws). I'm concerned that we're using this forum as a debating society for general questions that aren't related to what we do on the council. We have to get on with the very boring job of running San Anselmo." I don't often find myself in agreement with Mr. Colteaux — possibly because hardly anyone in the council chamber can hear what he says — but this is one of the exceptions.

Granting Mr. Colteaux' premise to be that people are elected to the various levels of government to hold jurisdiction in specified fields, then the citizens of San Anselmo, who are also citizens of the county, the state and the Federal government, who agree with Mr. Blinder's thinking (as I do, up to a point) may make their feelings known to those having jurisdiction — in this case the state legislators — instead of spinning our wheels in futile council discussion and public seminars. The San Anselmo Council would be well advised to leave the drug laws to those who can do something about them.

There are other areas in which the council is involved where they have no business to be and my main point in writing this letter is to ask: What the hell is the city council doing in the garbage business? What gives these gentlemen the expertise to run a business in which they have no experience? Why should they run a garbage company any more than a saloon or an antique shop or a restaurant or a stable, for example? Regulation is one thing but giving a monopoly (without competitive bidding) or authorizing rates (without audited figures) or imposing a recycling obligation (with which 75 per cent of the users disagree) — these are something else . . .

Doubter Convinced Of Tax Hike Need

My first reaction to Measure J on the November ballot — the school revenue limit tax measure, was "Oh, my God, no! Not more taxes! This school district is rich enough!" Well, I've attended meetings on the subject, read the report of the interim committee, and talked with a few members of that committee, who had initially felt similar to the way I did. The result of this investigation is that I found there was a great deal about school financing and operation that I didn't know. And, I find, lamentably, that I must absolutely agree with the school board and the Interim committee that the passage of Measure J is absolutely essential to the Mill Valley School District, and this not even to maintain the status quo. . .

How did we get into this mess? Three factors are involved. First, the passage of Senage Bill 90. . . The bill froze the amount allowed our district at $1,234 per child per year. This might have been all right except for the other two factors.

The second factor is lowered enrollment; the district has 145 fewer children this year than last, which means a loss of close to $179,000. We have fewer teachers too, but the amount cut in salaries does not equalize out, and many costs remain constant regardless of the number of children.

The third factor is one we are all too well acquainted with: inflation. SB 90 allows only a 2 per cent increase for inflation in an economy which is operating at somewhere around 12 per cent inflationary increase. . .

We are all having to rearrange our financial priorities, but education of the next generation must always come high on that list. . . Even though we may not agree with some of what is going on in the schools, cutting off funds is certainly not the way to improve the quality of education. . . .

Water Moratorium Producer Of Lawsuits

One of the greatest pieces of misinformation to hit voters lately was the comment made by an aspiring candidate for Marin Municipal Water Board when he stated, "No one in his right mind would think of rescinding the water moratorium." Also that there was a water shortage.

If this was correct, why was the moratorium ruled illegal? Why was it proven in superior court that there was no water shortage or likely to be one? It is doubtful that any court wishing to uphold and project constitutional privilege will sustain an appeal of this ruling.

What he should have stated is the fact that there are a great many lawsuits running into the millions against the district and the rather ridiculous moratorium.

Bon Air Road Project Draws Reader's Fire

For many months, Bon Air Road has been a disaster scene because of road reconstruction. We now have two more years of road hassle. Marin General Hospital District board members and the county board of supervisors are honoring an old agreement that is no longer applicable to the situation. The poor (and getting poorer) taxpayer is spending almost half a million dollars so that persons walking from their cars to Marin General need not step across a two-lane road.

There are things we need more — like a Marin General Hospital District board of directors that feels a sense of responsibility when dealing with public funds.

When Did Referendum Right Become Outmoded?

This is re: Martin Mackey's letter of Oct. 4 in which he urges us to replace Article 34 of the state Constitution, which requires that the people must approve tax-supported low-rent housing. He claims that Article 34 discriminates against the poor, is obsolete, costs money, and complains that no other type of housing is subject to referendum.

Article 34 allows even the poor a chance to vote against any further increase in the crushing tax loads that have hurt the poor more than anyone. And since when have free elections and the right of referendum become "outmoded," "old," or "obsolete"? Or for that matter, not worth spending some money on? As for no other type of housing being subject to voter approval, no other types of housing are built with voters' tax money.

Those Masochistic Democrats Show Signs Of Common Sense

WASHINGTON — The psychiatric history of the Democratic Party lately has shown such a consistent pattern of masochism and attempted suicide that any signs of its rational behavior must be examined skeptically. The diagnostician is tempted to make too much of brief flashes of common sense.

That semi-disclaimer is necessary before discussing the scattered recent showings of goodwill among Democrats who seemed blood enemies a few months ago. What unifies them is their mutual interest in winning elections, from congressional district up to White House. There is just a glimmer of a possibility that among them, if not all their supporters, 1974 and 1976 are starting to be more important than 1968 and 1972.

SEN. HENRY JACKSON, D-Wash., among the front-runners for the next presidential nomination, is working very hard in this direction in the absence of competition from Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

Up till Kennedy's withdrawal, Jackson had been openly chasing the nomination and trying to soothe old sores largely because he needed to if he were to have a realistic chance. Perceived as a hawk and the major "conservative" applicant, he had a lot of anti-war liberals to assuage. Now, with Kennedy out, he is stepping up his effort because support previously holding back, waiting for Kennedy's entry, suddenly seems available.

Long before the Kennedy announcement of last month, Jackson went out to Skokie, Ill., to campaign for Abner Mikva. Mikva, who was unseated two years ago, is running to return to Congress. Jackson's visit was significant because Mikva had consistently taken an anti-military position in the House, thus regularly opposing Jackson's stand.

But the Illinois trip was a minor prelude to the senator's stops in New York and Massachusetts since Kennedy withdrew.

AT LAWRENCE, L.I., Jackson spoke at a campaign breakfast for Allard Lowenstein, who also is attempting to return to the capitol after serving one term in 1969-71. Lowenstein, of course, is the man who organized the first anti-war dump-Lyndon Johnson efforts within the party.

After Jackson's appearance, Lowenstein told local reporters he had not made up his mind on whom he would support for the presidential nomination, but that if Jackson were picked by the convention, he would back him. That sounds cool until you consider its source.

Then Jackson outdid even his Lowenstein endorsement by planning to link up last week end with Rep. Robert Drinan, the super-dovish Jesuit priest who represents the Fourth District of Massachusetts.

He had planned to make several stops in New Hampshire, then swing back through New York to appear with Hugh Carey, the Democratic nominee for governor there. That part of his week end was postponed, but at the last minute he was scheduled into a Drinan reception at Waltham instead.

Jackson's aides say his visits were solicited by Mikva and Lowenstein, and that "mutual friends" engineered the appearance at the Drinan reception. Whatever the details, each of those events proves that both the senator and the congressional candidates were thinking ahead, rather than letting bitter memories of the past two presidential election years continue to divide them.

JACKSON IS NOT the only ambitious senator in this conciliatory effort. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas is basing his presidential (or vice presidential) hopes on it. Walter Mondale of Minnesota, labeled the "liberal" candidate, is trying to consolidate his backing in that direction first, but even he is scheduled to speak soon in Mississippi to the AFL-CIO in Jackson. All of the widely greeted dark horses from the South are in favor of a broad national party rather than an exclusive ideological club.

Enough of this adult attitude and the Democrats may find themselves united to defeat Mr. Ford in the future rather than obsessed to refight the Vietnamese war of the past.

Time Has Come For Americans To Face Problems Of Today

WASHINGTON — The capacity of the United States to govern itself is dangerously weakened by continuing preoccupation with Watergate. It is time to put it behind us and get on with governing the country at a time of great peril.

The Watergate scandal, the impeachment proceedings, the resignation and pardon of Richard Nixon have too long immobilized the presidency, stalemated the Congress, and divided the nation.

It can't safely be allowed to continue! We should end recrimination, wrench our gaze from the past and fasten it unwaveringly on the present.

The need to do so is now, not a week or a month from now.

THE ISSUES, which are being neglected are desperately urgent — and getting more urgent every day!

The whole world is in as perilous a plight as it was before the Great Depression in the late '20s and in the months before World War II.

How perilous? What really is at stake today? Nothing less than the survival of democratic government in the United States, the stability of all the western nations, and the threat of a worldwide depression on such a scale as to make its end consequence almost inconceivable.

Here is the evidence from which this somber picture comes:

THE UNITED STATES is thus far making no headway toward arresting — let alone reversing — its crippling inflation. Unless significant progress is soon visible, many Americans will be saying: "Give somebody the power to do it!"

Serious crime is not only imperiling the lives of people on the streets, it is causing more and more people to say: "If the police cannot protect us, we will protect ourselves!"

The standard of living almost everywhere in the world — including Europe, Britain and Japan — is threatened by the 400 per cent increase in the cost of oil imposed by the Arabs for political reasons. Nearly every western nation is in a state of political upheaval because of this condition.

Needed is a self-disciplined willingness by Americans to accept austere voluntary measures to save fuel. But only a united people can do this.

Many of the less-developed nations are overpopulated and underfed. Millions have been starving and still are. As one of the few countries with food surpluses, the United States cannot remain indifferent.

IN THE FACE of problems of such staggering magnitude, the government of the United States — the President, the Congress, the whole people — cannot safely continue to be distracted by the sins of a past administration. Our overriding concern must be the sinews of the new administration.

Unless we look forward and stop looking back, all may be lost!

Brown For President? Bug May Have Bitten

By EARL G. WATERS

Will Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown, Jr. be the next President of the United States? No, the question is not a typographical error. Brown is running for governor of California in this election, not president.

But even before California became the nation's most populous state, its governors were being stricken with the well-known political disease of "Potomac fever".

Earl Warren suffered from it and made two attempts to win the GOP presidential nomination. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown was bitten by the bug the day after he was first elected governor. And Ronald Reagan, only in office a year and a half, attempted a coup at the 1968 GOP convention and his present efforts indicate signs of a relapse.

THE FACT IS that, because of the state's population which gives it the largest delegations at the presidential nominating conventions, anyone elected governor becomes an instant presidential candidate.

Already eastern pundits are including Junior Brown's name in their lists of Democratic prospects in 1976. His injection into the national scene even before his election as governor is established, is largely due to the withdrawal of Sen. Ted Kennedy as a 1976 contender.

It is probably just as unfortunate for young Brown as it is for the people of California that the '76 national political sweepstakes has become mixed up with the immediate contest for governor.

But the campaign from this point on will be clouded by that issue. The question will be whether Brown is sincere in his desire to be govenor or is he merely seeking the office as a stepping stone to higher office? Since that is exactly what he did with the job of secretary of state, there is ground to be suspicious. And Californians have become increasingly bitter about the tendency of their governors to abandon them in the pursuit of national office.

HIS OPPONENT, Republican Houston I. Flournoy, escapes that stigma. Incumbent presidents invariably receive their party's nomination, and President Ford has already signalled he will be a candidate in 1976. If elected governor, Flournoy would not therefore be distracted by presidential ambitions — at least during the first four years.

So Junior Brown is now confronted with the necessity of assuring the voters that, if elected, he would devote his full attention to the job of being governor and not neglect those responsibilities by seeking the presidency.

That may be a tough one to sell.

The San Anselmo Council would be well advised to leave the drug laws to those who can do something about them.

There are other areas in which the council is involved where they have no business to be and my main point in writing this letter is to ask: What the hell is the city council doing in the garbage business? What gives these gentlemen the expertise to run a business in which they have no experience? Why should they run a garbage company any more than a saloon or an antique shop or a restaurant or a stable, for example? Regulation is one thing but giving a monopoly (without competitive bidding) or authorizing rates (without audited figures) or imposing a recycling obligation (with which 75 per cent of the users disagree) — these are something else . . .

Doubter Convinced Of Tax Hike Need

My first reaction to Measure J on the November ballot — the school revenue limit tax measure, was "Oh, my God, no! Not more taxes! This school district is rich enough!" Well, I've attended meetings on the subject, read the report of the interim committee, and talked with a few members of that committee, who had initially felt similar to the way I did. The result of this investigation is that I found there was a great deal about school financing and operation that I didn't know. And, I find, lamentably, that I must absolutely agree with the school board and the Interim committee that the passage of Measure J is absolutely essential to the Mill Valley School District, and this not even to maintain the status quo. . .

How did we get into this mess? Three factors are involved. First, the passage of Senage Bill 90. . . The bill froze the amount allowed our district at $1,234 per child per year. This might have been all right except for the other two factors.

The second factor is lowered enrollment; the district has 145 fewer children this year than last, which means a loss of close to $179,000. We have fewer teachers too, but the amount cut in salaries does not equalize out, and many costs remain constant regardless of the number of children.

The third factor is one we are all too well acquainted with: inflation. SB 90 allows only a 2 per cent increase for inflation in an economy which is operating at somewhere around 12 per cent inflationary increase. . .

We are all having to rearrange our financial priorities, but education of the next generation must always come high on that list. . . Even though we may not agree with some of what is going on in the schools, cutting off funds is certainly not the way to improve the quality of education. . . .

Water Moratorium Producer Of Lawsuits

One of the greatest pieces of misinformation to hit voters lately was the comment made by an aspiring candidate for Marin Municipal Water Board when he stated, "No one in his right mind would think of rescinding the water moratorium." Also that there was a water shortage.

If this was correct, why was the moratorium ruled illegal? Why was it proven in superior court that there was no water shortage or likely to be one? It is doubtful that any court wishing to uphold and project constitutional privilege will sustain an appeal of this ruling.

What he should have stated is the fact that there are a great many lawsuits running into the millions against the district and the rather ridiculous moratorium.

Bon Air Road Project Draws Reader's Fire

For many months, Bon Air Road has been a disaster scene because of road reconstruction. We now have two more years of road hassle. Marin General Hospital District board members and the county board of supervisors are honoring an old agreement that is no longer applicable to the situation. The poor (and getting poorer) taxpayer is spending almost half a million dollars so that persons walking from their cars to Marin General need not step across a two-lane road.

There are things we need more — like a Marin General Hospital District board of directors that feels a sense of responsibility when dealing with public funds.

When Did Referendum Right Become Outmoded?

This is re: Martin Mackey's letter of Oct. 4 in which he urges us to replace Article 34 of the state Constitution, which requires that the people must approve tax-supported low-rent housing. He claims that Article 34 discriminates against the poor, is obsolete, costs money, and complains that no other type of housing is subject to referendum.

Article 34 allows even the poor a chance to vote against any further increase in the crushing tax loads that have hurt the poor more than anyone. And since when have free elections and the right of referendum become "outmoded," "old," or "obsolete"? Or for that matter, not worth spending some money on? As for no other type of housing being subject to voter approval, no other types of housing are built with voters' tax money.

Those Masochistic Democrats Show Signs Of Common Sense

WASHINGTON — The psychiatric history of the Democratic Party lately has shown such a consistent pattern of masochism and attempted suicide that any signs of its rational behavior must be examined skeptically. The diagnostician is tempted to make too much of brief flashes of common sense.

That semi-disclaimer is necessary before discussing the scattered recent showings of goodwill among Democrats who seemed blood enemies a few months ago. What unifies them is their mutual interest in winning elections, from congressional district up to White House. There is just a glimmer of a possibility that among them, if not all their supporters, 1974 and 1976 are starting to be more important than 1968 and 1972.

SEN. HENRY JACKSON, D-Wash., among the front-runners for the next presidential nomination, is working very hard in this direction in the absence of competition from Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

Up till Kennedy's withdrawal, Jackson had been openly chasing the nomination and trying to soothe old sores largely because he needed to if he were to have a realistic chance. Perceived as a hawk and the major "conservative" applicant, he had a lot of anti-war liberals to assuage. Now, with Kennedy out, he is stepping up his effort because support previously holding back, waiting for Kennedy's entry, suddenly seems available.

Long before the Kennedy announcement of last month, Jackson went out to Skokie, Ill., to campaign for Abner Mikva. Mikva, who was unseated two years ago, is running to return to Congress. Jackson's visit was significant because Mikva had consistently taken an anti-military position in the House, thus regularly opposing Jackson's stand.

But the Illinois trip was a minor prelude to the senator's stops in New York and Massachusetts since Kennedy withdrew.

AT LAWRENCE, L.I., Jackson spoke at a campaign breakfast for Allard Lowenstein, who also is attempting to return to the capitol after serving one term in 1969-71. Lowenstein, of course, is the man who organized the first anti-war dump-Lyndon Johnson efforts within the party.

After Jackson's appearance, Lowenstein told local reporters he had not made up his mind on whom he would support for the presidential nomination, but that if Jackson were picked by the convention, he would back him. That sounds cool until you consider its source.

Then Jackson outdid even his Lowenstein endorsement by planning to link up last week end with Rep. Robert Drinan, the super-dovish Jesuit priest who represents the Fourth District of Massachusetts.

He had planned to make several stops in New Hampshire, then swing back through New York to appear with Hugh Carey, the Democratic nominee for governor there. That part of his week end was postponed, but at the last minute he was scheduled into a Drinan reception at Waltham instead.

Jackson's aides say his visits were solicited by Mikva and Lowenstein, and that "mutual friends" engineered the appearance at the Drinan reception. Whatever the details, each of those events proves that both the senator and the congressional candidates were thinking ahead, rather than letting bitter memories of the past two presidential election years continue to divide them.

JACKSON IS NOT the only ambitious senator in this conciliatory effort. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas is basing his presidential (or vice presidential) hopes on it. Walter Mondale of Minnesota, labeled the "liberal" candidate, is trying to consolidate his backing in that direction first, but even he is scheduled to speak soon in Mississippi to the AFL-CIO in Jackson. All of the widely greeted dark horses from the South are in favor of a broad national party rather than an exclusive ideological club.

Enough of this adult attitude and the Democrats may find themselves united to defeat Mr. Ford in the future rather than obsessed to refight the Vietnamese war of the past.

Time Has Come For Americans To Face Problems Of Today

WASHINGTON — The capacity of the United States to govern itself is dangerously weakened by continuing preoccupation with Watergate. It is time to put it behind us and get on with governing the country at a time of great peril.

The Watergate scandal, the impeachment proceedings, the resignation and pardon of Richard Nixon have too long immobilized the presidency, stalemated the Congress, and divided the nation.

It can't safely be allowed to continue! We should end recrimination, wrench our gaze from the past and fasten it unwaveringly on the present.

The need to do so is now, not a week or a month from now.

THE ISSUES, which are being neglected are desperately urgent — and getting more urgent every day!

The whole world is in as perilous a plight as it was before the Great Depression in the late '20s and in the months before World War II.

How perilous? What really is at stake today? Nothing less than the survival of democratic government in the United States, the stability of all the western nations, and the threat of a worldwide depression on such a scale as to make its end consequence almost inconceivable.

Here is the evidence from which this somber picture comes:

THE UNITED STATES is thus far making no headway toward arresting — let alone reversing — its crippling inflation. Unless significant progress is soon visible, many Americans will be saying: "Give somebody the power to do it!"

Serious crime is not only imperiling the lives of people on the streets, it is causing more and more people to say: "If the police cannot protect us, we will protect ourselves!"

The standard of living almost everywhere in the world — including Europe, Britain and Japan — is threatened by the 400 per cent increase in the cost of oil imposed by the Arabs for political reasons. Nearly every western nation is in a state of political upheaval because of this condition.

Needed is a self-disciplined willingness by Americans to accept austere voluntary measures to save fuel. But only a united people can do this.

Many of the less-developed nations are overpopulated and underfed. Millions have been starving and still are. As one of the few countries with food surpluses, the United States cannot remain indifferent.

IN THE FACE of problems of such staggering magnitude, the government of the United States — the President, the Congress, the whole people — cannot safely continue to be distracted by the sins of a past administration. Our overriding concern must be the sinews of the new administration.

Unless we look forward and stop looking back, all may be lost!

Brown For President? Bug May Have Bitten

By EARL G. WATERS

Will Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown, Jr. be the next President of the United States? No, the question is not a typographical error. Brown is running for governor of California in this election, not president.

But even before California became the nation's most populous state, its governors were being stricken with the well-known political disease of "Potomac fever".

Earl Warren suffered from it and made two attempts to win the GOP presidential nomination. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown was bitten by the bug the day after he was first elected governor. And Ronald Reagan, only in office a year and a half, attempted a coup at the 1968 GOP convention and his present efforts indicate signs of a relapse.

THE FACT IS that, because of the state's population which gives it the largest delegations at the presidential nominating conventions, anyone elected governor becomes an instant presidential candidate.

Already eastern pundits are including Junior Brown's name in their lists of Democratic prospects in 1976. His injection into the national scene even before his election as governor is established, is largely due to the withdrawal of Sen. Ted Kennedy as a 1976 contender.

It is probably just as unfortunate for young Brown as it is for the people of California that the '76 national political sweepstakes has become mixed up with the immediate contest for governor.

But the campaign from this point on will be clouded by that issue. The question will be whether Brown is sincere in his desire to be govenor or is he merely seeking the office as a stepping stone to higher office? Since that is exactly what he did with the job of secretary of state, there is ground to be suspicious. And Californians have become increasingly bitter about the tendency of their governors to abandon them in the pursuit of national office.

HIS OPPONENT, Republican Houston I. Flournoy, escapes that stigma. Incumbent presidents invariably receive their party's nomination, and President Ford has already signalled he will be a candidate in 1976. If elected governor, Flournoy would not therefore be distracted by presidential ambitions — at least during the first four years.

So Junior Brown is now confronted with the necessity of assuring the voters that, if elected, he would devote his full attention to the job of being governor and not neglect those responsibilities by seeking the presidency.

That may be a tough one to sell.

Polite British Justice Moves With Astonishing Swiftness

The burglars, purse snatchers and other petty crooks who appeared on a recent morning in an English magistrate's court seemed to meet about the same fates as those who drift through the Marin Hall of Justice, but the pace was different.

The formality, even in the lowest court in Britain, makes our courts look a bit like a rock festival, but despite the courtesy and the bows, the system moved with the rapidity of an Old West lynching party.

THE SCENE was the magistrates' court in Scarborough, a summer resort town in Yorkshire on the North Sea, and the morning's batch of criminals was about as uninspired as those to be found most afternoons on the criminal calendar in Marin Municipal Court.

There was a scared young man (17-year-olds are tried in adult court in England) who had spent his hard-earned factory wages on a drunken spree in Scarborough. (His finances suffered an even worse blow when he had to pay a stiff fine for being drunk in public.) Then there was a mid-twentyish fellow who seemed to have stolen everything that was loose in several counties and an older man who was illiterate and who had tried to cheat a social security office, the latest in a long series of brushes with the law.

The most colorful occupant of the dock (English prisoners are actually placed in a wooden structure when they are brought into court) was a 31-year-old woman in the shortest possible denim miniskirt, who had attempted to relieve a drunken pub companion of some 250 pounds — a rather sizeable amount of money — but who had fled after somewhat of a scene in the women's restroom where she was trying to count the money.

There were some "postponements" of cases at the beginning of the morning (bringing to mind the "continuances" which take up so much of our court time), but most of the defendants chose to take their justice on their first court appearance.

PRESIDED OVER by three lay people (the magistrates), the court is run by a clerk, who is a lawyer. "We have no equivalent of the American district attorney," the clerk explained during a recess.

That role was played by a police inspector, who also would try some lesser cases. More major crimes are prosecuted by a lawyer (barrister) hired by the police.

Court opened with a general bowing to the magistrates, who were always addressed as "your worships."

Then the clerk called a case, the defendant was led from a hall into the dock, and the clerk told him the charges against him. The policeman read the facts of the case, saying, "Your worships, this is what John Smith would testify to, if he were called," etc.

People who had committed more serious crimes were offered a chance to have their cases tried by the Queen's Bench, an equivalent to our superior court, which meets in York for Yorkshire County. (That is presided over by a real judge who wears a wig and robes.)

But our cast of characters on the morning in question all mumbled, "I'll be tried in this court."

Then the clerk asked each in turn, "Then how do you plead?"

To the astonishment of the American visitor, they all answered, "Guilty."

IN ONE CASE, the crime had only been committed three days before — and in a Marin court, it's virtually impossible to plead guilty to a felony and be sentenced in less than two months, with most cases dragging on longer.

At any rate, the next surprise came when after each guilty plea, the magistrates recessed for a short period and promptly came back to sentence the defendant.

The only decision that took more than about 10 minutes was what to do with the woman who had the adventure in the pub's restroom. An English journalist explained that the problem was complicated because the pound-stealer had seven children and if she were sent to prison, floods of letters would deluge the local newspapers because it would cost the taxpayers so much to support the kiddies in mum's absence.

She finally was placed on two months' probation and reminded she owed an old unpaid fine.

For the English, it was a normal Monday morning in court, but to an American, it was a mind-boggling display of instant justice — with more cases tied up in a few hours than are concluded in a week in courts in this country.

Less Power Use Seen Cutting Nuclear Plans

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A top administrator for the Atomic Energy Commission yesterday said there would be a cutback in the number of projected nuclear power plants if the nation's electrical demands fail to increase.

L. Manning Muntzing, AEC's director of regulations, made the comment on the heels of a report which said the nation's electric industry's estimates of future power needs were exaggerated.

The year-long study by the privately financed Center for Science in the Public Interest also said the nation's demand for electrical power during 1974 has actually been held steady through conservation-minded policies.

"Seventy plants have already been stretched out delayed," Muntzing said when asked about future cutbacks. "I must say that the oil crisis of last winter changed everything dramatically in this country."

Muntzing said presently the increase in electrical use in the United States is at zero, compared to the historic 7 per cent annual increase in power.

According to the Atomic Energy Commission, 45 nuclear plants were licensed to operate as of last June 30; 60 were under construction; 105 far enough into the planning stage that reactors had been ordered; and 21 announced but for which no reactor order had been placed.

Before he went to Sacramento's new Rancho Seco nuclear power plant, Muntzing told newsmen: "There is no point in having excess capacity of the utility if users can't afford it. If we couldn't see a need for the electricty . . . wait until you need it."

The AEC licenses all nuclear power plants and has the final say on whether they are constructed.

"Obviously if there is not a need for power we would not reach a favorable decision on going forward with a nuclear plant," he told newsmen.

Muntzing said the energy crisis and reduction of electrical use has forced the AEC into reevaluating long-term needs for nuclear power.

Muntzing, who was appointed director of regulations in 1971, said new transportation systems could increase the need for electricity in the coming years.

Mrs. Ibach Seeks Another Term On Hospital Board

MARION C. IBACH
Veteran director

Marion C. Ibach, a member of the Marin Hospital District board since the district was formed in 1946, is running for reelection in the Nov. 5 election.

She and two other incumbents and four challengers are vying for three posts on the board.

Mrs. Ibach's years of "health oriented" services go back to her early career as a public health nurse in Berkeley, from which she retired in 1938.

When she moved to Mill Valley in 1937, she found that the building inspector served as the health inspector and that the county had no health department.

As health chairman for the Mill Valley Parent-Teacher Association, she spoke out for more modern approaches to the county's health programs.

In 1946 she was named a director of the hospital district's new board, which finally saw a bond issue pass leading to the opening of Marin General Hospital in 1952.

Mrs. Ibach pointed out that Marin General is the "only completely general hospital in Marin County," offering an around-the-clock emergency room, medical, surgical, obstetrical, nursery, intensive care, pediatric and coronary care and other facilities.

"Marin General has led the way in outreach programs of preventive medicine in an effort to control and reduce the cost of health care," she said. "To this end it has not duplicated the costly services available in San Francisco medical centers."

Mrs. Ibach also noted that much of the equipment purchased for the hospital was paid for through gifts of individuals or the efforts of volunteers.

"Right now," she said, "the greatest need (at the hospital) is to increase the ancillary facilities to provide walk-in or ambulatory care to reduce hospitalization . . . Each patient seen and discharged the same day reduces the need for more costly bed construction."

Mrs. Ibach said that plans at present are to expand the hospital to provide more of this type of service without increasing the number of beds.

She defended the planned realignment of Bon Air Road, saying that not to plan for parking and moving of the road before the proposed expansion "would be more costly and not enable the board to adequately inform the public when you are asked to support a bond election to finance the expansion."

Mrs. Ibach called the hospital "one of the finest equipped hospitals of its size in the state and one of the best staffed and operated.

Mrs. Ibach, a widow and the mother of two grown children, lives in Mill Valley.

In addition to the hospital board, she is currently a member of many civic and other groups including the Marin Senior Coordinating Council, Marin Home Care, Marin Hearing and Speech Chairman, Marin Juvenile Court Auxiliary, Marin Mental Health Advisory Committee, Marin Comprehensive Health Planning Council and Marin Association for Mental Health.

Marion C. Ibach, a member of the Marin Hospital District board since the district was formed in 1946, is running for reelection in the Nov. 5 election.

She and two other incumbents and four challengers are vying for three posts on the board.

Mrs. Ibach's years of "health oriented" services go back to her early career as a public health nurse in Berkeley, from which she retired in 1938.

When she moved to Mill Valley in 1937, she found that the building inspector served as the health inspector and that the county had no health department.

As health chairman for the Mill Valley Parent-Teacher Association, she spoke out for more modern approaches to the county's health programs.

In 1946 she was named a director of the hospital district's new board, which finally saw a bond issue pass leading to the opening of Marin General Hospital in 1952.

Mrs. Ibach pointed out that Marin General is the "only completely general hospital in Marin County," offering an around-the-clock emergency room, medical, surgical, obstetrical, nursery, intensive care, pediatric and coronary care and other facilities.

MARION C. IBACH
Veteran director

"Marin General has led the way in outreach programs of preventive medicine in an effort to control and reduce the cost of health care," she said. "To this end it has not duplicated the costly services available in San Francisco medical centers."

Mrs. Ibach also noted that much of the equipment purchased for the hospital was paid for through gifts of individuals or the efforts of volunteers.

"Right now," she said, "the greatest need (at the hospital) is to increase the ancillary facilities to provide walk-in or ambulatory care to reduce hospitalization ... Each patient seen and discharged the same day reduces the need for more costly bed construction."

Mrs. Ibach said that plans at present are to expand the hospital to provide more of this type of service without increasing the number of beds.

She defended the planned realignment of Bon Air Road, saying that not to plan for parking and moving of the road before the proposed expansion "would be more costly and not enable the board to adequately inform the public when you are asked to support a bond election to finance the expansion."

Mrs. Ibach called the hospital "one of the finest equipped hospitals of its size in the state and one of the best staffed and operated.

Mrs. Ibach, a widow and the mother of two grown children, lives in Mill Valley.

In addition to the hospital board, she is currently a member of many civic and other groups including the Marin Senior Coordinating Council, Marin Home Care, Marin Hearing and Speech Chairman, Marin Juvenile Court Auxiliary, Marin Mental Health Advisory Committee, Marin Comprehensive Health Planning Council and Marin Association for Mental Health.

Five Seek Position On Planning Group

ENJOY THE BEST OF BOTH WORLDS

TRADITIONAL...

We believe in tradition. The closeness of families ... the simple pleasures of a less hurried, worried world ... the values that ordered our lives. At First Federal we offer you the kind of friendly service and sincere concern for your welfare that is reminiscent of those times. Visit us—you'll know what we mean the minute you step through our doorway.

MODERN...

But there is a lot more for you at First Federal. Today, more than ever, financial security is extremely important. We can help you achieve your goals with a variety of advanced monetary and personal services. No one offers higher interest on insured savings ... no one offers more protection for your savings. Enjoy the best of both worlds—traditional and modern—at First Federal.

ENGLISH TUDOR REDUCED $2,450

A miniature of a county squire's home! Entry hall has a built-in gun case - high, heavily beamed ceilings in the living room and a massive fireplace - formal dining room - non-Tudor kitchen with nice breakfast area - ¼ bath off the rear porch - 2 bedrooms and bath on the main floor and a grand upstairs room with pitched ceiling and marvelous storage. There's even a dungeon for furnace & laundry! The huge backyard has a brick BBQ for Henry VIII roasts and an extensive food garden plus battery hens for Milord's fresh coddled egg! When the lamps are lit call 472-3807. The price for all this glory - a mere pittance of $55,500 gold pieces.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Tiburon Fire Protection District of Marin County will receive bids for the installation of sewer line and pump system at Fire Station No. 2, 4301 Paradise Drive, Tiburon, California.

Each bid is to be in accord with the plans and specifications now on file at the office of the District Fire Chief, 1679 Tiburon Blvd., Tiburon, California, 94920, where copies of the same may be obtained.

Each bid shall be made on a form to be obtained at the office of the District Fire Chief, and must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check, or a bid bond for 10% of the amount of the bid, made payable to the Tiburon Fire Protection District, and shall be sealed and filed with the District Fire Chief on or before 5:00 o'clock P.M., October 23, 1974, at 1679 Tiburon Boulevard, Tiburon, California, and will be opened in public at or about 8:00 o'clock P.M., on October 23, 1974, at Headquarters Fire Station, 1679 Tiburon Boulevard, Tiburon. No bids shall be received after the time set above for receipt of bids.

The above mentioned check or bond shall be given as a guarantee that the bidder will enter into a contract if awarded the work and will be declared forfeited if the successful bidder refuses to enter into said contract within 10 days after being requested to do so by the Board of Directors.

The successful bidder will be required to furnish a Labor and Material Bond in an amount equal to 50% of the contract price and a Faithful Performance Bond in an amount equal to 100% of the contract price. Said bonds to be secured from a surety company satisfactory to the Board of Directors.

Said work shall be completed within 60 days from receipt of the notice to proceed.

Bidders are hereby notified that pursuant to Section 1770 of the Labor Code of the State of California, the County of Marin, Board of Supervisors, has ascertained the general prevailing rate of hourly wages and rates for legal holidays, and overtime work in the locality where this work is to be performed, for each craft or type of workmen or mechanic needed to execute the contract which will be awarded the successful bidder. These prevailing rates so determined by the Board of Supervisors, on file with the County of Marin, are the same rates used by the Tiburon Fire Protection District.

The successful bidder will be required to purchase and maintain insurance as follows:

1. Workmen's Compensation as required by the State of California
2. Employer's Liability Insurance - $100,000.00
3. Comprehensive General Liability Insurance: Personal injury, $100,000.00 per person, $300,000.00 per occurance; Property Damage, $100,000.00

The Board of Directors reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to waive any irregularity in any bid received. No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of 30 days after the date set for the opening thereof.

High Court To Rule On Rail Network

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today agreed to untangle the legal snarl that has held up development of a unified rail network in the northeastern United States.

The court will hear arguments Oct. 23 on the ruling by a special three-judge federal panel in Philadelphia last June that part of the 1973 Regional Rail Reorganization Act is unconstitutional. A written opinion will follow later.

The panel barred the United States Railway Association, created under the act to devise a "final system plan" for Northeast rail service, from certifying such a plan.

The certification would be sent to a special three-judge court established under the act to order transfer of rail properties to the Consolidated Rail Corp. (Conrail). The association is empowered to issue up to $1 billion of its federally guaranteed obligations to Conrail.

The opinion held that the law did not provide appropriately for loss to railroads which would be compelled to continue unprofitable service during the planning period. This lapse constituted a "taking" of private property without just compensation in violation of the Constitution, it said.

Another flaw was cited in the law's requirement that if a judge finds a bankrupt railroad cannot properly be absorbed into the new system he will dismiss the reorganization proceedings. The panel found this provision runs counter to a constitutional requirement for geographically "uniform" laws on bankruptcies.

The carriers involved were Penn Central; Reading; Erie Lackawanna; Central of New Jersey; Lehigh Valley; Boston & Maine; Ann Arbor, and Lehigh & Hudson.

The ruling of unconstitutionality stemmed from a lawsuit filed by the trustee of the New Haven Railroad and other major Penn Central creditors against the Justice Department, the association and Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar.

The New Haven trustee contended that the financial backbone of the new system — payment for rail assets with Conrail securities —is unconstitutional, and appealed to the Supreme Court its loss of this point.

Extra Funds Requested By Amtrak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unless the Amtrak system gets an extra $84.9 million, its passenger trains will stop running early next year, the administration says.

In a letter accompanying President Ford's request to Congress for the money, to be added to Amtrak's current $130.3 million annual appropriation, budget director Roy Ash wrote yesterday:

"Without the requested supplemental appropriation, Amtrak will not be able to continue train operation after February, 1975."

Congressional approval is considered likely because the White House asked for the additional money rather than making it look as if Congress was spending too freely, congressional sources said.

Another Amtrak bill has been approved by a House-Senate Conference committee.

It calls for a new Utah-Idaho-Oregon passenger route and requires that top priority in assigning new experimental train routes be given to states whose major population center does not have a passenger train.

The new route, from Ogden to Portland through Boise, will be ordered in a report accompanying a new $200 million Amtrak authorization. The first step in the process is to authorize money, but a second step is necessary to appropriate the money as Ford requested yesterday.

The bill, likely to pass both House and Senate, probably would mean future extensions of passenger service to Portland, Maine, Des Moines, Iowa, Sioux Falls, S.D., and other population centers not now on any passenger route. The Transportation Department must designate one new experimental route each year.

The conference committee compromise falls short of a Senate amendment that would have required immediate extension of service to major population centers such as Portland, Des Moines and Sioux Falls.

Napa and Sonoma Valleys: Fair through tomorrow, except for patches of fog tonight and in the morning; high tomorrow and low tonight at Santa Rosa 82 and 44; light winds.

Sali Lieberman Is Sworn In As U.S. Citizen

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Sali Lieberman, 62-year-old Mill Valley resident, is now a U.S. citizen.

His first stop after the ceremony was at the passport office, since he has been unable to visit his native land in the 30 years he lived in the U.S. for fear he couldn't reuturn.

Judge Lloyd H. Burke in U.S. District Court made it possible for Lieberman to become a citizen by overruling Immigration and Naturalization Service contentions that Lieberman was a communist.

Lieberman has steadfastly denied being a communist but he also has refused to answer questions about his friends and relations.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Enlarged Goiter Doesn't Hurt, Surgery Can Cure Problems

A woman from Rahway, N. J. writes: "My goiter is enlarged enough to be noticeable, but it doesn't hurt or give me any trouble. I wear high-necked dresses to conceal it and have learned to live with it. But the situation has changed as I have developed palpitation of the heart. My husband claims it is so loud, he can hear it when we are in bed. I've taken my pulse at these times, and my heart is beating well over 100 beats a minute. My weight has gone down, even though I have a good appetite. My nervousness is the real problem. I've gotten so irritable that my husband has threatened to leave me.

"In the past, my doctors told me not to worry. They now think the thyroid gland is becoming overactive and should be removed surgically or treated with medicine. What do you think I should do?"

You ought to seriously consider surgery. I'll tell you why.

An overactive thyroid gland (hyperthyroidism) can be likened to raising the thermostat in your home. The body becomes warm, sweating may be profuse and, as you have said, there is nervousness, irritability and a rapid heart beat. In essence, your body is burning up due to the increased metabolism. Other hyperthyroid symptoms are a fine, rapid tremor of the hands, frequent blinking and a staring expression.

Antithyroid drugs are useful in younger people with an overactive thyroid. Several such agents including thiocarbamides, propylthiouracil and methimazole work slowly and must be used for a long time.

Radioiodine is useful in middle-aged and elderly sufferers of hyperthyroidism. The radioactive iodine particiles settle in the gland, where they act like miniature X-ray machines and suppress thyroid secretions. At one time, this form of treatment was used only on older people because there was some concern that it had cancer-producing potentials. To my knowledge, these fears have not been substantiated.

In your case, removing most of you enlarged gland will eliminate not only the goiter, but also the symptoms of hyperthyroidism. The operation is safe and lessens the need for months and months of medical treatment. However, as with other methods of treatment, you may need thyroid extract to keep your metabolism normal.

BLISTERED LUNGS

Mrs. L. W. writes: My 20-year-old son had to drop out of college because his lungs are blistered and one lung is partially collapsed. Will rest alone cure his condition?

REPLY

Spontaneous healing usually occurs, and the partially collapsed lung should expand again. Recurrences are a definite possibility as long as the blebs remain. These blebs are one of several causes of spontaneous pneumothorax, a condition in which the lungs are collapsed by the air that gets between the chest wall and the softer lung tissue.

WASHING AWAY GERMS

K. M. writes: Years ago, mother's doctor told her that washing the hands with soap and water would kill any germ. Is this true?

REPLY

I wouldn't go so far as to say "any germ," but cleansing with soap and water eliminated most microorganisms. Let's give credit to the washing process, which mechanically removes dirt and germs, rather than to the antiseptic action of the soap.

TIRED MAN

A reader writes: Will male hormone shots help a 70-year-old man get rid of that tired feeling?

REPLY

These injections will help if his fatigue is psychogenic.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

House Committee Delays Decision On Transit Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Rules Committee today put off its decision on the mass transit bill until after the Nov. 5 elections.

The committee agreed without a vote to postpone its decision on whether to send the bill to the House floor for a vote. The House recess is scheduled to run from Oct. 11 to Nov. 12.

The committee voted 6-6 yesterday to shelve the $11.8 billion compromise measure and a new effort by supporters of the bill to resurrect it today was put off with little debate.

The six-year aid measure was drafted in a Senate-House conference committee after President Ford said he would veto an $11 billion, two year, House-passed transit aid bill with its mandatory spending provision.

Rep. Ray Madden, D-Ind., rules committee chairman, said, "There's no chance that this (conference) bill can be acted on before the recess. I suggest we postpone action on this bill until after the recess and then I'm sure we can get a transit bill."

Madden and Reps. Gillis Long, D-La., and Claude Pepper, D-Fla., angrily denounced the conference action and Long said "it was a radical departure from orderly procedure."

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Tiburon Fire Protection District of Marin County will receive bids for the installation of sewer line and pump system at Fire Station No. 2, 4301 Paradise Drive, Tiburon, California.

Each bid is to be in accord with the plans and specifications now on file at the office of the District Fire Chief, 1679 Tiburon Blvd., Tiburon, California, 94920, where copies of the same may be obtained.

Each bid shall be made on a form to be obtained at the office of the District Fire Chief, and must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check, or a bid bond for 10% of the amount of the bid, made payable to the Tiburon Fire Protection District, and shall be sealed and filed with the District Fire Chief on or before 5:00 o'clock P.M., October 23, 1974, at 1679 Tiburon Boulevard, Tiburon, California, and will be opened in public at or about 8:00 o'clock P.M., on October 23, 1974, at Headquarters Fire Station, 1679 Tiburon Boulevard, Tiburon. No bids shall be received after the time set above for receipt of bids.

The above mentioned check or bond shall be given as a guarantee that the bidder will enter into a contract if awarded the work and will be declared forfeited if the successful bidder refuses to enter into said contract within 10 days after being requested to do so by the Board of Directors.

The successful bidder will be required to furnish a Labor and Material Bond in an amount equal to 50% of the contract price and a Faithful Performance Bond in an amount equal to 100% of the contract price. Said bonds to be secured from a surety company satisfactory to the Board of Directors.

Said work shall be completed within 60 days from receipt of the notice to proceed.

Bidders are hereby notified that pursuant to Section 1770 of the Labor Code of the State of California, the County of Marin, Board of Supervisors, has ascertained the general prevailing rate of hourly wages and rates for legal holidays, and overtime work in the locality where this work is to be performed, for each craft or type of workmen or mechanic needed to execute the contract which will be awarded the successful bidder. These prevailing rates so determined by the Board of Supervisors, on file with the County of Marin, are the same rates used by the Tiburon Fire Protection District.

The successful bidder will be required to purchase and maintain insurance as follows:

1. Workmen's Compensation as required by the State of California
2. Employer's Liability Insurance - $100,000.00
3. Comprehensive General Liability Insurance: Personal injury, $100,000.00 per person, $300,000.00 per occurance; Property Damage, $100,000.00

The Board of Directors reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to waive any irregularity in any bid received. No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of 30 days after the date set for the opening thereof.

High Court To Rule On Rail Network

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today agreed to untangle the legal snarl that has held up development of a unified rail network in the northeastern United States.

The court will hear arguments Oct. 23 on the ruling by a special three-judge federal panel in Philadelphia last June that part of the 1973 Regional Rail Reorganization Act is unconstitutional. A written opinion will follow later.

The panel barred the United States Railway Association, created under the act to devise a "final system plan" for Northeast rail service, from certifying such a plan.

The certification would be sent to a special three-judge court established under the act to order transfer of rail properties to the Consolidated Rail Corp. (Conrail). The association is empowered to issue up to $1 billion of its federally guaranteed obligations to Conrail.

The opinion held that the law did not provide appropriately for loss to railroads which would be compelled to continue unprofitable service during the planning period. This lapse constituted a "taking" of private property without just compensation in violation of the Constitution, it said.

Another flaw was cited in the law's requirement that if a judge finds a bankrupt railroad cannot properly be absorbed into the new system he will dismiss the reorganization proceedings. The panel found this provision runs counter to a constitutional requirement for geographically "uniform" laws on bankruptcies.

The carriers involved were Penn Central; Reading; Erie Lackawanna; Central of New Jersey; Lehigh Valley; Boston & Maine; Ann Arbor, and Lehigh & Hudson.

The ruling of unconstitutionality stemmed from a lawsuit filed by the trustee of the New Haven Railroad and other major Penn Central creditors against the Justice Department, the association and Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar.

The New Haven trustee contended that the financial backbone of the new system — payment for rail assets with Conrail securities —is unconstitutional, and appealed to the Supreme Court its loss of this point.

Extra Funds Requested By Amtrak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unless the Amtrak system gets an extra $84.9 million, its passenger trains will stop running early next year, the administration says.

In a letter accompanying President Ford's request to Congress for the money, to be added to Amtrak's current $130.3 million annual appropriation, budget director Roy Ash wrote yesterday:

"Without the requested supplemental appropriation, Amtrak will not be able to continue train operation after February, 1975."

Congressional approval is considered likely because the White House asked for the additional money rather than making it look as if Congress was spending too freely, congressional sources said.

Another Amtrak bill has been approved by a House-Senate Conference committee.

It calls for a new Utah-Idaho-Oregon passenger route and requires that top priority in assigning new experimental train routes be given to states whose major population center does not have a passenger train.

The new route, from Ogden to Portland through Boise, will be ordered in a report accompanying a new $200 million Amtrak authorization. The first step in the process is to authorize money, but a second step is necessary to appropriate the money as Ford requested yesterday.

The bill, likely to pass both House and Senate, probably would mean future extensions of passenger service to Portland, Maine, Des Moines, Iowa, Sioux Falls, S.D., and other population centers not now on any passenger route. The Transportation Department must designate one new experimental route each year.

The conference committee compromise falls short of a Senate amendment that would have required immediate extension of service to major population centers such as Portland, Des Moines and Sioux Falls.

San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources.

San Francisco Bay Area: Fair through tomorrow, except for patches of fog or low clouds tonight and in the morning; high in the 60s near the coast and 70s inland; low tonight in the upper 40s to mid 50s; westerly winds 5 to 15 m.p.h. tomorrow afternoon.

Napa and Sonoma Valleys: Fair through tomorrow, except for patches of fog tonight and in the morning; high tomorrow and low tonight at Santa Rosa 82 and 44; light winds.

Sali Lieberman Is Sworn In As U.S. Citizen

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Sali Lieberman, 62-year-old Mill Valley resident, is now a U.S. citizen.

His first stop after the ceremony was at the passport office, since he has been unable to visit his native land in the 30 years he lived in the U.S. for fear he couldn't reuturn.

Judge Lloyd H. Burke in U.S. District Court made it possible for Lieberman to become a citizen by overruling Immigration and Naturalization Service contentions that Lieberman was a communist.

Lieberman has steadfastly denied being a communist but he also has refused to answer questions about his friends and relations.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Enlarged Goiter Doesn't Hurt, Surgery Can Cure Problems

A woman from Rahway, N. J. writes: "My goiter is enlarged enough to be noticeable, but it doesn't hurt or give me any trouble. I wear high-necked dresses to conceal it and have learned to live with it. But the situation has changed as I have developed palpitation of the heart. My husband claims it is so loud, he can hear it when we are in bed. I've taken my pulse at these times, and my heart is beating well over 100 beats a minute. My weight has gone down, even though I have a good appetite. My nervousness is the real problem. I've gotten so irritable that my husband has threatened to leave me.

"In the past, my doctors told me not to worry. They now think the thyroid gland is becoming overactive and should be removed surgically or treated with medicine. What do you think I should do?"

You ought to seriously consider surgery. I'll tell you why.

An overactive thyroid gland (hyperthyroidism) can be likened to raising the thermostat in your home. The body becomes warm, sweating may be profuse and, as you have said, there is nervousness, irritability and a rapid heart beat. In essence, your body is burning up due to the increased metabolism. Other hyperthyroid symptoms are a fine, rapid tremor of the hands, frequent blinking and a staring expression.

Antithyroid drugs are useful in younger people with an overactive thyroid. Several such agents including thiocarbamides, propylthiouracil and methimazole work slowly and must be used for a long time.

Radioiodine is useful in middle-aged and elderly sufferers of hyperthyroidism. The radioactive iodine particiles settle in the gland, where they act like miniature X-ray machines and suppress thyroid secretions. At one time, this form of treatment was used only on older people because there was some concern that it had cancer-producing potentials. To my knowledge, these fears have not been substantiated.

In your case, removing most of you enlarged gland will eliminate not only the goiter, but also the symptoms of hyperthyroidism. The operation is safe and lessens the need for months and months of medical treatment. However, as with other methods of treatment, you may need thyroid extract to keep your metabolism normal.

BLISTERED LUNGS

Mrs. L. W. writes: My 20-year-old son had to drop out of college because his lungs are blistered and one lung is partially collapsed. Will rest alone cure his condition?

REPLY

Spontaneous healing usually occurs, and the partially collapsed lung should expand again. Recurrences are a definite possibility as long as the blebs remain. These blebs are one of several causes of spontaneous pneumothorax, a condition in which the lungs are collapsed by the air that gets between the chest wall and the softer lung tissue.

WASHING AWAY GERMS

K. M. writes: Years ago, mother's doctor told her that washing the hands with soap and water would kill any germ. Is this true?

REPLY

I wouldn't go so far as to say "any germ," but cleansing with soap and water eliminated most microorganisms. Let's give credit to the washing process, which mechanically removes dirt and germs, rather than to the antiseptic action of the soap.

TIRED MAN

A reader writes: Will male hormone shots help a 70-year-old man get rid of that tired feeling?

REPLY

These injections will help if his fatigue is psychogenic.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

House Committee Delays Decision On Transit Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Rules Committee today put off its decision on the mass transit bill until after the Nov. 5 elections.

The committee agreed without a vote to postpone its decision on whether to send the bill to the House floor for a vote. The House recess is scheduled to run from Oct. 11 to Nov. 12.

The committee voted 6-6 yesterday to shelve the $11.8 billion compromise measure and a new effort by supporters of the bill to resurrect it today was put off with little debate.

The six-year aid measure was drafted in a Senate-House conference committee after President Ford said he would veto an $11 billion, two year, House-passed transit aid bill with its mandatory spending provision.

Rep. Ray Madden, D-Ind., rules committee chairman, said, "There's no chance that this (conference) bill can be acted on before the recess. I suggest we postpone action on this bill until after the recess and then I'm sure we can get a transit bill."

Madden and Reps. Gillis Long, D-La., and Claude Pepper, D-Fla., angrily denounced the conference action and Long said "it was a radical departure from orderly procedure."

Arson Blamed For Three Fires

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Investigators believe that three fires set in San Francisco's Ferry Building Monday night were deliberately set.

The fires were discovered within an hour of each other and forced the evacuation of 200 diners at the World Trade Center club.

Arson investigator Ray Johnson said yesterday the same person apparently set the trio of blazes, which he said caused extensive damage.

TONIGHT'S TELEVISION

KTVU (2) 9 p.m. — "The Commanders" debuts tonight as a series of World War 11 cameos of famous personalities. This episode takes a close-up look at Dwight Eisenhower, who was termed "the most powerful man in the world" when he launched the Normandy invasion.

KPIX (5), 9 p.m. — Sandy Duncan, Bob Hope and Pearl Bailey join Bing Crosby in an hour-long music and variety special tonight titled "Bing Crosby and His Friends."

KGO (7), KNTV (11), 11:30 p.m. — Karen Valentine and Ken Berry host a tongue-in-cheek beauty pageant for men in "Bachelor of the Year" on the Wide World of Entertainment.

TELEVISION REVIEW

70-Year-Old Singer? Bing Does It Well

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — It often is alleged by me — that around age 50 a singer's voice tends to get the wobblies, misses the higher and lower notes and generally shows that time is unkind indeed.

Somebody should tip Bing Crosby on this. He doesn't seem to realize that at his age — 70 — you really aren't supposed to sing well, let alone sing. But he's doing both tonight on a one-hour CBS special.

The opus is called "Bing Crosby and His Friends," the friends being Bob Hope, Pearl Bailey and Sandy Duncan.

It has its share of flaws, the most prominent of which is Miss Duncan's vocalizing. But Der Bingle, who only sporadically appears on the tube, usually to tout orange juice, continues to surprise.

Not only is his baritone as mellow as ever, he still retains the deceptively casual sense of rhythm for which he's never gotten due credit, save from musicians and an aged Dixieland buff or two.

The best example comes about midway through the show when he rolls through a delightful time call "No Time At All" with all the apparent strain of a morning yawn.

He still swings with the best of them, and one only wishes he'd try a solo show — maybe just doing Johnny Mercer songs — some fine night.

Tonight's effort, taped at the Hollywood Palace, also features the time-honored Crosby-Hope verbal tomfoolery that goes back to their series of "Road" pictures. It starts with Hope's entrance.

"Well, it's the Henry Kissinger of Toluca Lake," Crosby notes.

Miss Bailey turns in a nice, if somewhat brief, solo stint singing and does some lively hoofing. Miss Duncan only dances well, appearing ill at ease when it's her turn to warble.

The show may not exactly knock you out, but it's a pleasant way to wile away an hour, if only for Crosby's singing and the excellent arrangements of musical director Peter Matz.

Dire Times dept.: ABC's Friday night schedule has been in severe ratings trouble ever since the season began. So the network is pre-empting all but "Kodiak" this Friday and repeating "True Grit" while program executives try to figure how to salvage the evening.

ABC sources expect an announcement of a series of cancellations, replacements, shifts in schedules or all of these to bolster its tatered Friday night effort.

But there'll be no changes until Nov. 1 at most. ABC says it's bumping all four of its Friday night series on Oct. 18 and 25 to show two other hit movies, "Gun of Navarone" and "Hatari."

Youth Wounded During Melee

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Chinese youth was wounded with a gunshot blast yesterday when a fight broke out during the noon lunch break at Galileo High School's main courtyard.

Police reported that witnesses saw more than 20 Chinese youths enter the yard and attack a 17-year-old black student with fists and clubs.

Others in the courtyard joined in the fight and a general melee followed, according to Sgt. Tom Mazzucco of the police Juvenile Division.

The wounded student was not identified. Two long butcher knives and one club was recovered from the courtyard by police.

Five-Year License Term Is Backed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted 62 to 10 yesterday to require that broadcast licenses be issued and renewable for a five-year term instead of the present three-year period.

The Senate adopted an amendment by Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., increasing the term of licenses issued by the Federal Communications Commission after defeating, 46 to 23, a substitute proposal by Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich. It would have given new licensees a three-year term, renewable for five-year periods.

The increased term was added to the broadcast license renewal bill which would direct the FCC to establish new rules and procedures requiring broadcasters to determine the problems, needs and interests of their audience and to reflect those "needs and interests" in their programming.

The bill, which passed 69 to 2, is similar to a House measure which also contains a five-year license provision.

The original Senate bill, as approved by the Commerce Committee, would have kept the existing three-year term.

Sen. John Pastore, D-R.I., chairman of the Communications Subcommittee, said the three-year term was necessary to protect the public's interest as well as those of minority groups seeking to deny renewal of a broadcaster's license.

The bill would direct the FCC in renewal cases to give overriding weight to three specific requirements in determining whether the public interest had been served. If the requirements are met, the bill would direct the FCC to presume that the "public interest . . . would be served by such renewal."

The requirements were: Whether a broadcaster has followed procedures to ascertain the needs and interests of the area he serves; whether the broadcaster has substantially met those needs and interests; and whether the station is not otherwise deficient in its operations.

The bill also would direct the FCC to complete proceedings on proposed rules governing multiple ownership of television stations.

Arguing for the longer five-year term, Tunney said it would help smaller stations with their "burdens" every three years of costly legal expenses and paperwork to win renewal challenges.

Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., said it was "unfair" to put the nation's more than 8,400 broadcasters "under the gun" every three years in order to maintain their licenses.

Impact Statement Hits Anti Abortion Move

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare told Congress yesterday a controversial anti-abortion amendment would virtually wipe out use of federal funds for abortions.

An official HEW impact statement to House-Senate conferees said the amendment would "severely constrain" medical schools in teaching abortion techniques, prohibit federally supported agencies from counseling on abortion services, and increase welfare costs by millions of dollars for maternity care for unwanted children.

A second statement by HEW's population affairs specialist, Dr. Louis Hellman, said the amendment would end federally financed abortions for rape victims, pregnant mothers suffering measles, and low-income mothers.

The sponsor of the amendment, Sen. Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., said federal agencies would still be permitted to advise an expectant mother where she could obtain an abortion and federal funds could still be used to train doctors to perform abortions to save a mother's life.

But, he said, while the Supreme Court legalized abortion, "the court certainly did not require Congress to pay for it."

Leukemia Fund Passes Halfway

The four bay counties, including Marin, have tallied more than half of the leukemia fund drive goal, with contributions still coming in, according to the Bay Area Chapter of the Leukemia Society of America.

Some $56,000 has been raised in Marin, San Francisco, Alameda and San Mateo counties toward the $100,000 goal, according to a leukemia chapter spokesman.

The drive ended Friday, but the money count has not been completed, he said.

TONIGHT'S TELEVISION

Unusual on television tonight:

KTVU (2), 8 p.m. — The National Geographics "Americans on Everest" documents the successful 1963 assault on Mount Everest. Filmed by Norman G. Dyhrenfurth with Orson Welles narrating.

KTVU (2) 9 p.m. — "The Commanders" debuts tonight as a series of World War 11 cameos of famous personalities. This episode takes a close-up look at Dwight Eisenhower, who was termed "the most powerful man in the world" when he launched the Normandy invasion.

KPIX (5), 9 p.m. — Sandy Duncan, Bob Hope and Pearl Bailey join Bing Crosby in an hour-long music and variety special tonight titled "Bing Crosby and His Friends."

KGO (7), KNTV (11), 11:30 p.m. — Karen Valentine and Ken Berry host a tongue-in-cheek beauty pageant for men in "Bachelor of the Year" on the Wide World of Entertainment.

TELEVISION REVIEW

70-Year-Old Singer? Bing Does It Well

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — It often is alleged by me — that around age 50 a singer's voice tends to get the wobblies, misses the higher and lower notes and generally shows that time is unkind indeed.

Somebody should tip Bing Crosby on this. He doesn't seem to realize that at his age — 70 — you really aren't supposed to sing well, let alone sing. But he's doing both tonight on a one-hour CBS special.

The opus is called "Bing Crosby and His Friends," the friends being Bob Hope, Pearl Bailey and Sandy Duncan.

It has its share of flaws, the most prominent of which is Miss Duncan's vocalizing. But Der Bingle, who only sporadically appears on the tube, usually to tout orange juice, continues to surprise.

Not only is his baritone as mellow as ever, he still retains the deceptively casual sense of rhythm for which he's never gotten due credit, save from musicians and an aged Dixieland buff or two.

The best example comes about midway through the show when he rolls through a delightful time call "No Time At All" with all the apparent strain of a morning yawn.

He still swings with the best of them, and one only wishes he'd try a solo show — maybe just doing Johnny Mercer songs — some fine night.

Tonight's effort, taped at the Hollywood Palace, also features the time-honored Crosby-Hope verbal tomfoolery that goes back to their series of "Road" pictures. It starts with Hope's entrance.

"Well, it's the Henry Kissinger of Toluca Lake," Crosby notes.

Miss Bailey turns in a nice, if somewhat brief, solo stint singing and does some lively hoofing. Miss Duncan only dances well, appearing ill at ease when it's her turn to warble.

The show may not exactly knock you out, but it's a pleasant way to wile away an hour, if only for Crosby's singing and the excellent arrangements of musical director Peter Matz.

Dire Times dept.: ABC's Friday night schedule has been in severe ratings trouble ever since the season began. So the network is pre-empting all but "Kodiak" this Friday and repeating "True Grit" while program executives try to figure how to salvage the evening.

ABC sources expect an announcement of a series of cancellations, replacements, shifts in schedules or all of these to bolster its tatered Friday night effort.

But there'll be no changes until Nov. 1 at most. ABC says it's bumping all four of its Friday night series on Oct. 18 and 25 to show two other hit movies, "Gun of Navarone" and "Hatari."

Youth Wounded During Melee

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Chinese youth was wounded with a gunshot blast yesterday when a fight broke out during the noon lunch break at Galileo High School's main courtyard.

Police reported that witnesses saw more than 20 Chinese youths enter the yard and attack a 17-year-old black student with fists and clubs.

Others in the courtyard joined in the fight and a general melee followed, according to Sgt. Tom Mazzucco of the police Juvenile Division.

The wounded student was not identified. Two long butcher knives and one club was recovered from the courtyard by police.

Five-Year License Term Is Backed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted 62 to 10 yesterday to require that broadcast licenses be issued and renewable for a five-year term instead of the present three-year period.

The Senate adopted an amendment by Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., increasing the term of licenses issued by the Federal Communications Commission after defeating, 46 to 23, a substitute proposal by Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich. It would have given new licensees a three-year term, renewable for five-year periods.

The increased term was added to the broadcast license renewal bill which would direct the FCC to establish new rules and procedures requiring broadcasters to determine the problems, needs and interests of their audience and to reflect those "needs and interests" in their programming.

The bill, which passed 69 to 2, is similar to a House measure which also contains a five-year license provision.

The original Senate bill, as approved by the Commerce Committee, would have kept the existing three-year term.

Sen. John Pastore, D-R.I., chairman of the Communications Subcommittee, said the three-year term was necessary to protect the public's interest as well as those of minority groups seeking to deny renewal of a broadcaster's license.

The bill would direct the FCC in renewal cases to give overriding weight to three specific requirements in determining whether the public interest had been served. If the requirements are met, the bill would direct the FCC to presume that the "public interest . . . would be served by such renewal."

The requirements were: Whether a broadcaster has followed procedures to ascertain the needs and interests of the area he serves; whether the broadcaster has substantially met those needs and interests; and whether the station is not otherwise deficient in its operations.

The bill also would direct the FCC to complete proceedings on proposed rules governing multiple ownership of television stations.

Arguing for the longer five-year term, Tunney said it would help smaller stations with their "burdens" every three years of costly legal expenses and paperwork to win renewal challenges.

Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., said it was "unfair" to put the nation's more than 8,400 broadcasters "under the gun" every three years in order to maintain their licenses.

Impact Statement Hits Anti Abortion Move

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare told Congress yesterday a controversial anti-abortion amendment would virtually wipe out use of federal funds for abortions.

An official HEW impact statement to House-Senate conferees said the amendment would "severely constrain" medical schools in teaching abortion techniques, prohibit federally supported agencies from counseling on abortion services, and increase welfare costs by millions of dollars for maternity care for unwanted children.

A second statement by HEW's population affairs specialist, Dr. Louis Hellman, said the amendment would end federally financed abortions for rape victims, pregnant mothers suffering measles, and low-income mothers.

The sponsor of the amendment, Sen. Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., said federal agencies would still be permitted to advise an expectant mother where she could obtain an abortion and federal funds could still be used to train doctors to perform abortions to save a mother's life.

But, he said, while the Supreme Court legalized abortion, "the court certainly did not require Congress to pay for it."

Leukemia Fund Passes Halfway

The four bay counties, including Marin, have tallied more than half of the leukemia fund drive goal, with contributions still coming in, according to the Bay Area Chapter of the Leukemia Society of America.

Some $56,000 has been raised in Marin, San Francisco, Alameda and San Mateo counties toward the $100,000 goal, according to a leukemia chapter spokesman.

The drive ended Friday, but the money count has not been completed, he said.

Call It Baseball's Second Season

We are now well into baseball's second season. The playoffs and World Series are not simply a time for four teams and then two to do battle. The post season period is also a time for all of baseball to come together to view the teams in action, to discuss possible trades or to simply renew acquaintances in a social atmosphere.

Representatives of various stations of the baseball world always surface at this time. Players, managers, scouts, newsmen and front office people can all be seen mingling in the hotels and ballparks of the participating cities. It is a fun time, a time for telling of stories that somehow seem to improve with each retelling.

In Oakland the place to be both before and after the game is the Edgewater Hyatt House. Located directly across the freeway from the Oakland Coliseum its lobby, coffee shop and cocktail lounge are filled with baseball dignitaries at this time of the year.

The front entrance of the Edgewater is graced by the presence of our country's most famous mule, Charlie O. A small corral keeps him from roaming out onto the Nimitz Freeway.

The past weekend's baseball crowd included new Cleveland manager Frank Robinson. His official capacity was that of color commentator for NBC but he could be heard telling anyone and everyone that next year's postseason play would be held in Ohio.

ANOTHER ROOKIE commentator was Boston Red Sox manager Darrell Johnson. He helped broadcast the weekend series to the Armed Forces Radio Network. He told me that injured catcher Carlton Fisk was progressing very well and would be fine for next year. Johnson told a very interesting story about Terra Linda's Bill Lee, his top left-hander.

In the last days of the season the Red Sox and the Orioles hooked up in a game that had to be halted three times due to rain. The interruptions totalled more than three and one-half hours. The game finally took almost seven hours to complete. Winning pitcher Bill Lee pitched the entire game.

I'm glad to say that on Sunday I was able to congratulate Al Kaline on his 3,000 major league hits. He was in Oakland to receive the Joe Cronin Award for outstanding play during the 1974 American League season.

THE KEY DEFENSIVE play in yesterday's 1-0 Oakland win was turned in by the man who also made two errors, Dick Green. His great catch and tag on Ray Fosse's one-hop throw retired Don Baylor and kept the Orioles out of scoring position in the seventh inning.

Bears Leading Pac-8 Statistics

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — California's strong 31-14 win over previously unbeaten Illinois is reflected in latest Pac-8 individual statistics, which show three Bears leading key categories.

Chuck Muncie of the Bears is the new rushing leader with 350 yards in four games and an 87.5 yards per game average. Don Reynolds of Oregon (81.5), Andrew Jones of Washington State (76.8), Anthony Davis of USC (76.3) and Russel Charles of UCLA (71.0) are also close to the top.

Steve Bartkowski of Cal is the passing leader with an even 200 yards per game and his favorite target, Steve Rivera, has grabbed 23 passes for 364 yards to lead everybody else by at least a half-dozen catches.

Celtics Lose Cowens For 7-8 Weeks

BOSTON (UPI) — Center Dave Cowens will be lost to the NBA champion Boston Celtics for 7-8 weeks because of a fractured foot, the team announced today.

Cowens was injured after pushing off the right foot during the third quarter of an exhibition loss to the Milwaukee Bucks in New York last night. He was playing his first game since bruising the arch on the same foot 12 days ago in a game with Denver.

Celtic team physician Thomas Silva, one of three doctors examining Cowens this morning at University Hospital in Boston, diagnosed the injury as "an undisplaced fracture of the metatarsal bone" behind the big toe on Cowens' right foot.

The fifth year pro from Florida State will be on crutches for two weeks but will not have his foot placed in a cast, Dr. Silva said. "He should be able to play by the end of November."

The Bucks and Celtics, the NBA's two finalists last season, seem star-crossed. The last time the teams met a week ago, Bucks center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar suffered an eye injury and a broken hand after a run-in with Don Nelson and the basket support, in that order.

Cowen's injury yesterday occurred when the red-haired center pivoted on the tender foot in order to stay with the driving Cornell Warner. His foot gave way and Cowens came out of the game.

"I should only have played a little, I guess," said Cowens after the game. "I had put a lot of pressure on it before that but something happened when I pushed off it real hard."

The loss of Cowens means the Celtics will keep center Jim Ard, who was to be cut before the season began Oct. 18 against the Buffalo Braves at Boston Garden.

Robinson Plans To Manage In Winter League

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — Frank Robinson, recently named player-manager of the Cleveland Indians, will return this year as manager of the winter league Santurce Crabbers, the president of the club, Hiram Cuevas, announced yesterday.

Robinson has managed the Santurce team for five of the last six seasons and in a recent interview said the experience would be invaluable to him in taking the helm for the Indians.

Cuevas said Robinson promised to be on hand here 48 hours after the end of the world series, for which he is acting as a television commentator.

New Look Seals In Opener

OAKLAND (UPI) — Everything about the California Golden Seals will be different when they open the National Hockey League season tonight against St. Louis.

The Seals' front-office also hopes that California will be in a different spot in the standings than the usual last place when the season comes to a halt next spring.

INSIGNIA

California has a new insignia, drawn by Peanuts creator Charles Schulz, and a new blue-gold-white uniform with the old green look gone.

One major concern of Coach Marshall Johnston is that Jim Neilson may not be able to play tonight because of a swollen finger.

Neilson, a 12-year NHL veteran once chosen for an all-star game, is the man who is supposed to help transform the Seals into a more aggressive team this season. The defenseman was obtained from the New York Rangers in a three-way swap that sent forward Walt McKechnie to Boston.

IMPROVEMENT

The Seals surrendered more than four goals per game last season but that average was about cut in half during a 3-3-1 exhibition series.

Goalies Gilles Meloche, who will start tonight, Gary Simmons and Marv Edwards looked sharp but the main reason for the improvement was that "the defense moved the puck out of there," says Meloche.

About 6,000 fans are expected for tonight's 8 o'clock opener at the Coliseum Arena.

The NHL has aligned into new divisions named after Hall of Famers. The Seals are in the Charles F. Adams Division with Boston, Buffalo and Toronto.

Tension Lifts From A's In Drive For Championship

Tenace Critical Of Dark

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Captain Sal Bando sees some of the playing field tension lifted from the Oakland A's today as they try to wrap up their third straight American League pennant against the Baltimore Orioles in the championship playoff.

But there was evidence of another episode of clubhouse dissension in the ranks of the defending world champions who need only one victory to nail down their third straight flag.

"This win enables us to play looser," Bando said of yesterday's 1-0 Oakland victory fashioned on his fourth inning homer and Vida Blue's superlative two-hit pitching. "I like our chances."

The victory against Baltimore's Jim Palmer moved Oakland in front two games to one in the best of five series and gave the Athletics the momentum of two straight shutouts against their Eastern challengers.

However, a disgruntled Gene Tenace openly criticized a strategy move by Manager Al Dark in yesterday's close contest and the outspoken Oakland player took a verbal poke at owner Charlie Finley as well.

"I thought he did the wrong thing," Tenace said of Dark's decision to lift him for pinch runner Herb Washington in the seventh inning. "You don't take out your best defensive ballplayer at a given position. I was very disturbed over the whole thing."

He manifested his disagreement by slamming his batting helmet on the dugout floor and it ricocheted out onto the field.

He didn't give all the blame to Dark.

MOMENT OF DECISION — A's second baseman Dick Green appeared angry at umpire Marty Springstead, but he was really just excited after tagging out Oriole runner Don Baylor in the seventh inning yesterday at Baltimore. Baylor singled and tried to steal second, but was thrown out in the key play of the game.

(UPI Telephotos)

"It's definitely coming from Charlie," he declared of the clubowner's controversial hiring of sprinter Washington. "He's the one who introduced the designated runner and I'm sure the manager wants to get him into the game whenever he can."

Blue's overpowering pitching performance clearly gave the A's a psychological lift despite the rhubarb.

"He threw as hard as anyone can throw for nine innings," Dark summarized. "You can't pitch better than that."

Blue said he felt tired prior to the game because "we've played 162 games this year," and added: "This wasn't a particularly sweet win. I like to win any game."

The Oakland southpaw walked none, struck out seven and didn't let two errors by second baseman Dick Green unsettle him. None of the four Oriole runners got beyond first base.

"We don't beat Palmer unless Vida pitches the game he did," Bando said.

"Not a run in two games," he said. "That's why they win. It's no good to be down two games to one. It's no fun at all."

"I wish I'd walked him," Palmer said of the low fastball Bando banged into the leftfield stands. "But I didn't think one run would beat us."

Dark Uncertain Of Future

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Alvin Dark isn't sure where he'll be next year, whom he'll be working for, or whether he'll be working at all.

There's a chance, a good chance, particularly with the man he's working for, he may spend all of next baseball season playing golf regardless what the Oakland A's do from here on in.

"It's up to God," says Alvin Dark, who always carries a bible around with him now.

"If God wants me here, I'll be here; if he doesn't I won't be."

In this case, God is Charlie Finley, which is about the way Charlie had it figured all along. Alvin Dark doesn't really mean it that way when he says it, but the effect comes out pretty much the same.

Alvin Dark draws somewhere around $35,000 to $40,000 for managing Oakland and being at Charlie Finley's beck and call 24 hours a day. His predecessor, Dick Williams, got $70,000 for the same job, concluded the money wasn't worth it after three years, even after winning a world championship twice, quit and ultimately wound up with a nice $30,000 raise.

He was standing near the first base line before his team's 1-0 playoff victory over the Baltimore Orioles yesterday when Finley's name came up among some of the media members congregated about him.

"Have you enjoyed working for him?" one newsman asked Dark.

"I'd have to say I enjoyed it," he said.

"Has he been a burden on you?"

Alvin Dark was silent a second, and the writer who put the question to him elaborated on it, and referred to all the "help" Charlie Finley is known to offer every one of his managers.

"I've changed my thinking on that," Dark said. "All managers and general managers work very closely. I came into the job with this thought: he is the general manager and owner combined in one. I don't have a 'middle man' the way other managers do. It's his job to do what he's doing."

Dark paused again.

"For some reason, whenever Charlie Finley comes into the dugout or the clubhouse everybody makes something of it," he went on. "I don't think what he does is wrong. As a matter of fact, I've gone to him and said, 'Hey, Charlie, give me your thought on it.'

"I don't feel like any manager shouldn't have someone he is responsible to. Why, the President of the United States has got to be responsible to someone. In fact, it's Biblical, and if it's good enough for the Bible, it's good enough for me."

All this is lofty enough and up-lifting, but there are even many places in the Bible where you can read about trouble.

Redwood Remains Unbeaten

Three goals by Manny Natsios powered undefeated Redwood High School to a 5-1 victory over Drake in a Marin County Athletic League soccer game yesterday in San Anselmo.

In other games, Ken Tompkins scored three goals and Steve McCarthy two as Terra Linda shut out Marin Catholic, 5-0; San Marin got two goals each from Dirk Linder and Tom Abelew to defeat San Rafael, 5-2; and Novato downed Tamalpais, 2-1 with goals from Floyd Given and Ted Schardt.

League-leading Redwood, now 5-0 shut out league-leading scorer Hugo De La Roca; Doug Olson got the Drake goal, only the second scored off the Giants this season.

De La Roca, normally a center forward, was forced to start at center halfback in the absence of Ken Turnbull, who was injured early this week in a road accident. Turnbull will be lost to Drake for two or three weeks.

De La Roca has 12 goals in five games to 11 for Natsios.

Standings — Redwood, 5-0; Terra Linda, 3-0-1; San Marin, 3-1-1; Drake, 2-2-1; Novato, 2-2-1; Tamalpais, 2-3; Marin Catholic, 0-4-1; San Rafael, 0-5.

His predecessor, Dick Williams, got $70,000 for the same job, concluded the money wasn't worth it after three years, even after winning a world championship twice, quit and ultimately wound up with a nice $30,000 raise.

He was standing near the first base line before his team's 1-0 playoff victory over the Baltimore Orioles yesterday when Finley's name came up among some of the media members congregated about him.

"Have you enjoyed working for him?" one newsman asked Dark.

"I'd have to say I enjoyed it," he said.

"Has he been a burden on you?"

Alvin Dark was silent a second, and the writer who put the question to him elaborated on it, and referred to all the "help" Charlie Finley is known to offer every one of his managers.

"I've changed my thinking on that," Dark said. "All managers and general managers work very closely. I came into the job with this thought: he is the general manager and owner combined in one. I don't have a 'middle man' the way other managers do. It's his job to do what he's doing."

Dark paused again.

"For some reason, whenever Charlie Finley comes into the dugout or the clubhouse everybody makes something of it," he went on. "I don't think what he does is wrong. As a matter of fact, I've gone to him and said, 'Hey, Charlie, give me your thought on it.'

"I don't feel like any manager shouldn't have someone he is responsible to. Why, the President of the United States has got to be responsible to someone. In fact, it's Biblical, and if it's good enough for the Bible, it's good enough for me."

All this is lofty enough and up-lifting, but there are even many places in the Bible where you can read about trouble.

Redwood Remains Unbeaten

Three goals by Manny Natsios powered undefeated Redwood High School to a 5-1 victory over Drake in a Marin County Athletic League soccer game yesterday in San Anselmo.

In other games, Ken Tompkins scored three goals and Steve McCarthy two as Terra Linda shut out Marin Catholic, 5-0; San Marin got two goals each from Dirk Linder and Tom Abelew to defeat San Rafael, 5-2; and Novato downed Tamalpais, 2-1 with goals from Floyd Given and Ted Schardt.

League-leading Redwood, now 5-0 shut out league-leading scorer Hugo De La Roca; Doug Olson got the Drake goal, only the second scored off the Giants this season.

De La Roca, normally a center forward, was forced to start at center halfback in the absence of Ken Turnbull, who was injured early this week in a road accident. Turnbull will be lost to Drake for two or three weeks.

De La Roca has 12 goals in five games to 11 for Natsios.

Standings — Redwood, 5-0; Terra Linda, 3-0-1; San Marin, 3-1-1; Drake, 2-2-1; Novato, 2-2-1; Tamalpais, 2-3; Marin Catholic, 0-4-1; San Rafael, 0-5.

Struggling WFL Resumes Action

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

And then there were 10...with nine a distinct possibility by season's end.

The World Football League is making rapid progress — backward — and that means only five games will be played this week instead of the customary six. We have paid our last respects to the Detroit Wheels and Jacksonville Sharks and with that done away with, can the Florida Blazers be far behind?

The "waffle" or "whiffle" if you prefer, resumes play tonight with what remains of its schedule — Portland at Birmingham, the Hawaiians at Philadelphia, Memphis at Charlotte, N.C., and Florida, the latest franchise to be taken over by the league office, at Chicago.

Two other survivors — Shreveport, La., and Southern California play tomorrow night on the west coast.

The league mounted a surprise challenge to the National Football League before play began in the older, established league by signing some top NFL stars for play in 1975. But since then, the latest brainstorm of Gary Davidson has run into a series of disasters, the latest being the folding of the Detroit and Jacksonville franchises.

Under the guidance of young Davidson, the WFL now has assumed the operation of two franchises, the abortive New York club which was transferred to Charlotte, and the Houston team which now masquerades as the entry from Shreveport.

While Davidson's other new league ventures survive in the World Hockey Association and the American Basketball Association, his WFL appears in dire trouble. Attendance figures, hypoed by free admissions in opening games, have slumped steadily, and the pressures of inflation have driven projected first season financial losses to heights never anticipated.

But the league insisted yesterday that the contracts of players now in uniform, and the agreements reached with such NFL stars as Larry Csonka, Kenny Stabler, Paul Warfield, Craig Morton and Ted Hendricks would still be honored.

Obviously, the league still hopes that with these names joining the ranks in the next two years, surivival is still a reality. But now, in its 15th week of operation, the problems continue to mount, and there is little talk of the "world" aspect of the new league.

World Casting Runaway By San Francisco Youth

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

TAREE, Australia — Steven Rajeff, 17, of San Francisco, became the first competitor ever to win four events in a row at a world casting championship when he took out the inland fly accuracy title today.

Yesterday Rajeff showed he would be the competitor to beat in the world title this year by winning the first three events — the skish fly accuracy, the three-eighths ounce and five-eighths ounce skish competition.

Hockey

PRAGUE — A rejuvenated Czechoslovak hockey team jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the first 10 minutes yesterday and went on to hand Team Canada a 3-1 defeat in the final game of its European visit.

Baseball

CLEVELAND — Frank Robinson, the new player-manager of the Cleveland Indians, will have new coaches for the 1975 season.

General manager Phil Seghi announced yesterday that the tribes' coaching trio of Larry Doby, Clay Bryant and Tony Pacheco would not have their contracts renewed.

Opening Win

Basketball

MILWAUKEE — The Milwaukee Bucks said yesterday they had obtained forward Steve Kuberski and given up forward Russell Lee in a deal with the New Orleans Jazz.

The Bucks also gave up their 1975 first round draft pick and an undisclosed amount of cash while New Orleans handed over its right to a 1975 second round pick which the Jazz had obtained earlier from the Phoenix Suns.

Tennis

TOKYO — Cliff Drysdale of South Africa today defeated Bob Rheinberger of Australia 6-2, 6-4 in the second round of the men's singles in the $100,000 1974 Japan Open tennis tournament.

No. 1 seeded John Newcomb of Australia, who drew a bye in the first round and arrived yesterday from Honolulu, defeated Mitsuru Motoi of Japan 6-1, 6-2.

PHOENIX — Unseeded Wendy Overton pulled a stunning first-round upset over third-seeded Evonne Goolagong last night in the $50,000 Virginia Slims-Phoenix tennis tournament, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4.

Davis' Knee Injury Turns Out To Be Only A Bruise

OAKLAND (UPI) — Clarence Davis' knee injury is only a bruise and he says he'll be ready to play Sunday when the Oakland Raiders call on San Diego.

Meanwhile, lefty quarterback Ken Stabler says he is depressed that he is not throwing the ball well despite the Raiders' 3-1 record and 40-24 win at Cleveland Sunday.

"I don't really know why, but I'm not throwing the ball at all as I was last season at this time," he insists. "My 47.8 per cent average tells it pretty well."

Although Stabler complained about his passing, nary a peep was heard from the coaches after his 19-of-33 for 237 yards and three touchdowns against the Browns.

Davis had maybe his biggest day as a pro in that game as he ran for 116 yards and caught four passes before limping off late in the contest. He was loaded aboard the team plane in a wheelchair lest the injury be a serious one but he got the word it was only a bruise yesterday.

Although Davis insists he'll play Sunday, the Raiders are listing him as "questionable" for the Chargers, especially since Charlie Smith is expected to be back in action after recovering from a pulled leg muscle. They may want to rest Davis so he'll be sure to be healthy the rest of the way.

Marin Ends Tamalpais Net Streak

Marin Catholic High School edged previously unbeaten Tamalpais, 4-3, and undefeated Redwood blanked Novato, 7-0 in Marin County Athletic League girls' tennis yesterday.

In other matches, Drake edged Terra Linda, 4-3, and Marin Academy defeated San Marin, 5-2.

Marin Catholic's victory was decided in doubles, where Moe O'Connel and Paula Carbone of the Wildcats defeatec Tam's Marie Haxton and Ann Laneshi, 10-6.

Stars Not Worried About WFL Woes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The financial problems of the World Football League don't seem to worry three Bay Area pro stars who plan to jump to the new league.

San Francisco 49er tight end Ted Kwalkick has signed with the Hawaiians of the WFL for nearly $1 million over three years, with fringe benefits reportedly including a home in the islands.

"I'm not concerned about the WFL now. I'm thinking about the 49er season," says Kwalick, who will joint the new league in 1975. "About my contract, that is no worry. The money is there. It is guaranteed. That's all I can say."

Oakland Raider quarterbacks Ken Stabler and Daryle Lamonica are headed for the Birmingham Americans and Southern California Sun under similarly lucrative pacts.

Stabler will play for Oakland two more years and Lamonica will join the WFL next season.

"If they go broke, then they go broke," Stabler said yesterday. "I'm not worried about it."

Stabler said he is concentrating on San Diego, the Raiders' next opponent. He said "the WFL is two years away. I'm just thinking about what we have to do right now."

Both quarterbacks said their payment on multi-year contracts is insured, the money already in escrow or insured.

Lamonica said "the league will make it. I'm sure they anticipated these losses."

Lamonica has seen only a few moments of action since the Raiders have relegated him to reserve duty. He admitted he was resigned to playing little this season.

"It's what I expected, it's what I'm getting," Lamonica said. "But it's hard. Damn hard."

Marin Booters Defeat Ohlone

All-American Misak Pirinjian scored on a direct shot with six minutes left yesterday to give College of Marin a 3-2 victory over Ohlone of Fremont in a non-league soccer game at Kentfield.

Mike Linder scored his eighth and ninth goals of the season for the Tars, who twice came from behind to record their fourth win against four losses and a tie. Linder's second goal came with 12 minutes to go in the game.

Fall Tennis Classes Set In Strawberry

The Strawberry Recreation District will hold a fall series of tennis classes from Oct. 14 to Nov. 4.

There will be children's and adults' classes, according to Gayle L. Hunter, district manager. Fees are $8 for residents and $10 for non-residents. Registration can be made at the district recreation center.

Raiders Favored, 49ers Underdogs

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals, one of three undefeated teams in the national football league, were given an underdog role in odds posted yesterday by HVARRAH'S Tahoe racebook.

The Dallas Cowboys are a three-point choice over the Cardinals, who have won four straight.

Minnesota and New England, the remaining unbeatens, are favored in this weekend's action. The Vikings are picked by 18 over Houston and New England by three over the New York Jets.

In other NFL games, the racebook has Oakland 15 over San Diego; Detroit 10 over San Francisco; Cincinnati 10 over Cleveland; Miami seven over Washington; Philadelphia six over the New York Giants; Chicago four over Atlanta; Pittsburgh eight over Kansas City; Buffalo 15 over Baltimore; Los Angeles 12 over Green Bay and Denver 14 over New Orleans.

On the collegiate front, No. 1-ranked Ohio State is a 22-point choice over Wisconsin in the big-10 opener; No. 3 Michigan 21 over cross-state rival Michigan State; and No. 4 Nebraska is 21 over Missouri.

Other games have California eight over Oregon; UCLA 11 over Stanford; Southern California 20 over Washington State; Washington-Oregon State even; Duke 20 over Army; Maryland 21 over Clemson; Penn State seven over Wake Forest; Purdue two over Illinois; Syracuse three over Navy; North Carolina State 14 over Virginia; Georgia four over Mississippi; North Carolina four over Georgia Tech; Auburn 11 over Kentucky; Iowa two over Northwestern; Kansas eight over Kansas State; Notre Dame 33 over Rice; Florida seven over Vanderbilt; Minnesota 10 over Indiana; Arkansas 14 over Baylor; Oklahoma 25 over Texas; Tulane seven over Air Force; Colorado seven over Iowa State; Texas A&M three over Texas Tech; South Carolina 15 over Virginia Tech; Southern Methodist eight over Texas Christian; and Louisiana State six over Tennessee.

Three-Way Tie In Water Polo

Terra Linda High School edged San Rafael, 11-10, yesterday to throw the Marin County Athletic League water polo standings into a three-way tie for first place.

Tom Enright scored six goals to pace the Terra Linda victory. The Trojans are tied for first at 2-1 with San Rafael and the Redwood Giants, who walloped Tamalpais, 40-12 in yesterday's other game.

STATEMENT OF POLICY REGARDING POLITICAL ADVERTISING

Any political advertisement that is not clearly the personal appeal of the elective candidate or candidates involved must show the name of the sponsoring group together with the name or names of one or more persons officiating for such group and their address.

All political advertisements are payable in advance. Charges are figured at the prevailing flat rate.

Advertising deadlines are 4 p.m., two working days preceding publication. Tuesday advertisements must be in Friday by 4 p.m., Monday advertisements must be in the preceding Friday morning by 11:00 a.m. Any intervening holiday advances the deadline by a day.

No responsibility to show printer's proof is assumed under the above schedule.

If a proof is desired, advertisement must be submitted substantially in advance. Corrections, if any, must be ordered by 4 p.m., two working days preceding publication. Any changes from original copy will be charged for on basis of printing work involved.

Struggling WFL Resumes Action

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

And then there were 10...with nine a distinct possibility by season's end.

The World Football League is making rapid progress — backward — and that means only five games will be played this week instead of the customary six. We have paid our last respects to the Detroit Wheels and Jacksonville Sharks and with that done away with, can the Florida Blazers be far behind?

The "waffle" or "whiffle" if you prefer, resumes play tonight with what remains of its schedule — Portland at Birmingham, the Hawaiians at Philadelphia, Memphis at Charlotte, N.C., and Florida, the latest franchise to be taken over by the league office, at Chicago.

Two other survivors — Shreveport, La., and Southern California play tomorrow night on the west coast.

The league mounted a surprise challenge to the National Football League before play began in the older, established league by signing some top NFL stars for play in 1975. But since then, the latest brainstorm of Gary Davidson has run into a series of disasters, the latest being the folding of the Detroit and Jacksonville franchises.

Under the guidance of young Davidson, the WFL now has assumed the operation of two franchises, the abortive New York club which was transferred to Charlotte, and the Houston team which now masquerades as the entry from Shreveport.

While Davidson's other new league ventures survive in the World Hockey Association and the American Basketball Association, his WFL appears in dire trouble. Attendance figures, hypoed by free admissions in opening games, have slumped steadily, and the pressures of inflation have driven projected first season financial losses to heights never anticipated.

But the league insisted yesterday that the contracts of players now in uniform, and the agreements reached with such NFL stars as Larry Csonka, Kenny Stabler, Paul Warfield, Craig Morton and Ted Hendricks would still be honored.

Obviously, the league still hopes that with these names joining the ranks in the next two years, surivival is still a reality. But now, in its 15th week of operation, the problems continue to mount, and there is little talk of the "world" aspect of the new league.

SAFE AT SECOND

Rennie Stennet of Pittsburgh slid safely past Dodger second baseman Dave Lopes in the first inning of yesterday's National League playoff game in Los Angeles. Stennet was running from first on a grounder by Manny Sanguillen. He scored moments later on a homer by Willie Stargell. The Pirates won, 7-0.

World Casting Runaway By San Francisco Youth

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

TAREE, Australia — Steven Rajeff, 17, of San Francisco, became the first competitor ever to win four events in a row at a world casting championship when he took out the inland fly accuracy title today.

Yesterday Rajeff showed he would be the competitor to beat in the world title this year by winning the first three events — the skish fly accuracy, the three-eighths ounce and five-eighths ounce skish competition.

SPORTS SHORTS

Hockey

PRAGUE — A rejuvenated Czechoslovak hockey team jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the first 10 minutes yesterday and went on to hand Team Canada a 3-1 defeat in the final game of its European visit.

Baseball

CLEVELAND — Frank Robinson, the new player-manager of the Cleveland Indians, will have new coaches for the 1975 season.

General manager Phil Seghi announced yesterday that the tribes' coaching trio of Larry Doby, Clay Bryant and Tony Pacheco would not have their contracts renewed.

Opening Win

Basketball

MILWAUKEE — The Milwaukee Bucks said yesterday they had obtained forward Steve Kuberski and given up forward Russell Lee in a deal with the New Orleans Jazz.

The Bucks also gave up their 1975 first round draft pick and an undisclosed amount of cash while New Orleans handed over its right to a 1975 second round pick which the Jazz had obtained earlier from the Phoenix Suns.

Tennis

TOKYO — Cliff Drysdale of South Africa today defeated Bob Rheinberger of Australia 6-2, 6-4 in the second round of the men's singles in the $100,000 1974 Japan Open tennis tournament.

No. 1 seeded John Newcomb of Australia, who drew a bye in the first round and arrived yesterday from Honolulu, defeated Mitsuru Motoi of Japan 6-1, 6-2.

PHOENIX — Unseeded Wendy Overton pulled a stunning first-round upset over third-seeded Evonne Goolagong last night in the $50,000 Virginia Slims-Phoenix tennis tournament, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4.

Davis' Knee Injury Turns Out To Be Only A Bruise

OAKLAND (UPI) — Clarence Davis' knee injury is only a bruise and he says he'll be ready to play Sunday when the Oakland Raiders call on San Diego.

Meanwhile, lefty quarterback Ken Stabler says he is depressed that he is not throwing the ball well despite the Raiders' 3-1 record and 40-24 win at Cleveland Sunday.

"I don't really know why, but I'm not throwing the ball at all as I was last season at this time," he insists. "My 47.8 per cent average tells it pretty well."

Although Stabler complained about his passing, nary a peep was heard from the coaches after his 19-of-33 for 237 yards and three touchdowns against the Browns.

Davis had maybe his biggest day as a pro in that game as he ran for 116 yards and caught four passes before limping off late in the contest. He was loaded aboard the team plane in a wheelchair lest the injury be a serious one but he got the word it was only a bruise yesterday.

Although Davis insists he'll play Sunday, the Raiders are listing him as "questionable" for the Chargers, especially since Charlie Smith is expected to be back in action after recovering from a pulled leg muscle. They may want to rest Davis so he'll be sure to be healthy the rest of the way.

Marin Ends Tamalpais Net Streak

Marin Catholic High School edged previously unbeaten Tamalpais, 4-3, and undefeated Redwood blanked Novato, 7-0 in Marin County Athletic League girls' tennis yesterday.

In other matches, Drake edged Terra Linda, 4-3, and Marin Academy defeated San Marin, 5-2.

Marin Catholic's victory was decided in doubles, where Moe O'Connel and Paula Carbone of the Wildcats defeatec Tam's Marie Haxton and Ann Laneshi, 10-6.

Marin Catholic 4, Tamalpais 3
Singles — Alex Beritzhoff (MC) d. Sydne Stempien, 10-5; Maureen Doherty (MC) d. Kim Jessup, 10-3; Andrea Goldfien (T) d. Cathy Doherty, 10-3.

Stars Not Worried About WFL Woes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The financial problems of the World Football League don't seem to worry three Bay Area pro stars who plan to jump to the new league.

San Francisco 49er tight end Ted Kwalkick has signed with the Hawaiians of the WFL for nearly $1 million over three years, with fringe benefits reportedly including a home in the islands.

"I'm not concerned about the WFL now. I'm thinking about the 49er season," says Kwalick, who will joint the new league in 1975. "About my contract, that is no worry. The money is there. It is guaranteed. That's all I can say."

Oakland Raider quarterbacks Ken Stabler and Daryle Lamonica are headed for the Birmingham Americans and Southern California Sun under similarly lucrative pacts.

Stabler will play for Oakland two more years and Lamonica will join the WFL next season.

"If they go broke, then they go broke," Stabler said yesterday. "I'm not worried about it."

Stabler said he is concentrating on San Diego, the Raiders' next opponent. He said "the WFL is two years away. I'm just thinking about what we have to do right now."

Both quarterbacks said their payment on multi-year contracts is insured, the money already in escrow or insured.

Lamonica said "the league will make it. I'm sure they anticipated these losses."

Lamonica has seen only a few moments of action since the Raiders have relegated him to reserve duty. He admitted he was resigned to playing little this season.

"It's what I expected, it's what I'm getting," Lamonica said. "But it's hard. Damn hard."

Marin Booters Defeat Ohlone

All-American Misak Pirinjian scored on a direct shot with six minutes left yesterday to give College of Marin a 3-2 victory over Ohlone of Fremont in a non-league soccer game at Kentfield.

Mike Linder scored his eighth and ninth goals of the season for the Tars, who twice came from behind to record their fourth win against four losses and a tie. Linder's second goal came with 12 minutes to go in the game.

Fall Tennis Classes Set In Strawberry

The Strawberry Recreation District will hold a fall series of tennis classes from Oct. 14 to Nov. 4.

There will be children's and adults' classes, according to Gayle L. Hunter, district manager. Fees are $8 for residents and $10 for non-residents. Registration can be made at the district recreation center.

Raiders Favored, 49ers Underdogs

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals, one of three undefeated teams in the national football league, were given an underdog role in odds posted yesterday by HVARRAH'S Tahoe racebook.

The Dallas Cowboys are a three-point choice over the Cardinals, who have won four straight.

Minnesota and New England, the remaining unbeatens, are favored in this weekend's action. The Vikings are picked by 18 over Houston and New England by three over the New York Jets.

In other NFL games, the racebook has Oakland 15 over San Diego; Detroit 10 over San Francisco; Cincinnati 10 over Cleveland; Miami seven over Washington; Philadelphia six over the New York Giants; Chicago four over Atlanta; Pittsburgh eight over Kansas City; Buffalo 15 over Baltimore; Los Angeles 12 over Green Bay and Denver 14 over New Orleans.

On the collegiate front, No. 1-ranked Ohio State is a 22-point choice over Wisconsin in the big-10 opener; No. 3 Michigan 21 over cross-state rival Michigan State; and No. 4 Nebraska is 21 over Missouri.

Other games have California eight over Oregon; UCLA 11 over Stanford; Southern California 20 over Washington State; Washington-Oregon State even; Duke 20 over Army; Maryland 21 over Clemson; Penn State seven over Wake Forest; Purdue two over Illinois; Syracuse three over Navy; North Carolina State 14 over Virginia; Georgia four over Mississippi; North Carolina four over Georgia Tech; Auburn 11 over Kentucky; Iowa two over Northwestern; Kansas eight over Kansas State; Notre Dame 33 over Rice; Florida seven over Vanderbilt; Minnesota 10 over Indiana; Arkansas 14 over Baylor; Oklahoma 25 over Texas; Tulane seven over Air Force; Colorado seven over Iowa State; Texas A&M three over Texas Tech; South Carolina 15 over Virginia Tech; Southern Methodist eight over Texas Christian; and Louisiana State six over Tennessee.

Three-Way Tie In Water Polo

Terra Linda High School edged San Rafael, 11-10, yesterday to throw the Marin County Athletic League water polo standings into a three-way tie for first place.

Tom Enright scored six goals to pace the Terra Linda victory. The Trojans are tied for first at 2-1 with San Rafael and the Redwood Giants, who walloped Tamalpais, 40-12 in yesterday's other game.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Boat Owner Groups At Your Service

A reader writes:

Are there any organizations which truly represent the interests of the small boat operator?

Another asks: "Are there any groups anywhere in the United States which will keep the average boater informed of trends and influences in boating? Will anybody report the creeping bureaucracy which is tending to engulf the American boatman in new rules, regulations and restrictions of his sport?"

There are a couple of groups which fall into this category. One of them is Boat Owners Association of the U.S. (Boat U.S.), based in Washington. Boat-U.S. also provides insurance and financing programs for pleasure craft operators. The other is called the Boat Owners Council of America (BOCA) and is based in Chicago.

BOCA is a non-profit organization designed for the man who doesn't belong to any other group. It's for the unorganized or the anti-organized boat owner.

The Council gets financial support from the Boating Industry Association, which naturally has a small axe to grind. This group, which represents manufactures of boats, outboards and other boating equipment, wants to keep boating the free, growing sport. The council wants to keep its devotees buying their products. This is not bad.

It costs $5 a year to belong to BOCA. Members get a kit containing legislative handbooks, safety materials and identifying pennants. They are kept abreast of developments by newsletters and a color magazine called "WaterSport." Watersport contains no advertising.

BOCA keeps a man permanently in Washington to watch for developments affecting the nation's boaters. It also watches state legislatures because every state always has some kind of restrictive boating legislation under consideration.

Membership is 30,000 now and is steadily increasing. Every boater should join.

There is considerable confusion among boaters about boating organizations and groups and their functions. This is demonstrated by some of the letters I've received this year:

Q. My state doesn't have much water, where can I get free boating lessons.

A. Write to United States Power Squadrons, Box 345, Montavale, N.J., 07645, for the location of the Power Squadron closest to you. You'll find one even in the desert.

Q. How can I get connected with the Coast Guard Auxiliary on the West Coast?

A. Write to the Commanding Officer of the Thirteenth Coast Guard District, 618 2nd Ave., Seattle, Wash., 98104, and ask for the closest "flotilla." That's what they call a unit of the auxiliary. It is not a police organization in any respect. The Auxiliary is a volunteer group of private boaters or yachtsmen, banded together to augment this important branch of public service.

Q. Where can I get help in forming a boating club with emphasis on water skiing?

A. Write to the Outboard Boating Club of America, 401 North Michigan Ave., Chicago, Illinois 60611. This is an organization affiliated with the Boat Owners Council we mentioned earlier. It is very helpful.

Q. I have had a ship to shore radio for some time, now I discover I have to get a license . . . Where?

A. You need two licenses . . . one for the station and one for the operator. Get forms FCC 501 and FCC 753 from the closest field office building in your state capital, or you can apply directly to the FCC ships licenses division, Washington, D.C. Fill in the forms and return them to the Washington address.

Q. Is the Power Squadron movement international. Would it be helpful in an overseas cruise?

A. Only Canada has a Power Squadrons organization like the USPS. In fact, you can hardly tell them apart. Yacht club affiliations are more useful for cruises to the Bahamas, Mexico, Britain or Europe.

Q. Does the Coast Guard set the rules for speedboat racing?

A. No. If you have aspirations of becoming a racing boat driver write to the American Power Boat Association, 22811 Greater Mack, St. Clair Shores, Michigan, 48080; Harry Smith executive secretary.

Q. Is there available anywhere a list of all boats, engines, etc., available in the world?

A. Write for Boat Owners Buyers Guide, 50 West 44th St., New York, N.Y. 10036. It may not cover the entire world, but what's left out is insignificant.

Willard Listed As 'Doubtful'

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Running back Ken Willard is listed as doubtful with a knee injury for the St. Louis Cardinals' game with Dallas at Busch Stadium Sunday.

Willard twisted the knee in the first half of the Cardinals 34-9 win over San Francisco last Sunday.

Wide receiver Mel Gray, who hurt his ankle in the game, and offensive tackle Ernie McMillan, who suffered an injured foot, are listed as probable for the Dallas game.

Overtime Victory For Lakers, 116-113

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — Guard Gail Goodrich scored a game-high 27 points to provide the Los Angeles Lakers with a 116-113 overtime victory last night over the Phoenix Suns in a National Basketball Association pre-season game.

Cordova Wins Job At QB

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sophomore Mike Cordova will be the starting quarterback for Stanford when the Cardinals open their 1974 Pacific-8 conference football season against UCLA Saturday night in Los Angeles, Coach Jack Christiansen announced.

"I think Mike can do the job best," Christiansen told the Northern California Football Writers meeting here yesterday.

Cordova alternated this fall at quarterback with Guy Benjamin and Jerry Waldvogel while Stanford ran up an 0-3-1 record. Christiansen refused to name a first-string signal caller earlier because he promised each quarterback a chance to start.

"Guy and Jerry played well, but Mike has the size, strength and ability to run with the ball and throw the ball," Christiansen said.

The 6-foot-4, 215-pound Cordova went the distance in Stanford's season opener against Penn State, and passed for 301 yards in a narrow 24-20 loss. He currently ranks 15th in the nation in total offense and eighth in passing.

Christiansen emphasized, however, that Cordova is not yet confirmed as the starting quarterback for the rest of the season.

Browns Not Wasting Time Signing Players

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Cleveland Browns, with the signing of defensive tackle Jerry Sherk to a three-year pact, now have 31 of their 47 players under contract through the 1975 season.

Sherk, the bulwark of the Browns defensive line along with Walter Johnson, had been eyeing a World Football League contract but decided to stay with the Browns. Sherk, the last player to sign this year with the Browns, is committed to the club through 1976.

QUITE A PROBLEM

49ers' Offense All Run, No Pass

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — About this time a year ago, John Brodie was the starting quarterback for the San Francisco 49ers and the club was being criticized for being all-pass and almost no-run.

But this is 1974. Brodie has retired, heir apparent Steve Spurrier has suffered a shoulder separation, and now the 49er offense is all-run, no-pass and headed for few victories.

The Golden Gate club is the No. 1 rushing team in the National Conference of the National Football League, but last in passing. More importantly, they are trailing the Los Angeles Rams in the NFC West.

The 49ers will carry a 2-2 record into Monday night's game against Detroit, but most of the credit for those two wins goes to a stubborn 49er defense and opponent miscues.

"We hoped to have a solid running game. Now we've got it," said Don Heinrich, who coaches the 49er quarterbacks. "But something's happened to our passing."

What's happened is that Joe Reed, the strongest armed of the 49er quarterbacks, isn't hitting anything but astroturf with his passes.

"I'm sure he has his own thoughts on the matter," Heinrich said, "but everyone — quarterbacks, golfers, baseball players — has his slumps."

Inexperienced left-hander Dennis Morrison will start in place of Reed against Detroit. If he can't regenerate the 49er attack, enter rookie Tom Owen. If he fails, and Steve Spurrier still hasn't recovered fully, the 49er offense becomes problematical.

Boat Owner Groups At Your Service

A reader writes:

Are there any organizations which truly represent the interests of the small boat operator?

Another asks: "Are there any groups anywhere in the United States which will keep the average boater informed of trends and influences in boating? Will anybody report the creeping bureaucracy which is tending to engulf the American boatman in new rules, regulations and restrictions of his sport?"

There are a couple of groups which fall into this category. One of them is Boat Owners Association of the U.S. (Boat U.S.), based in Washington. Boat-U.S. also provides insurance and financing programs for pleasure craft operators. The other is called the Boat Owners Council of America (BOCA) and is based in Chicago.

BOCA is a non-profit organization designed for the man who doesn't belong to any other group. It's for the unorganized or the anti-organized boat owner.

The Council gets financial support from the Boating Industry Association, which naturally has a small axe to grind. This group, which represents manufactures of boats, outboards and other boating equipment, wants to keep boating the free, growing sport. The council wants to keep its devotees buying their products. This is not bad.

PIRATE POWER — Pittsburgh Pirate strongman Willie Stargell belted this pitch from Dodger starter Doug Rau for a three-run home run in the first inning yesterday at Los Angeles. The Pirates got five runs in the inning and went on to a 7-0 victory in the third game of the National League playoffs. (UPI Telephoto)

IT WAS MATTER OF TIME

Loud Crash Of Pirate Timber

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Danny Murtaugh, Willie Stargell and Bruce Kison agree — it was just a matter of time before the crash of Pirate timber began echoing in the Dodger forest.

Pittsburgh's 7-0 pasting of the Dodgers yesterday — cutting Los Angeles' lead in the National League playoff series to 2-1 — was the largest margin of victory ever in a major league championship series game.

"The Pirates can really explode when they get hot and we did it today," said winning pitcher Kison, a long and lanky 24-year-old righthander. "We have some of the best hitters in baseball and you can't stop them forever."

Stargell, who blasted a three-run home run in the first inning that proved all the Pirates needed, wanted to share some of the credit.

"Good pitching stops good hitting and Bruce Kison was super," said Stargell, who went into the third game of the series with a .412 average.

"We knew we had a job to do, otherwise it was back to Pittsburgh," said the Pirate muscleman. "Now we hope we can bring it down to the wire."

Pirate manager Murtaugh, who celebrated his 57th birthday yesterday, was asked if he could think of a better present than the victory.

Murtaugh, hesitating for a moment, suddenly lit up. "When I was younger, yes!"

Kison allowed the Dodgers only two hits, struck out five and walked sixth before he tired and was relieved in the seventh. But he said his troublesome finger problem was not a factor.

"During the season, my thumb would get irritated by about the fifth inning and a blood blister would develop by the seventh," Kison said.

"At the end of this game, I was just tired," he said. "My thumb did get irritated but there was no blister."

Kison, who lives with his wife and daughter in North Versailes, Pa., had pitched 13 innings of post-season competition previously and had given up only four hits. His record in playoff and World Series play is 4-0.

"This was my first start in a post-season game," he said. "I'd be lying to say I wasn't nervous before the game. Our backs were against the wall and I was starting. Last night when I went to sleep, hitters kept going through my mind."

Asked why he was so successful as a post-season pitcher, Kison replied: "You might ask the guy up above."

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Jacksonville Sharks coaches and players yesterday expressed dismay and confusion at the suspension of the World Football League team, and some players even packed their bags to leave.

The financially-plagued Sharks were suspended by the World Football League Monday night and given just 48 hours to come up with a new owner or be disbanded.

WFL Commissioner Gary Davidson said in Newport Beach, Calif. in making the announcement, that if the team is disbanded the players will be subject to a draft to distribute them to other WFL teams.

The league estimates that a potential investor would have to come in with at least $1 million "up front" to obtain the Sharks. League officials indicated that the earlier price had been $2.5 million.

Shark's head coach Charlie Tate said yesterday he doesn't think the WFL wants to disband the team. "We've got to sit tight. We don't have any choice. Hopefully something good will happen in the next few hours," Tate said.

The 70 players on the roster, who have received only one weekly paycheck in the last five games, are sitting around waiting for something to happen. Many of them have their bags half-packed.

Coach Tate said "I don't know what is going on, our front office doesn't know what is going on, the media doesn't know what is going on and the league office doesn't know what is going on," he said.

Place kicker Grant Guthrie said he just wants something to happen. "This has hurt my family already," he said. "If I have to go somewhere else I want to go right now."

"I'm almost sorry to hear we have another 48 hours," Guthrie said. "I've been loyal long enough — if I can get into the National Football League I'm going."

"If the draft is held, I'll have to go because I'm still WFL property," said defensive end Bob Tatarek. "If I don't go, I'll have to forfeit my back pay. I don't know whether it would be better to sue the league for our back pay and future pay or go to the draft."

Dorsett's Figures

Tony Dorsett of Pitt led collegiate rushers last season with 1,586 yards. He scored 12 touchdowns.

WITH U.S. EQUIPMENT

They're Bowling In A Moscow Tent

By GEORGE MONEYHUM
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Sketch by Gene Langley

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The latest rumblings in Moscow are coming from bowling balls stamped "Made in America."

In one of the lesser-noticed triumphs of detente, the Soviet Union has opened its first public bowling alleys in a completely automated 16-lane center built by an American firm and sent all the way from Skokie, Ill. — "with love."

On hand to cheer this new stride up the alley of international cooperation — and give Soviet novices a few tips on the fine art of lobbing a big ball down a small lane — were a group of U.S. businessmen, bowling champions, and diplomats.

As might be expected, the first bowling center in the USSR is said to be like no other in the world — mainly because the alleys are housed in a huge air-supported tent. Built and manufactured in Sweden, the tent measures 100 feet by 150 feet at its base, and rises — with the help of constant air blowers — 40 feet above Moscow's Gorki Park.

Now for only 50 kopecks a game — about 68 cents — Muscovites can follow the footsteps of some 8.5 million Americans every week.

The American bowling equipment was purchased by the Soviets following a recreational trade show held in Gorki Park in 1971. After the three-week show, the Soviets signed a five-year agreement with the Brunswick Corporation of Skokie, Ill., to purchase and install 24 lanes — 16 to be installed initially and the remaining eight later. The bowling equipment was shipped to the Soviet Union via the St. Lawrence Seaway in 1972 and held there until the Gorki Park site was selected.

But it wasn't only the bowling equipment that caught the Soviets' imagination. From that 1971 show, they also bought a West German roller-coaster, "dodge-em" cars made in Italy, a shooting gallery from Great Britain, and another set of bowling lanes from Japan.

Moscow has had a four-lane bowling alley since 1972, also an American one, but it has had limited use by high officials only. The lanes from Japan have also been available for restricted play. The lanes opened this weekend are the first for the general public.

According to industry sources, bowling has become a $2 billion annual business in the U.S. and the game's public bow in Moscow is part of its rapid growth in popularity in many countries.

Japan is second to the U.S., which has some 52 million bowlers.

Bowling is also big in Europe, where 10-pin bowling is rapidly replacing the traditional small-ball game; it is also played in Canada and northern Latin-American countries such as Colombia and Venezuela.

Bowling is played regularly in 51 countries. The U.S. alone has 275,000 leagues — for men, women, youngsters, and other special groups.

According to industry officials, the advent of automatic pin-setting machines in the early 1950s sparked the rapid growth of the game. In the mid-1960s, however, the game for a time was "oversold" and dipped in popularity. At the bottom of its popularity in 1968, some 38 million Americans still played.

Why would Russians decide to try their hand at bowling, when they have been adamant in resisting other forms of Western culture? Industry spokesmen say part of its lure is that bowling is a year-round sport, played indoors, and ideal for a cold Soviet winter.

Also, they contend, it appeals to the masses; no elitism is involved, a trait considered naturally appealing to a Communist country.

Volleyball Win For San Rafael

San Rafael High School's girls' volleyball team came from behind to defeat Drake, 11-15, 15-11, 15-9 yesterday and remain undefeated in the Marin County Athletic League.

The Bulldogs are 4-0, ahead of Tamalpais, which won its third game without a loss yesterday, 15-10, 15-3 over Marin Catholic. Redwood defeated Novato, 15-6, 15-7 in another MCAL game.

Jean Zerrudo led San Rafael with 13 service points.

NHL Begins Its Season

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The National Hockey League kicks off its most inflated season ever tonight with almost every team that survives the season having a shot at post season play.

The NHL, which has watered down its product by expanding to 18 teams this season with at least two more to come in the years ahead, will also allow for two-thirds of those 18 to participate in the playoffs. All you have to do is finish in the top three of your division — two of which are comprised of just four teams and two of five.

So if the season has been a bore in years past because of the lengthy "second season" (i.e. the playoffs), tune in later on in May...or will it be July this time?

PIRATE POWER — Pittsburgh Pirate strongman Willie Stargell belted this pitch from Dodger starter Doug Rau for a three-run home run in the first inning yesterday at Los Angeles. The Pirates got five runs in the inning and went on to a 7-0 victory in the third game of the National League playoffs. (UPI Telephoto)

IT WAS MATTER OF TIME

Loud Crash Of Pirate Timber

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Danny Murtaugh, Willie Stargell and Bruce Kison agree — it was just a matter of time before the crash of Pirate timber began echoing in the Dodger forest.

Pittsburgh's 7-0 pasting of the Dodgers yesterday — cutting Los Angeles' lead in the National League playoff series to 2-1 — was the largest margin of victory ever in a major league championship series game.

"The Pirates can really explode when they get hot and we did it today," said winning pitcher Kison, a long and lanky 24-year-old righthander. "We have some of the best hitters in baseball and you can't stop them forever."

Stargell, who blasted a three-run home run in the first inning that proved all the Pirates needed, wanted to share some of the credit.

"Good pitching stops good hitting and Bruce Kison was super," said Stargell, who went into the third game of the series with a .412 average.

"We knew we had a job to do, otherwise it was back to Pittsburgh," said the Pirate muscleman. "Now we hope we can bring it down to the wire."

Pirate manager Murtaugh, who celebrated his 57th birthday yesterday, was asked if he could think of a better present than the victory.

Murtaugh, hesitating for a moment, suddenly lit up. "When I was younger, yes!"

Kison allowed the Dodgers only two hits, struck out five and walked sixth before he tired and was relieved in the seventh. But he said his troublesome finger problem was not a factor.

"During the season, my thumb would get irritated by about the fifth inning and a blood blister would develop by the seventh," Kison said.

"At the end of this game, I was just tired," he said. "My thumb did get irritated but there was no blister."

Kison, who lives with his wife and daughter in North Versailes, Pa., had pitched 13 innings of post-season competition previously and had given up only four hits. His record in playoff and World Series play is 4-0.

"This was my first start in a post-season game," he said. "I'd be lying to say I wasn't nervous before the game. Our backs were against the wall and I was starting. Last night when I went to sleep, hitters kept going through my mind."

Asked why he was so successful as a post-season pitcher, Kison replied: "You might ask the guy up above."

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Jacksonville Sharks coaches and players yesterday expressed dismay and confusion at the suspension of the World Football League team, and some players even packed their bags to leave.

The financially-plagued Sharks were suspended by the World Football League Monday night and given just 48 hours to come up with a new owner or be disbanded.

WFL Commissioner Gary Davidson said in Newport Beach, Calif. in making the announcement, that if the team is disbanded the players will be subject to a draft to distribute them to other WFL teams.

The league estimates that a potential investor would have to come in with at least $1 million "up front" to obtain the Sharks. League officials indicated that the earlier price had been $2.5 million.

Shark's head coach Charlie Tate said yesterday he doesn't think the WFL wants to disband the team. "We've got to sit tight. We don't have any choice. Hopefully something good will happen in the next few hours," Tate said.

The 70 players on the roster, who have received only one weekly paycheck in the last five games, are sitting around waiting for something to happen. Many of them have their bags half-packed.

Coach Tate said "I don't know what is going on, our front office doesn't know what is going on, the media doesn't know what is going on and the league office doesn't know what is going on," he said.

Place kicker Grant Guthrie said he just wants something to happen. "This has hurt my family already," he said. "If I have to go somewhere else I want to go right now."

"I'm almost sorry to hear we have another 48 hours," Guthrie said. "I've been loyal long enough — if I can get into the National Football League I'm going."

"If the draft is held, I'll have to go because I'm still WFL property," said defensive end Bob Tatarek. "If I don't go, I'll have to forfeit my back pay. I don't know whether it would be better to sue the league for our back pay and future pay or go to the draft."

Dorsett's Figures

Tony Dorsett of Pitt led collegiate rushers last season with 1,586 yards. He scored 12 touchdowns.

WITH U.S. EQUIPMENT

They're Bowling In A Moscow Tent

By GEORGE MONEYHUM
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Sketch by Gene Langley

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The latest rumblings in Moscow are coming from bowling balls stamped "Made in America."

In one of the lesser-noticed triumphs of detente, the Soviet Union has opened its first public bowling alleys in a completely automated 16-lane center built by an American firm and sent all the way from Skokie, Ill. — "with love."

On hand to cheer this new stride up the alley of international cooperation — and give Soviet novices a few tips on the fine art of lobbing a big ball down a small lane — were a group of U.S. businessmen, bowling champions, and diplomats.

As might be expected, the first bowling center in the USSR is said to be like no other in the world — mainly because the alleys are housed in a huge air-supported tent. Built and manufactured in Sweden, the tent measures 100 feet by 150 feet at its base, and rises — with the help of constant air blowers — 40 feet above Moscow's Gorki Park.

Now for only 50 kopecks a game — about 68 cents — Muscovites can follow the footsteps of some 8.5 million Americans every week.

The American bowling equipment was purchased by the Soviets following a recreational trade show held in Gorki Park in 1971. After the three-week show, the Soviets signed a five-year agreement with the Brunswick Corporation of Skokie, Ill., to purchase and install 24 lanes — 16 to be installed initially and the remaining eight later. The bowling equipment was shipped to the Soviet Union via the St. Lawrence Seaway in 1972 and held there until the Gorki Park site was selected.

But it wasn't only the bowling equipment that caught the Soviets' imagination. From that 1971 show, they also bought a West German roller-coaster, "dodge-em" cars made in Italy, a shooting gallery from Great Britain, and another set of bowling lanes from Japan.

Moscow has had a four-lane bowling alley since 1972, also an American one, but it has had limited use by high officials only. The lanes from Japan have also been available for restricted play. The lanes opened this weekend are the first for the general public.

According to industry sources, bowling has become a $2 billion annual business in the U.S. and the game's public bow in Moscow is part of its rapid growth in popularity in many countries.

Japan is second to the U.S., which has some 52 million bowlers.

Bowling is also big in Europe, where 10-pin bowling is rapidly replacing the traditional small-ball game; it is also played in Canada and northern Latin-American countries such as Colombia and Venezuela.

Bowling is played regularly in 51 countries. The U.S. alone has 275,000 leagues — for men, women, youngsters, and other special groups.

According to industry officials, the advent of automatic pin-setting machines in the early 1950s sparked the rapid growth of the game. In the mid-1960s, however, the game for a time was "oversold" and dipped in popularity. At the bottom of its popularity in 1968, some 38 million Americans still played.

Why would Russians decide to try their hand at bowling, when they have been adamant in resisting other forms of Western culture? Industry spokesmen say part of its lure is that bowling is a year-round sport, played indoors, and ideal for a cold Soviet winter.

Also, they contend, it appeals to the masses; no elitism is involved, a trait considered naturally appealing to a Communist country.

Volleyball Win For San Rafael

San Rafael High School's girls' volleyball team came from behind to defeat Drake, 11-15, 15-11, 15-9 yesterday and remain undefeated in the Marin County Athletic League.

The Bulldogs are 4-0, ahead of Tamalpais, which won its third game without a loss yesterday, 15-10, 15-3 over Marin Catholic. Redwood defeated Novato, 15-6, 15-7 in another MCAL game.

Jean Zerrudo led San Rafael with 13 service points.

NHL Begins Its Season

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The National Hockey League kicks off its most inflated season ever tonight with almost every team that survives the season having a shot at post season play.

The NHL, which has watered down its product by expanding to 18 teams this season with at least two more to come in the years ahead, will also allow for two-thirds of those 18 to participate in the playoffs. All you have to do is finish in the top three of your division — two of which are comprised of just four teams and two of five.

So if the season has been a bore in years past because of the lengthy "second season" (i.e. the playoffs), tune in later on in May...or will it be July this time?

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Proposal Has Merit Depending On Taxes

By ROGER E. SPEAR
and DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. About 2 years ago, I bought UMC Industries (NYSE) at 25⅛. I am thinking of buying another 100 shares, and later selling 100 shares for the tax loss in April. Would you advise me to take this action? — H.D.

A. Although UMC has moved up 26 per cent from its 1974 low, it is still well below your cost price, which unfortunately was close to the all-time high on the shares. While some additional price recovery is probable, a major move to your cost is unlikely over the near term. Management has made progress in moving earnings ahead, but high costs reduced profit margins in 1973 and in the first half this year. This was particularly true in the company's paper products division, which was further hurt by competitive pressures, precluding price increases to offset rising costs. This division accounted for 29 per cent of 1973 sales and slightly more of operating profits.

The potential for UMC's automatic merchandising equipment division is good (52 per cent of sales, 48 per cent of profits). Backlogs are up, demand strong and facilities are being enlarged. With the shares now yielding 10 per cent on a well covered dividend, your proposal has some merit depending on your particular tax situation.

Q. My 87-year-old mother was advised by her banker to buy at $102 the 9 per cent Treasury note due August, 1980. Formerly, she had always bought Treasury bills. At her age and with interest rates rising, she would have been better off buying the T-bills which were auctioned the same day at 9.43 per cent. Should she switch now? — E.D.

A. Rather than advancing, short-term interest rates have declined dramatically. At a recent auction 13-week bills were sold at 7.2 per cent. Your mother's banker pinned down a high interest rate in a safe, long-term security. While he might have been better off choosing the 33-month 9 per cent note, the yield to maturity on this issue was lower on the offering and it is currently trading below the 6-year note.

TYPEWRITER WHEEL GROWS UP

Business Foes Using Energy Crisis—Exec

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Critics of U.S. business are using the energy shortage as a rallying point to build support for more governmental regulation — which further could erode the private enterprise system.

Howard W. Bell, vice-president and director of Standard Oil Co. of California, expressed these views here in a speech to the central area conference of the Young Presidents' Club.

As an initial step, Bell said, critics of business are concentrating on the oil industry, proposing to break up the major oil companies, to regulate the industry as a utility, to create a national oil company, and to increase oil's taxes and limit badly needed profits.

Mixed Market Reaction To Ford Program

NEW YORK (UPI) — An uncertain and cautious stock market moved slightly lower today in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange amidst mixed reaction to President Ford's economic program.

The Dow Jones industrial average lost more than 4 points yesterday awaiting Ford's program after gaining 23 points the day before in anticipation of it.

The Dow's gain Monday was its first in 12 sessions after it had lost nearly 90 points. Analysts said investors still did not know if the market had reached a bottom in a lengthy slide which began in August.

The market's movement was not broad, indicating uncertainty and caution. Declines led advances, 636 to 440, among the 1,478 issues crossing the tape. The margin had been wider in earlier trading.

Simplicity Pattern was the most active Big Board issue, unchanged at 7 ½ on 109,100 shares.

Chemicals and oils were mixed. Dow Chemical lost 1 ½. Kerr-McGee added 2 ¼, but Schlumberger lost 1 ¾ and Exxon 1.

Transportation issues were irregular. Norfolk & Western and Chessie System paced the rails higher, gaining 1 and ⅞ respectively. Chessie has raised its dividend and proposed a stock split. Delta Airlines lost 1.

In the electronics and computers, Sperry Rand, Burroughs, Honeywell and Digital Equipment were point-sized losers.

Golds were higher, paced by ASA Ltd., up 1 ¼, and Dome Mines, 1 ⅛.

ARA Services lost 2½, J. C. Penney 1 ⅜ and Upjohn 1.

Prices were mixed in moderate trading on American Stock Exchange. Dome Petroleum Ltd. was the most active Amex issue, off ¼ to 17 ½ on 11,100 shares.

Sandwich Shop, Plant Store Open Side By Side

A new sandwich shop called Charley's Buffet and a store featuring indoor plants, called Little Green Plant Shop, will open side by side in the One Fifty Bellam Boulevard Building in San Rafael.

CHARLEY'S BUFFET, scheduled to open in a day or two, will be operated by Karl and Edith Klauda, who ran the Old Vienna restaurant on Lincoln Avenue until they sold it last April.

Charley's will feature hot and cold sandwiches, salads, home made soups, beer and wine, and will be open Monday through Friday from 10:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. The shop has seating for 30 and will also have food for takeout.

LITTLE GREEN PLANT Shop, scheduled for opening on Oct. 18, will be owned by Jeff Mears and Bill Bear, who have operated the Little Red Dog Motel at 58 Gary Place for the past two and one-half years.

"We treat dogs right, and we'll treat plants right," said Bear. "We'll have all kinds of plants from succulents to hanging ferns, and also fresh cut flowers each day. We consider plants as individuals and treat them as such, just as we do dogs and cats. They require proper food, water, light, and soil conditions."

Little Green Plant Shop will have accessories such as pots, compost and other materials for plant care and will offer instruction for the proper care of various indoor plants. It will also carry wind chimes and mobiles.

Deming

Corredor

SHIRLEY DEMING and CARLOS A. CORREDOR have opened their own real estate brokerage firms at 235 Third Street, Montecito Shopping Center, in San Rafael.

They share offices with Montecito Realty, owned by Nat Marans, but all three operate as independent brokers.

Mrs. Deming, who has been active in real estate sales in Marin for the past seven years, was formerly associated with Kay Noah in Kentfield. She deals primarily in residential and multiple residential properties.

Corredor, formerly with Frank Howard Allen in investment property, specializes in income and investment properties.

BLACK OAK SALOON at 1111 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur, which held its grand opening last month, is open seven days a week from 11:30 a.m. to 2 a.m.

The saloon serves all kinds of drinks including Irish coffee, plus steak dinner, soups and sandwiches. The kitchen closes at 10 p.m.

Owners of the Black Oak Saloon are William Knox and Doug Shanstra of Larkspur and Tom Dick of Novato. Knox was in the bar business for about seven years, formerly in Santa Monica and the last three years in Mountain View before opening in Larkspur.

The new owners have remodeled the interior of the building with a funky design, redwood decor, pot belly stove, and antique furnishings. The saloon has seating for 120 customers.

STU BETZ of Mill Valley has been named director of staff services for Lyon's Restaurants, headquartered in Burlingame, President James T. LeCompte announced.

In his new position, Betz will be responsible for all personnel functions, including management selection and training, labor relations, and salary-benefits administration. He will be in charge of staff services for Lyon's Restaurants as well as two new divisions, Almanack and Lyonet Restaurants.

Betz joined Lyon's in 1962, was named manager of Lyon's Sacramento restaurant, and was promoted to regional manager in 1965. In 1972, he became director of operations, a position he held until his new appointment.

King

Brennan

CALIFORNIA CANNERS and Growers in San Francisco announced the election of two Marinites to assistant vice president of marketing — Dave King of Kentfield and Edward Brennan of Mill Valley.

King joined the firm in 1968 and became director of industrial sales the following year. Brennan joined CCG in 1964 and rose to brand manager and director of brand marketing.

Located above Set Point tennis shop, Galerie Angleterre is open seven days a week from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., with parking in the rear. It is owned and operated by H. J. Fabian of Tiburon and his partner, Ed Cunningham of Greenbrae.

Galerie Angleterre (which means English gallery) features primarily water colors, some oils, acrylics and other media. The works are by well-known English artists, and all the framing is from England.

Fabian said he just purchased some 17th Century French engravings and will also have pottery from Wales and art books. Fabian was in the art business in Los Angeles for the past 15 years, selling paintings and graphics and importing art from Europe. His partner came to Marin four months ago from England where he was in the import-export business.

Silver Prices Up

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Proposal Has Merit Depending On Taxes

By ROGER E. SPEAR
and DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. About 2 years ago, I bought UMC Industries (NYSE) at 25⅛. I am thinking of buying another 100 shares, and later selling 100 shares for the tax loss in April. Would you advise me to take this action? — H.D.

A. Although UMC has moved up 26 per cent from its 1974 low, it is still well below your cost price, which unfortunately was close to the all-time high on the shares. While some additional price recovery is probable, a major move to your cost is unlikely over the near term. Management has made progress in moving earnings ahead, but high costs reduced profit margins in 1973 and in the first half this year. This was particularly true in the company's paper products division, which was further hurt by competitive pressures, precluding price increases to offset rising costs. This division accounted for 29 per cent of 1973 sales and slightly more of operating profits.

The potential for UMC's automatic merchandising equipment division is good (52 per cent of sales, 48 per cent of profits). Backlogs are up, demand strong and facilities are being enlarged. With the shares now yielding 10 per cent on a well covered dividend, your proposal has some merit depending on your particular tax situation.

Q. My 87-year-old mother was advised by her banker to buy at $102 the 9 per cent Treasury note due August, 1980. Formerly, she had always bought Treasury bills. At her age and with interest rates rising, she would have been better off buying the T-bills which were auctioned the same day at 9.43 per cent. Should she switch now? — E.D.

A. Rather than advancing, short-term interest rates have declined dramatically. At a recent auction 13-week bills were sold at 7.2 per cent. Your mother's banker pinned down a high interest rate in a safe, long-term security. While he might have been better off choosing the 33-month 9 per cent note, the yield to maturity on this issue was lower on the offering and it is currently trading below the 6-year note.

TYPEWRITER WHEEL GROWS UP

Business Foes Using Energy Crisis—Exec

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Critics of U.S. business are using the energy shortage as a rallying point to build support for more governmental regulation — which further could erode the private enterprise system.

Howard W. Bell, vice-president and director of Standard Oil Co. of California, expressed these views here in a speech to the central area conference of the Young Presidents' Club.

As an initial step, Bell said, critics of business are concentrating on the oil industry, proposing to break up the major oil companies, to regulate the industry as a utility, to create a national oil company, and to increase oil's taxes and limit badly needed profits.

Mixed Market Reaction To Ford Program

NEW YORK (UPI) — An uncertain and cautious stock market moved slightly lower today in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange amidst mixed reaction to President Ford's economic program.

The Dow Jones industrial average lost more than 4 points yesterday awaiting Ford's program after gaining 23 points the day before in anticipation of it.

The Dow's gain Monday was its first in 12 sessions after it had lost nearly 90 points. Analysts said investors still did not know if the market had reached a bottom in a lengthy slide which began in August.

The market's movement was not broad, indicating uncertainty and caution. Declines led advances, 636 to 440, among the 1,478 issues crossing the tape. The margin had been wider in earlier trading.

Simplicity Pattern was the most active Big Board issue, unchanged at 7 ½ on 109,100 shares.

Chemicals and oils were mixed. Dow Chemical lost 1 ½. Kerr-McGee added 2 ¼, but Schlumberger lost 1 ¾ and Exxon 1.

Transportation issues were irregular. Norfolk & Western and Chessie System paced the rails higher, gaining 1 and ⅞ respectively. Chessie has raised its dividend and proposed a stock split. Delta Airlines lost 1.

Golds were higher, paced by ASA Ltd., up 1 ¼, and Dome Mines, 1 ⅛.

ARA Services lost 2½, J. C. Penney 1 ⅜ and Upjohn 1.

Prices were mixed in moderate trading on American Stock Exchange. Dome Petroleum Ltd. was the most active Amex issue, off ¼ to 17 ½ on 11,100 shares.

Sandwich Shop, Plant Store Open Side By Side

A new sandwich shop called Charley's Buffet and a store featuring indoor plants, called Little Green Plant Shop, will open side by side in the One Fifty Bellam Boulevard Building in San Rafael.

CHARLEY'S BUFFET, scheduled to open in a day or two, will be operated by Karl and Edith Klauda, who ran the Old Vienna restaurant on Lincoln Avenue until they sold it last April.

Charley's will feature hot and cold sandwiches, salads, home made soups, beer and wine, and will be open Monday through Friday from 10:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. The shop has seating for 30 and will also have food for takeout.

LITTLE GREEN PLANT Shop, scheduled for opening on Oct. 18, will be owned by Jeff Mears and Bill Bear, who have operated the Little Red Dog Motel at 58 Gary Place for the past two and one-half years.

"We treat dogs right, and we'll treat plants right," said Bear. "We'll have all kinds of plants from succulents to hanging ferns, and also fresh cut flowers each day. We consider plants as individuals and treat them as such, just as we do dogs and cats. They require proper food, water, light, and soil conditions."

Little Green Plant Shop will have accessories such as pots, compost and other materials for plant care and will offer instruction for the proper care of various indoor plants. It will also carry wind chimes and mobiles.

Deming

Corredor

SHIRLEY DEMING and CARLOS A. CORREDOR have opened their own real estate brokerage firms at 235 Third Street, Montecito Shopping Center, in San Rafael.

They share offices with Montecito Realty, owned by Nat Marans, but all three operate as independent brokers.

Mrs. Deming, who has been active in real estate sales in Marin for the past seven years, was formerly associated with Kay Noah in Kentfield. She deals primarily in residential and multiple residential properties.

Corredor, formerly with Frank Howard Allen in investment property, specializes in income and investment properties.

BLACK OAK SALOON at 1111 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur, which held its grand opening last month, is open seven days a week from 11:30 a.m. to 2 a.m.

The saloon serves all kinds of drinks including Irish coffee, plus steak dinner, soups and sandwiches. The kitchen closes at 10 p.m.

Owners of the Black Oak Saloon are William Knox and Doug Shanstra of Larkspur and Tom Dick of Novato. Knox was in the bar business for about seven years, formerly in Santa Monica and the last three years in Mountain View before opening in Larkspur.

The new owners have remodeled the interior of the building with a funky design, redwood decor, pot belly stove, and antique furnishings. The saloon has seating for 120 customers.

STU BETZ of Mill Valley has been named director of staff services for Lyon's Restaurants, headquartered in Burlingame, President James T. LeCompte announced.

In his new position, Betz will be responsible for all personnel functions, including management selection and training, labor relations, and salary-benefits administration. He will be in charge of staff services for Lyon's Restaurants as well as two new divisions, Almanack and Lyonet Restaurants.

Betz joined Lyon's in 1962, was named manager of Lyon's Sacramento restaurant, and was promoted to regional manager in 1965. In 1972, he became director of operations, a position he held until his new appointment.

King

Brennan

CALIFORNIA CANNERS and Growers in San Francisco announced the election of two Marinites to assistant vice president of marketing — Dave King of Kentfield and Edward Brennan of Mill Valley.

King joined the firm in 1968 and became director of industrial sales the following year. Brennan joined CCG in 1964 and rose to brand manager and director of brand marketing.

GALERIE ANGLETERRE, specializing in fine English paintings and drawings, has opened at 120 Main Street on Tiburon's Ark Row.

Located above Set Point tennis shop, Galerie Angleterre is open seven days a week from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., with parking in the rear. It is owned and operated by H. J. Fabian of Tiburon and his partner, Ed Cunningham of Greenbrae.

Galerie Angleterre (which means English gallery) features primarily water colors, some oils, acrylics and other media. The works are by well-known English artists, and all the framing is from England.

Fabian said he just purchased some 17th Century French engravings and will also have pottery from Wales and art books. Fabian was in the art business in Los Angeles for the past 15 years, selling paintings and graphics and importing art from Europe. His partner came to Marin four months ago from England where he was in the import-export business.

LOW AS 25$^{30}$ A78-13 TUBELESS WHITEWALL PLUS 2.04 FEDERAL EXCISE TAX EACH AND TRADE-IN

PASSENGER CAR TIRE GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees each of its passenger car tires for a specified number of miles when used on passenger cars or station wagons, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of:

- defects in material or workmanship,
- normal road hazard failure,
- premature tread wearout (2/32 inches or less remaining);

Montgomery Ward will:

1. During the first 10% of guaranteed mileage, replace the tire free.
2. During the remaining guaranteed mileage, replace it for a prorata charge based on mileage used.

Nail punctures repaired free during the entire guaranteed mileage.

Charge after first 10% of guaranteed mileage based on selling price in effect at the time of return at branch to which returned, including federal excise tax.

Passenger tires used on taxicabs, and motor vehicles other than passenger cars are guaranteed on the same basis against defects in materials and workmanship only.

SHAPE OF THINGS TO COME

A new Hilarita is taking shape, the emerging moderate-income housing rising on the hillside land in Tiburon from which was cleared decaying World War II housing. The $2.7 million project, initiated by the Tiburon Ecumenical Association, is funded by the federal government under a complicated arrangement with private and public agencies. Ultimately it will contain 102 dwelling units. Meanwhile, the site is shared by a remnant of the old housing, occupied by tenants waiting a place in the new. Then the last of the old will go. Completion is expected in the spring, climaxing a years-long struggle over the project in the courts, before the Tiburon Planning Commission and the city council.

No Marin City Solution Reached

Marin County supervisors and a Legal Aid attorney remained at loggerheads yesterday as a hoped-for settlement over Marin City's Richardson Highlands development crumbled amid accusations and recriminations.

The dispute, which first came before supervisors last week, involves a threat by Legal Aid to block the 389-unit project in the courts unless it includes some dwellings for low-income families.

As approved by supervisors, the townhouse and condominium project calls for 20 per cent of the 240 condominium apartments to be set aside for moderate-income families.

Richard A. Hirsch, chief attorney for Legal Aid, who claims to represent five unnamed Marin City residents, last week appeared to soften his clients' demands when he seemed to accept the 20 per cent moderate-cost units as sufficient if built during both stages of the project, instead of last.

Yesterday's session erupted almost immediately, however, when Hirsch told supervisors he had either been misunderstood or had made "a slip of the tongue" in agreement to only moderate cost units.

He told supervisors he was not authorized by his clients to make such a concession, if in fact he did.

"Don't say it was a slip of the tongue," shot back supervisor Gary T. Giacomini. "It wasn't a casual slip. . .but rather you were substantially changing your position."

Supervisors then each took a turn criticizing Hirsch and claiming the threatened suit is simply a way of overturning the board's decision not to include low-cost housing in the project by killing it with long delays in the courts.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, at one point, questioned Hirsch whether his board of directors had sanctioned the threatened suit or whether the Legal Aid staff is permitted to "willy-nilly decide" what cases it handles.

"Do they allow you to willy-nilly represent one poor person to the detriment of 100 poor people?" he asked, saying the Marin City project is a cornerstone to making that community self-reliant.

Hirsch responded that his board does not interfere with the cases the staff accepts as a matter of principle.

Baptiste labled Hirsch's response a "cop out" and at one point said he will seek to withhold about $20,000 in county funding to the agency unless the legal aid board takes a position on the issue.

Giacomini then suggested a committee be formed of two supervisors to approach the legal aid board to determine its position.

Roumiguiere and Giacomini said they would attempt to set up a meeting with the Legal Aid board on Monday at noon at the Civic Center.

Turning to Hirsch, Wornum then opened up with, "In my opinion you are delivering lousy legal services . . . it's against the public interest to (block the project) on behalf of a few people."

Hirsch responded that it was a matter of individual rights and the rights of everyone to appeal to the courts.

Novato Plans Land Negotiations

Despite objections from the Novato Federated Women's Club and two councilmen, the Novato City Council last night voted to go ahead with acquisition of property across the street from the Novato Community House for a new city civic center.

The vote, after a lengthy public hearing, was 3-2, with councilmen Fred F. Ruegg and Dorothy P. Young voting no, according to City Mgr. Phillip J. Brown.

Brown said that none of the opponents of the land acquisition argued that the community house — in which the city council chambers, city offices and police departments are presently housed — is adequate.

Instead, he said, Mrs. Young and Ruegg as well as others in the audience thought that other, possibly less expensive sites, should be investigated.

Thelma Jones, president of the Novato Federated Women's Club, said that some 20 members of the club who toured the present facilities this week were "shocked and appalled" by conditions in the police department and likened the facility to the "old west."

However, she and three other members of the club, Dixie Calvo, Barbara Rucker and Kathleen Taylor, asked that a public hearing on the whole civic center matter be set for November and that no further land negotiations take place until after the hearing.

The request was denied when the council voted to instruct Cal-Trans, a firm hired by the city, to go ahead with negotiations to buy the property. The firm also was instructed to arrange rental fees with property owners who wish to stay in their homes after purchase by the city until construction of a new civic center is begun.

Betty Machado, member of the Novato Unified School District board and the women's club, said today she will file suit in Marin Superior Court seeking an injunction halting all negotiation for purchase of the proposed site.

Mrs. Machado called Novato taxpayers "an endangered species" and said the matter ought to be put to a public vote.

Brown said for some years the city council has been setting aside money for land for a new civic center to house city offices, police department and the council chambers. Presently there is something over $400,000 in the fund, and $300,000 of this has been budgeted for land purchase this year.

Last night the council voted to change the fund's designation from land purchase only to include development of the building. The intention is, Brown said, to have enough cash on hand to pay for the civic center, which is proposed to be built in 1977-78.

Mrs. Machado said one reason for a public vote on the matter is that she does not believe that most voters realize the entire project will cost approximately $800,000.

In other but related action last night, the city council voted 3-2 to go ahead with refurbishing of the community house, at a cost of approximately $100,000.

Brown said a majority of the council thought roof repair, heating and ventilating problems and expansion of the city council chambers should be taken care of, even in view of the new facility.

He said there never has been any intention by the city of abandoning the community house and that it will be used for recreational and other group meetings if and when the new center is built.

Mrs. Young and Ruegg voted against the refurbishing expense on the basis that the money would be better spent on the new civic center.

Simon Says Surcharge Would Affect 28 Per Cent Of People

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, defending President Ford's proposed 5 per cent income tax surcharge before Congress, said today it would affect only 28 per cent of all taxpayers. (See related story on page 2.)

But he encountered skepticism from members of the House Ways and Means Committee, which shapes the nation's tax laws.

Ranking Republican Herman T. Schneebeli, Pa., said the fate of the surtax would rest with what American voters say during the next four weeks, while congressmen campaign for re-election.

"You have a big selling job to do," Schneebeli said. "You better get your public relations forces to work very vigorously."

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ways and Means, expressed doubt Ford could allow the surtax to die, as planned, after 1975.

Ford presented his long-awaited message on inflation to Congress yesterday. It contained proposals for heavier taxes on the middle class and the wealthy, tax incentives to revive business and exhortations to Americans to pinch pennies and drive less.

A liberal, Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, was critical of the surtax proposal, saying it was a "transfer of revenues from individuals to the corporate sector" since Ford had proposed major tax advantages for businesses which expand or modernize.

"You're going to affect the lifestyle, the buying power, the ability to fight inflation of 65 million people," Vanik said.

Simon said 82.5 million tax returns are normally filed by American householders. He said the Treasury calculated that the surtax, which would hit persons making $7,500 a year or families earning $15,000, would fall only upon 28 per cent of them —23 million returns.

If the average return represents three people, that would account for 69 million taxpayers.

Ullman said he was concerned Congress "may have to re-act it (surtax) on a year by year basis" to recapture the revenue that would be lost by Ford's proposed permanent tax relief for business.

Simon said the surtax was necessary to help the victims of inflation and spur business investment needed for a healthy economy.

Ullman said Ford understated the problem in yesterday's address to Congress. Ullman said the economy was "an even worse" problem than Ford said and the problem would "get worse before its gets better."

Garbage Truck Snarls Power

A garbage truck that became entangled in a power line at 11:23 a.m. yesterday knocked out power for 1,670 San Pedro Peninsula residents for about an hour.

Pacific Gas and Electric engineer Robert H. Williams said a garbage truck was unloading a large bin on Lochinvar Road when it snagged a power line and pulled down a conductor.

Power was restored in a hour for all but five customers, he added.

President Says U.S. Not In A Recession

Ford Sees Reduced Rate Of Inflation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Saying that the United States is not in a recession, President Ford predicted today that there will be a "meaningful reduction" in the rate of inflation by early 1975.

Ford, wearing a "Win" button in his lapel to symbolize the voluntary fight against inflation, made the prediction at a news conference in the sun-filled Rose Garden of the White House.

He said the government will have to be "very, very careful" that it doesn't "tighten the screws" to such a degree that it plunges the country into a recession.

He said it will take the cooperation of the American people and the response by Congress to the 31 pieces of legislation he backed in Tuesday's address before a joint session to achieve the slowing down of the inflation rate.

Many economists say the economy is now in a recession since the Gross National Product has shown no growth in the last six months.

But Ford said, "I don't think the United States is in a recession. We do have an economic problem but it is a very mixed situation."

The President said he was "very confident" that his 31-step program would work if adopted by Congress and he did not want to speculate on what further measures the government would have to take if it did not.

"We are going to concentrate on making it work," the President said.

Asked why he did not recommend an increase in gasoline taxes or gasoline rationing, Ford said, "We believe the surtax is a more equitable approach" to gain the extra income needed to finance programs for "people who are suffering hardships" and to dampen inflation.

He said the administration had "taken a look" at the proposals for a higher gasoline tax and felt it would be harmful to the people least able to pay.

On gasoline rationing, the President did not directly answer the question but said, "We believe the people will respond to our program ... the American people responded last year very, very well" to a far more drastic shortage of gasoline.

Ford conceded "there has been some criticism" of the one-year surtax he proposed, but he promised that it would not extend beyond the 1975 calendar year and noted that a family of four earning $20,000 a year would be required to pay "only 12 cents a day" in extra tax.

Ford said he had to confess that former President Richard M. Nixon's plan to achieve energy independence from other nations had not done as well as "we had hoped." He said both Congress and the executive branch should share the blame.

Ford, in his third news conference since becoming Presi-

Brezhnev, Ford Plan A Summit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and Soviet Communist Party Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev are actively considering plans to hold a summit meeting next month, administration officials said today.

Emphasizing that "nothing is firm yet," the officials said the Ford-Brezhnev conference could be tacked on to Ford's scheduled visits to Japan Nov. 19-21, and a subsequent two-day stop in South Korea.

The two leaders were said to be considering a summit session in a third country or on a Pacific island, probably at the end of Ford's Far East swing.

The administration officials said discussion of such a meeting came up in regular U.S.-Soviet diplomatic consultations recently and both sides were considering it.

"This would have to be more than a get-acquainted session — a chance for them to talk about substantive issues," one official added.

The White House already has said that Ford expects to hold a full-blown summit meeting with Brezhnev next summer in the United States, following up on an invitation to the Soviet leader that was extended by former President Richard M. Nixon last June in Moscow.

But an earlier meeting, officials said, would give Ford and Brezhnev an opportunity to review a broad range of issues of major importance to the two superpowers, presumably including strategic arms control negotiations now under way in Geneva and expanded U.S.-Soviet trade.

Earlier diplomatic reports from Moscow said Brezhnev was thinking of inviting Ford to a summit next month in Siberia. They said the Kremlin wanted such a meeting as soon as possible to clarify future relations between the two countries in view of Nixon's resignation last August.

Unified Housing Aid Pact Urged

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Marin County supervisors yesterday urged Marin's 11 cities to join the county in a common effort to secure more than $8 million in federal "community development" funds over the next six years. (Other Marin supervisors' stories, page 23.)

The board's request came as Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella reported on available funding under the recently enacted Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

In order for the county to receive the estimated $8.4 million, Campanella told supervisors it will require cooperation from the cities.

The funds, he continued, may be used for such things as urban renewal, recreation, preservation of historical sites and open spaces, housing code enforcement, slum clearance, construction or improvement of water and sewer systems, parks, flood and drainage facilities, street lighting, parking facilities, recycling and fire protection facilities, among other things.

He said the use of the funds should be aimed at providing benefits to low and moderate-income persons.

Under one allocation formula, the county as a whole can receive an estimated $8.4 million. Under another, it may be only $1.5 million.

Under the new act's guidelines, a higher level of funding will be given metropolitan cities with populations of more than 50,000 and urban counties with populations of more than 200,000.

Campanella said no city in Marin can qualify as a "metropolitan city" based on the 1970 census, though the county as a whole may be able to qualify as an "urban county."

In order for the county to qualify, he explained, it must have the power to operate housing and redevelopment activities in incorporated and unincorporated areas totaling 200,000 population.

Currently the county has such authority only over unincorporated areas, totaling less than 100,000 residents.

Campanella said he was not sure what kind of legal agreement would be required between the cities and county to expand its housing and redevelopment authority.

If the cities and county cannot agree, he continued, the county would fall into another category and could expect only about $1.5 million instead of $8.4 million.

It was not clear what the cities would receive if each seeks funding independently.

Campanella said the funds from the new act could be used as the county's share of matching funds for other federal grants.

He said the county has until

County Moves To Buy Open Space In Mill Valley

The Marin County Open Space District board tentatively agreed yesterday to purchase two parcels of land within the city limits of Mill Valley.

Purchase of the lands is subject to the working out of final details in the acquisition documents.

The first parcel, slightly more than 18 acres above the Scott Valley subdivision, is to be purchased jointly by the city and county — each putting up $50,000. The price amounts to $5,438 per acre.

Owners of the property, which was subdivided to become the fourth unit of the Scott Valley tract off Camino Alto, had offered the property for $150,000 earlier this year but the price was dropped when the validity of the subdivision was questioned.

The second parcel, 72 acres above the Mill Valley golf course, is to be purchased by the county without assistance from the city.

Pierre W. Joske, general manager of the open space district, told directors that the county negotiated a $247,311 purchase price for the land — $3,416 per acre. It is owned by Hilarita Silberberg and others.

Joske said both parcels are part of the North Ridge acquisition plan.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Martha Presses Petition

NEW YORK (AP) — Martha Mitchell's lawyer said yesterday that she's had to take odd jobs because she needs money. But an attorney for her husband claimed she lives in surroundings that rival the grandeur of the Taj Mahal.

Mitchell

The contrasting views came out of a state Supreme Court hearing at which Mrs. Mitchell pressed her petition for $3,000 a week temporary alimony from her estranged husband, former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell.

Mitchell was not present at the hearing. He is on trial in Washington on charges of taking part in the Watergate cover-up. Mrs. Mitchell was present in a spectator's seat. She declined to talk with newsmen.

Justice Manuel Gomez reserved decision on the alimony, a preliminary to Mrs. Mitchell's suit for separation. She has charged abandonment.

Dam Moves Ahead

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Construction of Auburn Dam on the north fork of the American River received the go-ahead yesterday after environmentalist groups agreed to drop their lawsuit challenging the $847.5 million project.

The action came as U.S. District Court Judge Thomas J. MacBride began a hearing on an amended environmental impact statement he ordered the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation to prepare following a 10-week trial last April.

Yesterday, the Natural Resources Defense Council, the Save The American River Association and the Environmental Defense Fund agreed to dismissal of their suit.

Bid Dampened

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Jewish settlers opposed to territorial concessions and Arab diplomats backing guerrilla demands and speaking openly of the possibility of a new war today complicated Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's bid to get the stalled Middle East peace talks moving.

Both the settlers and the Egyptians tried to head off moves toward an Israeli-Jordanian disengagement pact, threatening one of the options open to Kissinger on his latest Middle East peace mission.

In Beirut, the newspaper An Nahar said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam alerted the Palestine guerrilla movement to the possibility of another Middle East war in the near future.

Cabinet Sworn In

ATHENS (UPI) — A 19-member caretaker cabinet under Premier Constantine Caramanlis took the oath of office today and pledged to bring democracy back to the land where it was born.

The new nonpolitical interim government will run the country until the Nov. 17 elections.

Changes Plea

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Stanley Goldblum, mastermind of one of the biggest business frauds in U.S. history, brought his federal court trial to a surprise halt yesterday by pleading guilty.

It had been expected that the complex trial, brought on by the $2 billion Equity Funding Corp. scandal, which bagan only last week, would last six weeks to two months.

Goldblum pleaded guilty to five of the 45 charges against him, including conspiracy, mail and securities fraud and making false statements in registration of securities.

The prosecution agreed to drop the remaining charges. Goldblum could get up to 30 years in prison. U.S. District Court Judge Jesse W. Curtis scheduled sentencing for Feb. 10.

Protest Erupts

ROME (UPI) — A protest strike in the auto capital of Turin erupted into fistfights today, hampering settlement of Italy's political crisis and threatening to set off a new round of labor unrest.

Police said at least 13 persons were injured, one of them seriously, in fights between picketers and strike breakers at the Fiat auto works in Turin, the Detroit of Italy.

Leveling Off

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's divorce rate is leveling off and officials speculated today that more marriages were surviving because of the nation's troubled economy.

During the first six months of this year the number of divorces stood at 59,361 compared to 57,475 during the same period in 1973 — or a 3.3 per cent increase. It was the lowest six month increase in the last seven years.

"I found a general trend that divorce rates decrease in the times of economic hardship," Brinkley Long, a Sacramento County Superior Court marriage counselor, told UPI.

Mansfield: Proposals Not Enough

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said today he could support a surtax if it was placed on higher incomes, but on the whole President Ford's new anti-inflation proposals were not strong enough to cure the economy.

Mansfield's comments were indicative of Congress' reaction to Ford's economic message yesterday — a general willingness to work with the President to help fight inflation but a feeling that the measures did not go far enough or hit too hard at the middle income Americans.

The President's program was "a move in the right direction," Mansfield said, "but not anywhere near strong enough."

It was doubtful Congress could act on any kind of a tax bill this year, Mansfield said, but he believed that action could be taken on increased benefits for the jobless and housing assistance as Ford requested.

Mansfield said he intended to support Ford's proposal for a 5 per cent tax surcharge but disagreed with the President on who should be affected by the added tax.

Mansfield said he would like to see such a tax surcharge applied to families earning more than $20,000 or $25,000 a year and individuals earning more than $15,000 annually. Ford's tax would be levied on families earning $15,000 or more and individuals earning more than $7,500.

"It's a good start but the bullet has not been bitten," Mansfield said.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., attacked the plan and Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., defended it in a joint televised appearance on the NBC Today show.

"It's far too little in it's impact," said Proxmire, who suggested the President crack down hard on "very, very big price increases" in steel, nonferrous metals, chemicals and oil.

PRESIDENT FORD
As he spoke yesterday

Percy called the Ford proposal "a good beginning," but said he felt the 5 per cent income surtax at the $7,500 individual and $15,000 family income level was too low.

Within hours of Ford's speech that also called for business tax revisions that could mean $700 million a year to industry, Congress was making some movement.

The chairman of the Appropriations Committee, Rep. George Mahon, R-Tex., introduced a resolution imposing a $300 billion ceiling on budget outlays next year, a proposal similar to Ford's request.

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking Committee, said he would support Ford's plan to pump $3 billion in government funds into mortgage lending if it could be directed toward low and moderate income housing, but he said the program still fell far short of the needs.

$5.25 Billion Unemployed Program Said Prepared

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan told Congress today the administration is prepared to spend $5.25 billion on unemployment insurance and a jobs program in the "unlikely event" that unemployment reaches 7 per cent this year.

Brennan testified at a hastily called meeting of Senate and House labor subcommittees on President Ford's job related economic proposals, including tax reform, additional unemployment benefits, public service jobs and a community improvement corps.

Organized labor was highly critical of the proposals — particularly a 5 per cent tax surchage on family incomes over $15,000 and a larger return to business than to low income individuals.

Noting that the September unemployment rate rose to 5.8 per cent, Brennan explained that the President's proposed "National Employment Assistance Act of 1974," terminating Dec. 31, 1975, would come into play only when the national unemployment rate averages 6 per cent or more for three months.

The act proposes unemployment pay for workers who have exhausted all other unemployment compensation or who are not eligible for such pay. It also would create work projects under the Community Improvement Program paying a maximum wage of $7,000 a year.

Brennan said the act would authorize $500 million for community projects when the unemployment level reaches 6 per cent for three months, another $750 million should it reach 6.5 per cent; and an additional $1 billion at 7 per cent.

Brennan estimated that some 2.75 million jobless experienced workers would be eligible for special unemployment assistance.

Leaves Hospital

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Mrs. Billy Graham, wife of the evangelist, was released yesterday from Lutheran Hospital after being hospitalized with injuries suffered in a fall at the home of her daughter and son-in-law.

Butz Reveals Soviets Sought 6 Million Tons Of Wheat, Grain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz has revealed that the Soviets had been negotiating for as much as 6 million tons of wheat and grain before last weekend's sale of 3.4 million tons was postponed under White House pressure.

He also said one of Treasury Secretary William Simon's assignments when he goes to Moscow later this week will be to establish some ground rules on how much grain the Soviet Union can buy from exporters in the United States.

Assistant Secretary of State Thomas Enders, appearing yesterday before the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee, said Simon will "define the amount of grain that can be lifted from the United States this year."

Enders said the State Department was reluctant to make such definitions earlier this year although it probably would have headed off the sale by two giant grain exporters that was thwarted Saturday.

Appearing before the same committee, Butz said a problem arose when the "price-oriented economy" of the U.S. clashed with the "state trading company" of the Soviet Union, "and the two don't mesh."

Butz said when a White House meeting was hurriedly called to stop the contracts from going through, the Agriculture Department had evidence the Soviets were negotiating for as much as 6 million tons of wheat and corn.

He said the White House was called in because the deal had "diplomatic overtones."

The secretary said he was certain the new export reporting policy instituted Monday will guarantee no repeats. It requires large export contracts to receive prior U.S. government approval.

Butz also said the United States has imposed no ban on exports to any country — something he strongly opposes — except where trade is prohibited by law.

Meanwhile, Edward Cook, president of Cook Industries of Memphis, told the committee that he had backed out on a sale of wheat and soybean oil to Iran because he was advised, in effect, "that export controls are in place" regarding Russia, China, and oil exporting nations.

A White House spokesman, John W. Hushen, said Cook's company was asked "to hold the contract in abeyance" but not ordered to cancel it as was the case of the Russian grain sale.

Schoonmaker Waterfront Proposal Approval Urged

A group of residents and businessmen from the Napa Street Pier and Boby's Boatyard in Sausalito last night urged the city council to consider approving at least the marine elements of the proposed Schoonmaker Development apart from its other commercial, recreational and residential plans for the city's waterfront.

Spokesman Robert Thompson called for quick council action because the Schoonmaker developer, the O'Meara Chandler Corp., plans to tear down the pier and boatyard within 90 days.

Thompson, an attorney rebuilding a sailboat at the boatyard, presented a petition signed by 21 persons asking council approval for a marina, a new pier, a boatyard capable of handling large fishing vessels and houseboats, tennis courts and parking facilities.

He told councilmen that Schoonmaker representative Steve Siskind has promised to restore and improve the boatyard and pier rather than tear the derelict structures down while new marine facilities are built at the site.

"This isn't something Sausalito doesn't need," said Albert Schultz, owner of a chandlery on the pier. He pointed out that several businesses and dozens of persons, including 15 families living in houseboats, will be displaced if the pier and boatyard are destroyed.

Councilmen, however, took no action on the request after advice from City Atty. Leland H. Jordan and planning director Herb Case that the developer would have to amend his development application to permit separate consideration of the marine aspects by the city planning commission.

Music Irks Belvedere Residents

A spokesman for 35 families along the Belvedere shoreline complained last night about loud rock and roll booming across Richardson Bay from a Sausalito nightspot and urged the city council to do something about it.

Dr. William Rothman, who first complained about loud music from Zack's restaurant before the council in July, said he doubts the sincerity of efforts by the restaurant operators to stem the noise problem. He claimed the music has become progressively louder since then.

Rothman, a physician, called on the council to take decibel readings on the bay side of the waterfront establishment and enforce the $500-a-day fine in the city's noise control ordinance if the restaurant is found in violation.

Gordon Hansen, representing Zack's, denied the music is coming from Zack's but pointed out that baffles and other soundproofing materials are being considered for the nightspot.

Councilmen told city staff to measure the noise level on the bay side of the restaurant to determine if the city's noise control law is being violated.

The Sausalito City Council also:

WOLFBACK RIDGE — Agreed on a 3-1 vote, Sally Stanford dissenting, that density allowed on Wolfback Ridge should be reduced from one dwelling per half-acre to one dwelling per acre. The matter was referred to the planning commission for public hearings.

LANDMARKS — Sent to the planning commission for its review a proposed ordinance for designating historical landmarks in the city.

TRANSIT — Supported on an experimental basis a proposal by the city-county planning council that a new lane on Highway 101 be open only to buses.

DOGS — Rejected a request by the County of Marin to raise dog license fees from $5 to $7.50. Robin Sweeny dissented.

NEW COLLEGE — Set next Wednesday for a joint city council and planning commission meeting with representatives of New College to discuss the possibility of a college building on three acres of surplus federal property on the city's waterfront.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned until 8 p.m. Tuesday in council chambers.

Incumbents Hold Lead

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Poll reported today that incumbent Sen. Alan Cranston, a Democrat, and incumbent Attorney General Evelle Younger, a Republican, both hold commanding leads in their races for reelection.

Pollster Mervin D. Field reported that with five weeks to go in the campaign, Cranston leads Republican H. L. Richardson 59 per cent to 24 per cent with 17 per cent undecided.

Younger leads William Norris 47 per cent to 28 per cent with 25 per cent undecided.

Field said the secret of both incumbents' success appeared to be their ability to attract members of the rival party.

Cranston has the support of 33 per cent of GOP voters with another 21 per cent undecided. And 32 per cent of the Democrats now say they are leaning toward Younger with another 25 per cent undecided.

Frisco To Host Flower Festival

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco will host a three day wine and flower festival next week, according to Mayor Joseph Alioto.

The mayor, standing on a flower-decorated cable car, announced yesterday that the Oct. 18-20 event would include street fairs, music, decorated cable cars and tastings of California wine.

Sausalito School District May Sue County For Lost Revenue

The Sausalito School District may sue the County of Marin for more than $500,000 in property tax revenue it claims has been lost since property in the Marin City Redevelopment Area was taken off the tax rolls.

The district board Monday named Trustees Douglas G. Fancher and Betty Times to a committee charged with investigating the possibility of suing to recover the money, according to Supt. Donald W. Johnson.

When the redevelopment area was formed in the 1950s, county supervisors promised to reimburse the school district for lost property taxes for education of Marin City children occupying tax exempt housing, Johnson said.

The last substantial payment, $43,000, was made in 1968. Since then, according to the superintendent, the amount of money paid by the county to the school district has been negligible.

Last year, Johnson said, the county paid only $1,714 for the education of more than 170 Marin City children. Sausalito residents, whose children represent about 40 per cent of district enrollment, have been forced to shoulder 91 per cent of the property tax burden.

According to district figures, $506,629 in property tax money has been lost to the district since 1961.

Many Are Now Borrowing On Their Life Insurance

By DAVID T. COOK
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — With bank and finance company charges at double-digit figures, an increasing number of people are using the cash value of their permanent life insurance policies as a source of low-cost loans.

While term insurance benefits flow only after the insured's passing, permanent life insurance provides policyholders the right to borrow at a fixed low interest rate against the accumulating cash value of their policy.

Premiums on permanent life policies are substantially higher than those on term insurance.

Borrowing on life insurance can produce substantial savings in interest costs. For example, a New York resident who needs an unsecured personal loan could pay up to 12.15 per cent interest at a bank and more at a finance company. The state-regulated rate on life insurance loans in New York: 5 per cent.

As a result of comparable savings in other states, gross loans on life insurance policies rose 6.4 per cent from June to July, reaching their highest monthly level this year and the third largest level on record, the American Life Insurance Association reports.

Total loans outstanding at the end of June were $21.321 billion, up 14 per cent over last year, reports the Institute of Life Insurance, another industry association.

Demand for life insurance loans was even higher than the industry average at some of the insurance firms contracted by the Monitor. At the Hartford Insurance Company life insurance borrowing is up 24 per cent over last year, a spokesman said.

The life insurance industry is not providing bargain insurance rates voluntarily but because of contractual commitments and state regulation.

For example, some of Hartford Insurance Company's older policies stipulate a 4.8 per cent interest rate on life insurance loans. Policies the firm writes today specify a 6 per cent interest rate.

The maximum interest rate that can be written into a life insurance policy is regulated in most states by an insurance commissioner. The most common state-regulated interest rate is 6 per cent, although some states, including New York, require lower rates.

Only North Dakota has adopted a so-called model law regulating life insurance loan interest rates. The law drafted by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) allows firms to raise the maximum interest rate charged on loans by 1 per cent a year during periods of rising interest rates.

Unless you want to draw off one-half of an insurance company's assets, policy loan rates will have to keep up with prevailing rates, asserts on NAIC official.

Because life insurance loans are regarded as a "contractual right," no firms have yet taken formal steps to restrict loans, an Institute of Life Insurance official says.

But at least one major insurer admits to "pointing out" to policy holders who want loans that they are "depleting an asset, and if something happens they are not going to have as much insurance as they thought."

This free advice is aimed not only at protecting the consumer but also the insurance firm's investment portfolio. When loan demand is up, firms have to keep a substantial amount available for payout. The higher interest investment alternatives for these funds are thus curtailed.

The high loan trend is causing concern in the insurance industry. The high demand "can't help but . . . impair the investment performance of the industry," Arthur C. Cragoe, senior vice-president of Franklin Life Insurance Co., said in a recent speech.

Although insurance companies are concerned about the rapidly rising demand for life insurance loans, they are not expected to stop writing policies with loan possibilities.

Insurance officials admit that the loan offer is a major selling point for permanent life insurance policies.

Since permanent policy sales have fallen substantially behind those of lower-cost term insurance, life insurance loans will likely remain available for the foreseeable future.

Teachers' Pay Hiked 8 Per Cent

An 8 per cent across-the-board raise for the approximately 125 teachers who work under the Marin County superintendent of schools office was approved last night by the Marin County Board of Education.

The settlement ended negotiations which began last January, according to Robert E. Spain, assistant superintendent. The teachers had asked a wage increase and benefits package which came to about a 15-per cent increase, Spain said.

The county schools office operates schools for handicapped youngsters, juvenile hall school, San Quentin schools and other specialized learning centers.

In other action, the board approved pay raises for substitute teachers in the children's centers and preschool program of $3 a day, from $27 to $30.

Woman Hurt In Car Crash

A Guerneville woman suffered broken ribs and cuts and bruises yesterday when her auto and another collided on Highway 101 and both vehicles rolled over.

The California Highway Patrol said Mrs. Koenig's auto and a car driven by Alanna Harrington, 18, of 61 Knoll Road, Mill Valley, were both northbound at 10:10 a.m. when they collided broadside. Miss Harrington was taken to Marin General Hospital for treatment of minor injuries and released.

Cities To Get In-Lieu Funds

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Marin County will receive $21,052 and Sonoma County $22,019 in September apportionments of in-lieu motor vehicle license fees, according to the state controller's office.

Cities' shares are:

Belvedere, $329; Corte Madera, $1,094; Cotati, $358; Fairfax, $970; Larkspur, $1,566; Mill Valley, $1,677; Novato, $4,469; Petaluma, $3,944; Rohnert Park, $1,456; Ross, $347; San Anselmo, $1,665; San Rafael, $5,656; Sausalito, $781; Tiburon, $860.

Group Advocates Ecology Pricing

By JOHN HERITAGE
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

One U.S. environmental group strongly believes that environmental goals can make as much sense economically as they do ecologically. Now, the organization has launched a nationwide effort that may prove it.

The Environment Defense Fund (EDF) is focusing its economy-ecology reform efforts on the pricing policies of the electric utilities. With this industry's high fuel consumption and pollution, it is a serious source of environmental concern. And with higher costs for fuel and construction, the utilities also have economic troubles.

The gist of the EDF's argument is that traditional electricity rates not only have encouraged wasteful energy use, but now are saddling utilities with unmanageable costs. The environmental group contends that it is possible to devise changes in the rates structure which would benefit environmentalists and industry alike, a case it is pressing before regulatory commissions in four states.

Until a few years ago, electric power policies seemed beyond any such questioning. Greater energy demand seemed a boon for everyone. Larger power plants could be built, achieving "economies of scale." And the savings could be passed on to the consumer.

This growth-oriented policy has always been strongly supported by electricity pricing methods. Typically, the large user is charged much less per kilowatt-hour than the small one. The utilities felt that the difference is justified because greater electricity demand can be met at lower unit costs. The EDF argues that the quantity-discount method has helped promote extravagant energy use.

But since the last decade, the electric power industry's fortunes have been dramatically reversed. (And even the industry acknowledges the need for a new look at rate policies.) Efficiency for fossil-fuel plants has hit a plateau, and nuclear plants have technical problems. Oil, coal and building prices have soared. And massive utility expansion plans are conflicting with long-neglected environmental values.

"Now, it no longer makes sense to have electric rates or advertising that promote growth," says Ernest Habicht Jr., the EDF's energy director. "Not even the utilities benefit."

The remedy, the EDF contends, is to set rates that actually discourage unwise growth in electricity demand. Extra charges would be levied for electricity used during "peak" hours, when the strain is greatest on utility system capacity. Price breaks for big users would be eliminated — a reform already being adopted in some states.

The EDF argues that pricing for slower growth would buy time for the electric power industry, easing the need for expensive new plants and giving research a chance to develop new cost-saving technologies. It also would encourage energy-conservative measures such as better-insulated homes, more efficient industrial processes, and less air-conditioner use. And it would soften environmental impact, by slowing the growth in new facilities and fuel needs.

The EDF's campaign got a boost in August when the Wisconsin Public Service Commission ordered a utility to explore "peak hour" pricing. With such precedents, the EDF hopes to bring rate policy reviews and adjustments in every state. Its success could dispel the widespread notion that good ecology is bad economics.

Revised Figures In Mill Valley Rate

This year's property tax rate in the Mill Valley School District is $3.342 per $100 assessed valuation, about 27 cents less than last year. If the district's ballot Measure J passes in November, the rate would jump to $3.48 in 1975-76. But the district estimates that it would drop to $3.23 in 1976-77 and to $2.98 in 1977-78.

Yesterday's Independent-Journal story on the district election gave inaccurate tax figures which were slightly lower than those listed above. Yesterday's figures were furnished in a citizens committee report on the election. The revised figures above come from district business manager Carroll D. Killingsworth.

Proposed Sign Plan 'Startles'

Members of the Larkspur Chamber of Commerce yesterday "were amazed to learn that a new proposed sign ordinance would, in essence, require a change in 99 per cent of all business signs in Larkspur," according to Sue Schaefer, secretary.

Mrs. Schaefer said a chamber committee reviewed the proposed ordinance. Members also "were startled to find that the present ordinance was not even considered or used as a guideline in rewriting a new proposed sign ordinance," Mrs. Schaefer said.

The 30 members present voted unanimously to form a 15-member committee, headed by Neil R. Brixon, former mayor and city councilman, to draw up a sign ordinance acceptable to Larkspur merchants and present this proposal to the city council.

Larkspur City Mgr. Harlan Barry told the chamber members that 25 copies of the proposed sign ordinance will be available today at the Larkspur City Hall for interested merchants.

HOUSING

April 15 to submit an application for the funds and must set up a citizens' committee to help develop a plan for their use.

Funding under the housing section of the act is still up in the air and will be based on a "housing assistance plan," to be developed by the citizens' committee as part of its overall plan on use of community development funds.

On a related matter, the assistant county administrator reported that the county may be in line for funding under the federal Public Works and Economic Development Act.

He said the matching fund program, requiring the county to put an amount equal to the federal grant, is aimed at promoting economic growth and job opportunities.

He could give no estimate on the amount Marin might receive, though he said it would not be large since only $5.3 million is available to "urban counties" in the western states.

To qualify requires preparation of an "overall economic development plan" for upgrading the county's economy, he said.

2 Men Survive Lightning Bolts

MOUNTAIN VIEW (UPI) — Lightning struck twice during a rare thunderstorm on the San Francisco Peninsula, and both men it hit lived to tell about it.

"I really thought I had died. It was like a truck ran over me. It went right through me," Arthur Sanchez, 22, said from his hospital bed yesterday.

Sanchez, a roofer, was tarring the roof on an apartment house in Sunnyvale when the thunderstorm struck Monday.

Three miles away and 32 minutes later, Lester Tikvica, 51, a fruit grower in Sunnyvale, was hitching a four-foot steel rod to his tractor when lightning struck him.

When Tikvica woke up three hours later in a hospital bed, he said, "I felt like I'd been in a car wreck."

Strawberry Plans Annual Meeting

The Strawberry Area Community Council will hold its annual meeting at 8 p.m. today at the Strawberry Recreation Center.

County Supervisor Michael Wornum will attend to answer questions. Topics will include Strawberry open space, flood control and auto traffic.

FORD

dent, said he would defer any comment on his pardon of Nixon until his scheduled Oct. 17 appearance before a House Judiciary subcommittee.

Ford's testimony originally scheduled for Thursday was postponed until after a Watergate cover-up jury is impaneled and sequestered.

In his opening remarks before taking questions from the press, Ford announced he will meet Mexico's chief of state, Luis Echeverria Alvarez, in the Arizona border town of Nogales Oct. 21 for a review of bilateral relations.

Ford said he and Echeverria will meet at both sides of the border and "discuss a wide range of subjects ... to seek to strengthen our traditionally good relations."

This will be the 22nd border meeting between U.S. and Mexican presidents since William Howard Taft met Porforio Diaz in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, in 1907.

Questioning brought out a disagreement between Ford and his Secretary of the Treasury, William E. Simon. The secretary told the House Ways and Means Committee today that he opposes ending the oil depletion allowance, which allows oil companies to reduce their taxes often to zero.

But Ford, pressed on his endorsement of a bill ending the allowance, said "the answer is yes" when asked whether he favors ending the allowance, despite Simon's stand.

Ford said he had checked carefully into Nelson A. Rockefeller's $50,000 gift to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and found no "impropriety."

"I've been assured that every tax has been paid and that all legal problems were satisfied," Ford said.

Ford said he had looked briefly at the two other major gifts Rockefeller gave former aides and said he "assumed that the law had been adhered to and there was no impropriety."

The news conference apparently was timed partly to give him a quick chance to elaborate on economic proposals he laid out Tuesday. The President also chose to experiment with a new press conference format, offering reporters a chance to follow up on questions if they want.

United Way At 7.8% Of Its Goal

Campaign leaders said Monday the sum represents 7.8 per cent of the $100,000 goal set this year for the cities of Petaluma, Rohnert Park and Cotati.

The entire Northbay campaign, which includes Sonoma and Mendocino counties, has raised $55,834 to date, or 8.7 per cent of the $639,581 goal.

President Arthur Lafranchi of Petaluma said the total collected so far lags behind the percentage in hand this time last year, when 10.3 per cent of the hoped-for amount had been collected.

The annual drive supports 37 community service organizations in the two counties.

Drought, Rain In Hong Kong

HONG KONG (UPI) — Hong Kong's water department crews, drenched to the skin by a driving rain, today turned off water mains throughout the British Crown Colony, leaving its 4.2 million residents with only 10 hours of water a day.

The late monsoon rains began about mid-morning but government officials said it probably was too late in the season for enough rain to fall to fill Hong Kong's half-empty reservoirs.

The worst drought in eight years forced the government to begin rationing water Sept. 25.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Rossi Succumbs At Age 62

Edna Maree Rossi, a resident of San Rafael for more than 60 years, died yesterday at a local hospital after a short illness. She was 62.

A native of Petaluma, Mrs. Rossi came to San Rafael as a baby and lived there all her life.

She taught for more than 25 years in Sonoma and San Rafael schools, retiring seven years ago.

Mrs. Rossi was also active in church work at St. Raphael's Church.

She was married to Charles Rossi from 1949 until his death in 1960.

She is survived by her brother, Harold Solari of San Rafael.

A Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated Friday at 10 a.m. at St. Raphael's Church.

Rosary will be recited tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Keaton's Mortuary.

Burial will be at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

MARGARET RAVANI

Funeral for Margaret Ravani of Fairfax will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow at Star of the Sea Church in San Francisco.

Mrs. Ravani, 65, died Sunday at her home after an extended illness.

Mrs. Ravani was born in San Francisco and was graduated from Lowell High School. She came to Marin County as a young woman and after her marriage to the late Edmund Ravani, a jeweler, made her home in Fairfax for some 40 years.

She is survived by three brothers, B. Gilmore Dowd of San Francisco, J. Alfred Dowd of Sausalito, William Gerald Dowd of Saratoga, and a sister, Bernadette C. Corsiglia of South San Francisco. She was also the sister of the late Juanita E. Flaherty.

Rosary will be at 8 p.m. today at McAvoy, O'Hara Mortuary in San Francisco. Burial will be at Golden Gate National Cemetery in Daly City.

MAUREEN SCHERTZER

Maureen Schertzer, a Petaluma homemaker, died yesterday in a Santa Rosa hospital after a long illness. She was 34.

She was a native of Scotland and reared and educated in South Africa and Canada.

Mrs. Schertzer lived in Southern Sonoma the last two years, moving there after living in San Francisco. The family home is at 555 Fair Avenue.

She was a member of the Petaluma Newcomers Club, the Hillcrest Hospital Ladies Auxiliary and Elim Lutheran Church of Petaluma.

She is survived by her husband, Berndt Schertzer; three sons, Stephen, Eric and David Schertzer, all of Petaluma; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Abbott of San Francisco; and a sister, Margaret Barrett of Inverness.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. Friday at the Sorensen Funeral Home, with the Rev. Thorval Evenson officiating. Inurnment will be private at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

ROSA KOPF

Funeral was today for Rosa Kopf of Penngrove, a longtime Southern Sonoma resident who died in a San Francisco hospital Sunday after a short illness. She was 67.

Mrs. Kopf was a native of Switzerland who came to the United States 45 years ago. For many years she and her late husband, Hans, operated a poultry ranch near Petaluma. During most of the last 14 years Mrs. Kopf was a nurse's aide at Petaluma General Hospital. Her home was at 2295 Goodwin Avenue.

She is survived by three daughters, Eridoline Hamilton and Marilyn Blankenship, both of Petaluma, and Susan Kopf of Fresno; a son, Gary Hans Kopf of Rohnert Park, nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Cypress Hill Memorial Park, Petaluma.

ANNA SCHWINDT

Private Mass of the Christian Burial for Anna Schwindt of Novato was held today in Novato.

Mrs. Schwindt died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness. She was 90.

She had lived in Novato for the past seven years. The family home is at 1758 Indian Valley Road. She was a native of Council Bluffs, Iowa.

She was a retired seamstress.

She is survived by a son, Ad N. Schwindt of Novato, and a daughter, Henriette (Jo) Binswanger of Reno, five grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

JOSEPH SCHLESINGER

Private funeral will be held tomorrow in San Francisco for Joseph D. Schlesinger, a resident of San Rafael for the past 24 years.

Schlesinger, who was 91, died Monday at a local convalescent hospital.

He was born in England but came to California as a young child.

He worked as a maintenance man in a San Francisco apartment building before retiring.

UPPER INCOME HOUSING — Gov. Ronald Reagan and his wife, Nancy, use gold-painted shovels to break ground for the new governor's mansion. The $1.29 million structure will be built on a knoll overlooking the scenic American River in Carmichael, a suburb six miles east of the state capital at Sacramento. (UPI Telephoto)

Governor's Home Ground Broken

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Using gold painted shovels, Gov. Ronald Reagan and his wife, Nancy, have broken ground for the $1.29 million governor's mansion on a small hill overlooking the scenic American River.

"Well honey, we did it," said a smiling Mrs. Reagan after a brief and informal ceremony yesterday at the mansion site in suburban Carmichael about six miles east of the capital city.

Reagan dug two extra heaps of dirt, saying he wanted to "start it well enough so no one will dare stop."

The residence has long been sought by Reagan as a home for future governors. His enthusiasm was not diminished by the fact he would never live in the one-story sprawling structure.

"We'll just let someone else have that experience," said Reagan, who is leaving office in January.

"I never thought that it would come about," added Mrs. Reagan. "Even though we'll never live there, that was never the main point."

Edmund G. Brown Jr., Democratic candidate for governor, and a bachelor, has called the mansion an "impractical white elephant." He indicated he would not live there, if elected.

His Republican opponent, Houston Flournoy, a father of three, said it would be a good place to rear children.

Bud O. Stevenson, a Redwood City contractor, was awarded the building job last week after the state Supreme Court rejected an appeal by project opponents attempting to block construction.

Reagan said the need for the house on the 11-acre site, donated by Reagan supporters, was dictated by the requirement for space when governors raise children.

Within the adobe-coated brick walls and tilt roof of the new mansion will be six bedrooms, a courtyard, guest rooms, formal and family dining rooms, two rooms for employes and a study. The living area will total 12,000 square feet, about five times the average three-bedroom house.

The residence is tentatively scheduled for completion by next August.

The legislature appropriated $1.45 million for the project to include construction, design and environmental impact study costs.

A Dog Show Planned At Fairgrounds

Welsh corgis, doberman pinschers, spaniels, great danes, Alaskan malamutes, Siberian huskies, puliks, pomeranians, poodles and bullmastiffs are only a few of the breeds which will appear at the fourth annual Expo K-9 on Oct. 27 at the Marin County Fairgrounds.

The event, sponsored by the Blue Ribbon Dog Breeders, will begin at 9 a.m. with judging of various breeds.

Demonstrations of canine utility and intelligence, including rescue work, cadence drill teams, agility performances, retrieving and sledding are planned.

Dog cart rides for children also will be available.

In the Veterans Memorial Building, there will be booths staffed by commercial firms, breed clubs and kennel clubs.

Last year, some 10,000 spectators attended Expo K-9, according to Phyllis Greer of Novato, chairman.

Rohnert Park Council Directs McDonald's To Reduce Lighting

The McDonald's hamburger outlet planned for Rohnert Park will be built with a little less neon lighting than usual because of the intervention of the city council.

Although approval of architectural plans for new developments is usually left to the planning commission, the McDonald's case came before the council Monday because Councilman David L. Eck felt that the planning body approved the design without first turning a critical eye upon it.

At Eck's behest, the council directed the developer to delete a series of yellow neon bars which were to have glowed from the building's roof.

According to City Clerk Kathryn P. Logue, the council agreed that the lights were esthetically unpleasing and that they would consume electricity while serving no useful purpose. The hamburger outlet is to be built at Commerce Boulevard and Hunter Drive.

The Rohnert Park City Council Also:

SUIT — Was informed by City Atty. John Flitner that the Santa Rosa Urban Renewal Agency's lawsuit seeking to prevent development of a regional shopping center north of the city will be heard Tuesday before Sonoma Superior Court Judge Joseph P. Murphy Jr.

ALLEY — Agreed to share the city golf course parking lot and billboard with the 24 lane bowling alley being planned next door by James Decker of Santa Rosa, and set a public hearing for Oct. 29 on Decker's site plan.

SUBDIVISION — Approved a final map for Country Club Terrace condominium subdivision, a 54-unit development on Country Club Drive opposite the Valley Village mobile home park. Because the city sewage plant is operating near capacity and because the Santa Rosa plant which is to augment the city's capacity for treatment won't be completed for two years, the council told the developer the map approval carried no guarantee that sewage treatment would be available when the project is completed.

APPOINTMENT — Named Chet Crowley of 8685 Laurelwood Drive to the cultural arts commission for a four year term.

SCHOOLS — Endorsed the Petaluma High School District's Nov. 5 ballot request for permission to increase spending per pupil by $200.

MEETING — Set the next regular council meeting for 7 p.m. Oct. 29 instead of Oct. 21, when several members will attend the League of California Cities convention in Los Angeles.

Paintings Display

Paintings by Lilliana A. Soden of Tiburon are on display at the San Rafael Public Library until Nov. 2. A Marin resident since 1957, the self-taught artist has been painting since she came to the U.S. from her native Italy in 1947.

Legion Will Tackle Loud Party Problem

The San Anselmo City Council last night agreed to postpone taking any action about noisy parties at the American Legion Log Cabin while the American Legion Post attempts to solve the problem.

A retired San Anselmo police chief, Donald T. Wood, representing the veterans' group, told the city council that "two incidents in August" were the result of "deliberate misrepresentation" by persons hiring the hall.

Sixty-eight neighbors of the building on Sonoma Avenue recently signed a petition asking the city council to set up restrictions for groups holding parties and dances at the hall. They complained about "noisy brawls" at the Log Cabin on Aug. 3 and 24 and "too many times previously." The neighbors said in each case the police had been called several times, finally shutting down the dances.

The neighbors asked that amplified music and loudspeakers be prohibited at the building in the residential neighborhood and that other restrictive measures be adopted.

Wood told the council that the American Legion will discuss the matter at its next meeting and that he was going to propose that the building be restricted to dances by "recognized groups." He mentioned service clubs and the League of Women Voters as examples.

The matter was postponed until Oct. 22.

The San Anselmo City Council Also:

INTERIM — Adopted another interim resolution controlling permits for new building until the city's general plan is adopted. The resolution will expire Jan. 15 or the date the plan is approved. It replaces a similar measure banning new building which expired today. Woodrow V. Capurro voted against the measure.

BUSES — Endorsed an exclusive bus lane on Highway 101 from Greenbrae to Richardson Bay Bridge with Pieter Toal voting no because he did not think provision for car pools was adequately spelled out.

CODES — Introduced for future passage as ordinances 1973 editions of the uniform building code, uniform housing code, uniform mechanical code and uniform plumbing code and material and property standards.

DRAINAGE — Agreed to have the staff investigate and discuss at the next meeting what can be done about a drainage problem at the end of Skyline Road.

CLOSED — Went into closed session to discuss salary negotiations with city firemen.

ABSENT — Councilman John H. Colteaux was absent.

2 Democrats Miss TV Campaign Spots

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Democratic candidates for state office have missed two television appearances this week and at least one Republican opponent is unhappy about it.

On Monday, Assemblywoman March K. Fong, candidate for secretary of state, did not appear for the taping of her installment in the public television series about statewide races. She sent word she had a previous engagement.

Cory's absence yesterday was criticized by Bagley, who accused the Democrat of "sham," and "an act of a devious politician."

Cory had originally canceled his appearance because the taping was scheduled at strikebound KQED. When the filming was shifted to KPIX with the blessings of the strikers, Cory said he had made other plans which could not be canceled.

"I am looking forward to debating Mr. Bagley Oct. 16 before the Sacramento Press Club," Cory said.

Bagley said Cory was in San Francisco at the time of the taping, and "I'd like to know what is more important about coming to San Francisco than appearing before 20 million television viewers."

Bagley said the affair raises "a question of political morality in this post-Watergate period."

Cory has appeared with Bagley on a television show previously in Los Angeles, but Bagley complained that Cory, the frontrunner in the race, had canceled another appearance scheduled in Los Angeles next Sunday.

Registered GOP Voters Lagging

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Californians have become Democrats and Independents in greater numbers than Republicans to capture almost two-thirds of the state's registered voters, state figures disclosed today.

The Secretary of State's office released preliminary figures showing that 9.65 million persons had registered to vote 54 days before the November general election, compared with 9.3 million persons eligible to vote in the June Primary. The office said the final figure should be more than 9.8 million eligible voters.

Up until Sept. 12, Democratic registration showed the largest gain since the primary election, climbing 114,887 to 5.3 million voters.

Independents, or those who declined to state a party preference, showed the next largest increase, gaining 23,826 voters over primary election figures to reach 576,295.

The Republican party managed the smallest registration increase, gaining only 13,976 voters for 3.5 million.

As of 54 days before the Nov. 5 election, Democrats claimed a majority of the registration with 56.5 per cent. Combined with the 6 per cent held by the Independents, the two categories accounted for 62.5 per cent of the registered voters. Republicans numbered 36.4 per cent of the registered voters.

Rockefeller Told To Explain Gifts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Rules Committee today asked Nelson A. Rockefeller to provide a "full explanation" of some $800,000 in gifts he gave to former aides, including Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The vice presidential nominee assured chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., he would provide the explanation "as soon as possible."

"I don't know whether there's a good explanation for the gifts or not," Cannon told newsmen after a brief committee meeting. "I must say I have some question in my mind or I wouldn't have asked for a full explanation.

Cannon said he didn't think the gifts constituted a conflict of interest "but they do raise the question of influence of wealth in a political system on government."

Cannon said he talked with Rockefeller on the phone "and he assured me he would respond fully as soon as possible."

The chairman said the committee would meet in executive session after the congressional recess to discuss the former governor's reply on the gift issue. At the same time, he said, they would take up the audit of Rockefeller's income tax now under way by the Joint Tax Committee and the Internal Revenue Service.

"We won't be able to make a decision until we get back from recess" on whether Rockefeller will be recalled to answer questions on the gifts at a public hearing," Cannon said.

Other Committee members who meet Friday to study Rockefeller's financial reports said they were not alarmed at the gifts —including $550,000 to one former chief aide and $50,000 to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger five years ago.

Additionally, the multi-millionaire former New York governor has made nominal campaign contributions to a number of congressmen who will vote on his confirmation.

"I didn't see anything which disturbed me," said Senate Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia. "But one never knows what may develop tomorrow or the next day."

"I see nothing which alarms me yet," said Sen. James Allen, D-Ala. "I guess a fellow is entitled to give his money away to whomever he wants."

Both Allen and Byrd said they wanted to hear a complete explanation of the Rockefeller gifts.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said the disclosures "could well reopen hearings" on the nomination.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said Rockefeller should be recalled and questioned about the gifts. "The question of personal gifts to political figures raises a grave question of propriety," Helms said.

Planning For College To Be Discussed

Planning for college will be discussed by members of the Tamalpais High School counseling department at 7:30 p.m. today in the school's student center, counselor Charles Crawford has announced.

Topics will include college admissions, requirements and financial aid. The program is open to all students and their parents.

Singer Testifies For Jailed Con

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Country music star Johnny Cash, saying drugs are "a worse prison than you can build with walls and bars," testified on behalf of a 24-year-old drug offender trying to win freedom on parole from the Tennessee penitentiary.

Afterward, the State Board of Pardons and Paroles recommended the sentence of Larry Hilton of Kingsport, Tenn., be reduced from 11 years to five to 15 years, making him eligible for earlier parole.

THE PERFECT HOST

Sebastiani Zinfandel Wine, 5th

A beef chuck roast such as those that are featured this week would be in excellent company with a bottle of Sebastiani Zinfandel Wine. This is a dry red wine that is refreshingly light. It has a berry-like bouquet and a "bramble" flavor that may remind you of wild blackberries. Zinfandel is at its best when served at room temperature.

Try this fine wine at $2.29 a fifth.

THE UNDERLYING MATERIAL

Reinforcing rods snake across a pebbled bed, awaiting a flood of concrete. When poured, it will transform this into a driveway serving the drive-up teller windows of a new bank. This drive on the A Street side of the new office building on Courthouse Square in San Rafael rises gently to a curving stone wall surrounding the only tree to survive from the old courthouse days.

Officials Pondering Illegal Fill Found At Kappas Yacht Harbor

Illegal bay fill has been found at Kappas Yacht Harbor just north of Sausalito, but it may be too much of a pollution hazard to remove, the staff of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission reported today.

The fill was dumped on the site as part of the work to upgrade the harbor to conform with sanitary and building codes, a project sought for years by critics who term the present harbor a nautical slum.

Alan R. Pendleton, staff counsel for the commission (BCDC), told the Independent-Journal it still is unknown how much illegal fill has been placed on the site and what to do about it.

State and federal fish and game officials have been asked to advise the commission whether removing the fill would aggravate pollution in Richardson Bay, Pendleton said. A recommendation is expected within two weeks, he added.

There is no automatic penalty for illegal bay fill, Pendleton said. Marin County Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales could prosecute it as a misdemeanor, Pendleton said, adding "I doubt he would." Such prosecution generally is viewed by districts attorney as not worth pursuing, he said.

The staff's recommendation will go to the full commission on Nov. 7. The county public works department has halted further filling on the project pending the commission's decision on what to do about it.

The situation is complicated by the fact that the weight of the fill has pushed up a wave of bay mud parallel to the bicycle path that runs along the site.

Pendleton said the fill appears to be 20 to 30 feet wider than provided in the BCDC permit. It runs some 400 feet along the bay's edge, he said. Also at issue is fill put on a road into the harbor, fill that appears to be a foot higher than allowed by the permit.

Pendleton said an engineer on the project said the excess fill occurred because no engineer supervised the dumping of the fill.

Riles Nominated For U.S. Council

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — President Ford has nominated California schools chief Wilson Riles to a three-year term as a member of the National Council on Educational Research, Riles announced yesterday.

The nomination is subject to Senate confirmation. Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, already has served one year on the council.

FIRE CALLS

YESTERDAY:

Rigorous Coastal Policies Drafted

Tough policies to give the poor as well as the well-heeled access to the coast, and to restrict use of private land along the ocean, have been drafted by the staff of the North Central Coast Regional Commission.

The proposals also call for limiting growth to existing villages, establishing a continuous band of public land along the entire shoreline, and cutting the number of lots in existing subdivisions.

Forums to get public reaction to the policies will be held over the next two weeks. The sessions, all at 7:30 p.m., will be Tuesday at the First Unitarian Church in San Francisco, next Wednesday in the Santa Rosa Public Library, Oct. 17 at Granada School in Corte Madera and Oct. 21 at the Bolinas Community Public District office.

The set of 13 proposed policies on "intensity of development" are the eighth in a series of reports to guide drafting of a long range general plan for the future of the coast.

The proposals include policies that military bases and other lands controlled by public agencies along the coast be opened to the public. Such lands account for 15 per cent of the state's coastline, the report said.

Existing public parks such as Point Reyes National Seashore and Golden Gate National Recreation Area, it said, should develop day and overnight facilities "to provide for the greatest number of people to enjoy the coastal experience."

No development should be allowed at or near the coast that would block access, "unnecessarily" interfere with views "or generate excess demand for use of public beach resources."

It also would prohibit residential development "removed from employment centers." Development should be confined to established villages, with boundaries fixed to limit their expansion, the policies declare.

Such services as sewer and water systems and roads "should be provided or expanded only to the extent they will not conflict with limits on coastal development," it says.

Reducing the number of lots in existing subdivisions, it conceded, probably will mean their public purchase.

Existing housing serving moderate and low-income persons should not be demolished unless replacement housing is guaranteed, the policies state. New housing and visitor facilities "shall serve persons of low and moderate income," it says.

New developments also should be required to restore "coastal resources," it said.

Cautioning that public access to the coast needs protection, the report quoted Mark Twain's adage, "Buy land, they've stopped making it."

Women Suffer Discrimination, Study Says

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Women are systematically discriminated against in federal agencies, a survey by the San Francisco chapter of Federally Employed Women concluded today.

"Not only are the women discriminated against, but they are more frequently employed at lower grade levels, have fewer opportunities for training and promotion, and receive fewer awards for their performance than their male counterparts," said Maria Fort, who conducted the survey.

The 46 federal agencies, representing 25,000 employees, in the Bay Area were asked for data. She said, "The results were unequivocal, based on both the narrative and numerical response received."

Federally Employed Women is a group organized in Washington in 1968 to seek job equality for women. The group now has 54 chapters nationwide.

Oil Price Drop Seen Unlikely

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Oil prices are unlikely to drop very soon, according to the chairman of Standard Oil Company of California.

H.J. Haynes, Standard's top executive, said yesterday that for the "medium term" there "would seem to be a better prospect for reductions."

In the long range, he said, the price of oil will be determined by the cost of alternative sources of energy.

Speaking before the San Francisco Security Analysts Organization, Haynes said his company expects its profit pattern to "follow a favorable trend."

3 Marinites Nabbed For Hashish Oil

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Three San Anselmo residents have been arrested in San Anselmo by federal narcotics agents because of delivery of two crates from Katmandu, Nepal containing three pounds of potent hashish oil.

Arrested Monday at 222 Floribel Avenue by a team of federal and local officers were Barry Jay Bishop, 26, Joel Alan Rafofsky, 25, and Linda Jean Huber, 24, according to a federal spokesman.

Rafofsky, to whom the crates were mailed, is being held in lieu of $15,000 bail, Bishop in lieu of $10,000 bail and Miss Huber in lieu of $5,000, according to Robert J. DeFauw, special agent in charge of the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration in San Francisco.

The three were to appear before a federal magistrate today, he said.

DeFauw said the tar-like oil was hidden between laminated sections of two packing crates filled with statues and other artworks from Nepal. Federal authorities were alerted when a forklift punctured one of the creates and the hashish oil oozed out, he said.

He said the drug confiscated Monday has a street value of about $100,000.

Pan-Am Employees Seeking Equality

That was the message given to a Marin group of Pan-American Airlines employees and their families who met today at a Tamalpais Valley home to discuss their financially troubled airline and how they could help it.

The 30 who gathered were just one of many groups of Pan-Am employees around the world who are pressuring Congress to end what they think are practices which discriminate against Pan-Am in favor of foreign airlines coming into the United States.

John Bell, a Novato co-pilot, urged the group to wire Capitol Hill; to phone radio talk shows; to call relatives and friends; to pass out flyers in supermarkets.

Employees at the meeting still had their jobs, but the airline's pilots have just agreed to take a 10 per cent pay cut to help out, one pilot reported.

What the group wants is a government policy forcing United States government employees and contractors to fly on American owned airlines for trips overseas. They want the government to pay the same postal rates to United States flag airlines as it pays to foreign airlines, who now get higher rates.

They want the secretary of transportation to resolve what they call discriminatory practices by foreign governments such as charging high landing fees to American owned airlines landing at foreign airports. (Meanwhile, fees charged to foreign carriers landing here are comparatively nominal.)

They want the department of commerce to advertise to encourage American to fly on American-owned carriers.

"We don't want an outright grant," Bell told the group. "That doesn't solve any problems. We just want to plug the loopholes."

Why not give up and look for other jobs?

"It's a hell of a good company," said Bell, "or I wouldn't have stayed with them."

Sexy Picture Prompts Suit

NEW YORK (UPI) — Describing herself as a "well-known professional model of great reputation," Robin Nord of Manhattan today sued Cosmopolitan Magazine for $2 million, charging it wrongfully used her picture with a caption stating "I want sex."

The suit, filed in Manhattan Supreme Court, charged that the item was intended to charge that she was "an unchaste woman and was a woman of loose morals and character."

The suit said that the item appeared in the October 1974 issue as part of an announcement of the contents of the November edition.

ATTACKED IN BOSTON

Riot-equipped Boston policeman Roger Delminaco holds a rock in his injured hand after it smashed through the window of a police van following racial disturbances at English High School yesterday. At least 30 persons were injured yesterday in disorders stemming from a court-ordered school busing plan in Boston. Mayor Kevin H. White and black leaders have appealed for federal help to calm the violence that has marred school integration attempts.

Kissinger's New Tour Under Way

CAIRO (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived in Cairo today at the start of his seventh Middle East tour to seek a peaceful settlement of the Middle East conflicts and to seek lower oil prices in talks with Arab oil producing nations.

He stopped off in Madrid for an unannounced 45 minute meeting with Spanish Foreign Minister Pedro Cortina at heavily guarded Torrejon air base outside Madrid and discussed the current negotiations with Spain on a renewal of U.S. air base leases there.

Kissinger was seen off at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington by President Ford and some cabinet members in an unusual gesture that showed the importance Ford attaches to the Kissinger mission. Kissinger said, "This is the first time in a long time that one can go on these missions with an America that is at peace with itself."

A high-ranking American official traveling with the Kissinger party said progress is expected to be made during the Middle East trip but that no final Arab-Israeli settlement is expected to be reached during this tour.

The official said Kissinger may visit the Middle East capitals twice if necessary, but does not plan any extended shuttle diplomacy as in the past. Officials also said Kissinger definitely would visit Saudi Arabia during this tour but no schedule was announced.

Kissinger arrived in Cairo at 6:45 p.m. (9:45 a.m. PDT). He had been met in Madrid by Cortina and other Spanish officials for what the Spanish Foreign Ministry called "talks of mutual interest."

Van Camp Proposes Computer Check On Validity Of Voters

Brian Van Camp, Republican nominee for secretary of state, today proposed that Californians be permitted to ballot in elections only after their names are checked against a statewide computer list of registered voters.

Each person would be issued a special "voters card" bearing his social security number, and each polling place would be equipped with a device to validate the card through the statewide computer.

Van Camp said such a system is needed to eliminate voter fraud. He did not estimate its cost.

The former state corporations commissioner, who resigned to campaign full time, proposed the system to screen voters in a talk before a dozen leading businessmen at the Bank of Marin in San Rafael. The purpose of his appearance was to help raise $60,000 for television advertising to be broadcast in the closing weeks of the campaign.

As an example of voter fraud, Van Camp cited the City of Berkeley. It has 90,000 people eligible to vote, but 94,000 registered to vote, he said.

As California's chief elections officer, the secretary of state should "assure the health of the electoral system," Van Camp said. "We need to bring the state's full processes to bear to eliminate voter fraud," he said.

The incumbent, Democrat Edmund G. Brown Jr., his party's nominee for governor, has made the office "a political football and private political machine," Van Camp declared. Brown's administration of the office also has increased the delay to process vital business documents from two or three days to three or four weeks, he added.

Van Camp sharply criticized his Democratic opponent, Assemblyman March K. Fong of Oakland, for using her position in the Legislature to promote her campaign.

While he spent $9,000 in the primary election contest on air travel and $7,000 for telephones, she spent $98 on air travel and $700 for telephones, Van Camp said. The taxpayers paid the difference, he said.

She also has had a "phony" committee consultant, Michael Gagan, running her campaign at the taxpayers' expense, Van Camp said. Gagan left the state payroll only last week, he added.

Such information never reaches the voters, however, because it is kept secret by the Legislature, Van Camp objected. The Legislature's budget of $55 million for this fiscal year, he argued, "is an abuse of the public spending" and finances the reelection of incumbents so effectively that challengers are discouraged from running.

"We've got public financing of elections," he quipped, "the problem is you've got to belong to the club to get it."

An independent commission should be created to set legislative salaries, he proposed, commenting it's time "to get the fox out of the hen house."

Van Camp also said the primary election should be moved from June to September to cut the cost of campaigning and "save wear and tear on the voter."

Three Are Seeking Sausalito Seat

WAYNE BONNETT
'No home building'

EARL F. DUNPHY
'Some home building'

SERGE TRUBACH
'Nothing but homes'

By PAUL LIBERATORE

Three candidates with divergent views on development of the waterfront — Sausalito's last major undeveloped property — are competing for the crucial fifth seat on the city council in a special election Nov. 5.

Official candidates Wayne Bonnett, 33; a graphic designer, and Earl F. Dunphy, 69, a retired machinist and 18-year council veteran before being defeated for reelection in March, are considered front runners for the council vacancy created by the resignation of Leonard F. Rappa.

Artist Serge Trubach, 62, who failed to obtain enough valid signatures on his filing papers and whose name will not appear on the ballot, is conducting a write-in campaign.

The fifth seat is considered the swing vote on the council, which has lacked a majority on several key issues since Rappa stepped down in April after only five weeks in office.

Bonnett, making his first bid for the council, says the Schoonmaker project and other current commercial, residential and recreational proposals would cause "irreversible environmental effects" in the Marinship and central waterfront areas.

"The major flaw with the projects is not only in their density, which is obviously too high, but also in their uses," he says. Bonnett favors uses for the waterfront that will "stabilize the industrial base" of the city, such as light maritime industry, resident-serving commercial enterprises and business activities supporting commercial fishing and boating.

He is against residential development of the waterfront because private homes would discourage public use of the shoreline, appeal to upper income persons and exclude middle and low income families and eventually force out light industry, "especially one as fragile as commercial fishing."

Bonnett also opposes the expansion of tourism beyond the downtown business district. "Since tourism is here to stay," he says, "its costs in services beyond its revenue generation must be offset by permanent and productive nontourist business expansion in Marinship, our last available undeveloped area."

He was chairman of Sausalito Citizens for Open Space, San Francisco publicity chairman for People for Open Space, a director of Ecology Action Educational Institute and a member of the Central School bond issue committee. Bonnett and his wife, Linda, live at 532 Sausalito Boulevard.

Dunphy served on the council from 1936 to 1944 and from 1964 to March, when he was defeated for reelection by Rappa and Violeta Autumn, a former planning commissioner.

He considers current development proposals for the waterfront "much, much too extensive" and says they must be "hammered down" according to recommendations in a recent traffic study of Bridgeway and other waterfront streets.

Dunphy favors "preserving and encouraging boating and boat repair facilities and the fishing industry as natural uses of our wterfront," but believes some residential development is inevitable and that waterfront property has become "much too valuable for industry."

He opposes "any further encouragement of tourist attractions in Sausalito" and supports "preserving and encouraging as much of the waterfront for public use and access as possible."

A resident for 56 years, Dunphy served on the city planning commission from 1946 to 1956, as acting postmaster from 1949 to 1951 and on the Marin County Grand Jury in 1956.

He and his wife, Blanche, live at 33 Filbert Avenue.

Trubach, making his ninth consecutive bid for a council berth, says current development proposals for the waterfront are inflationary and would overburden police, fire and other municipal services.

As an alternative to mass development, he suggests that the waterfront be divided into lots and sold to individuals for private homes.

He also favors revamping the annual Sausalito Art Festival, which he describes as "a low-cost flea market" whose only object is to make money."

A resident for 21 years, Trubach is a former organizer of the Sauslaito Art Festival and a past member of the California State Fair Art Jury.

A widower, he lives at 631 Bridgeway.

Realignment Of Outfall Considered

Ross Valley Sanitary District directors have agreed to relocate a portion of the district's outfall sewer to allow realignment of East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard on a portion of district property if the City of Larkspur meets its conditions.

Conditions are that the sanitary district receive land of comparable value for any given up for the road, and that the project not interfere with sanitary district operations on the site.

Directors at their meeting Monday said they want Larkspur to come back with a proposal to meet these conditions, said Dist. Mgr. Ned J. Ongaro.

The Ross Valley Sanitary District Board of Directors Also:

SEWERS — Heard report from Dist. Eng. Warren E. Nute estimating cost at $500,000 for installation of sewers for the East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard development.

REPAIRS — Approved a $4,600 estimated cost to repair service lines in on Woodland Road, Kentfield.

STRIPES — Approved estimated expenditure of $500 to paint street stripes after sewer line work on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Ross.

PLAN CHANGES — Agreed to City of Larkspur request to keep city informed of sanitary district treatment plant changes within the city.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Oct. 21 at the district office, 103 East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

Lineage Law Is Overturned

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A law requiring newspapers to report how much political candidates spend on advertising was declared unconstitutional yesterday by District Court Judge Joe Pavlikowski.

He granted a permanent injunction against the Nevada secretary of state and attorney general, at the request of Cal Sunderland, publisher of the Humboldt Sun.

The judge said the law had a chilling effect on legislative political advertising, placed a prior restraint on publication of the ads, violated freedom of the press and discriminated against print journalism.

Mexican Music To Be Offered

The traditions and customs of the widely varying states of Mexico will be exhibited in music and dance by the Ballet Folklorico Mexicano in a performance Oct. 24 at 8 p.m. at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

Graciela Tapia, appointed by President Echeverria in 1972 as assistant consul for cultural affairs to the Mexican Consulate in Los Angeles, is choreographer and artistic director of the company.

She has programmed a series of dances that range from fiestas to pagan dances.

Highlighting the program will be the appearance of Jorge Tyller, the original modern interpreter of the "Deer Dance," perhaps the oldest of all Mexican dances. It was part of a prehunting rite of the Yaqui Indians who migrated to what now is the site of Sonora some 25,000 years before Christ.

Another solo performance will be that of Daniel Armas, master of the ancient Moorish instrument called the salterio. The Mariachi Ucatlan and singers Alberto de Velasco and Sara Mariano, will provide additional music for the company of 45 dancers.

Fallopian Tube Transplanted

FRANKFURT, West Germany (UPI) — A gynecologist says he has performed the world's first transplant of a frozen fallopian tube, overcoming the problem of rejection of foreign tissue.

Dr. Georg Sillo-Seidl said yesterday he performed the operation on a 31-year-old mother of three children who had been sterilized during her first marriage but wanted a child from her second husband.

Sillo-Seidl said the earlier sterilization operation had been so badly carried out that his only option was to transplant a fallopian tube or oviduct.

Dating No Game
Have you wondered how the dates you see printed on perishable and semi-perishable products help you as a consumer? Alpha Beta has an "open dating" system which means that the date printed on such items as dairy products, bakery goods, potato chips, and peanut butter is easily read. We don't play games and hide the pull date with a code. This information is there to help you in your shopping to be sure you are buying and using fresh food.
The date you see on Alpha Beta labels represents the last day of sale. By buying not later than this date you will have time to store and use the product at home at optimum freshness. This does not mean that the item will be unacceptable or that you shouldn't use it after that. If the product is handled and stored properly, you will be able to use it at its best.
Save your perishable food shopping for last when you're doing errands. Don't give refrigerated and frozen foods a chance to get warm. We want you to have all the freshness we guarantee with Alpha Beta products.

Paddler Larry Capune, who stopped off in Sausalito Sept. 12 on his way down the West Coast, was spotted yesterday much closer to his destination, splashing through Santa Monica. Capune, 32, launched his paddleboard Aug. 16 in Brookings, Ore., and is trying to reach San Diego because, "I'm trying to set a positive example that young people can do something different . . . within the laws and values of our country."

Bombings, Picketings Hit West Virginia

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — A dynamite blast ripped the doorway of one elementary school, another school was firebombed and roving pickets closed all but one Kanawha County coal mine today following a vow by ban-the-book protesters to "FIGHT UNTIL DEATH."

Federal agents said an explosion at the Wet Branch Elementary School in the Cabin Creek area was caused by a stick of dynamite tossed through the front door. The blast blew out the doorway and tore a gaping hole in the floor.

The firebombing occurred at the Midway Elementary School on Campbell Creek, across the Kanawha River from Cabin Creek, both located in the heart of the southern West Virginia soft coal fields.

Angry parents, demanding permanent removal of controversial textbooks from classrooms, manned picket lines at mines throughout the county. The parents have termed the textbooks "obscene, un-American and anti-Christian."

Miners refused to cross the picket lines and went home. Officials closed the mines and estimated that 2,100 miners were idled.

Quinn Morton, president of the Kanawha County Coal Operators Association, said only one mine in the county continued to operate. He said 30 carloads of pickets appeared at one mine and blocked the entrance.

Two agents from the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division, investigated the Wet Branch explosion and confirmed that dynamite had been used. It was first believed that blasting powder of a type used in coal mines had caused the explosion.

"It appears that someone kicked the panel out of a wooden front door and threw a stick of dynamite inside," one agent said.

The 100 pupils who normally attend the Wet Branch school were told to report to another school in the area. The 300 pupils at the Midway School reported for classes, however.

Although all the controversial textbooks have been removed from county schools for a 30-day period for a review by a citizens committee, protesters were not satisfied. They want the books banned permanently.

The Rev. Charles C. Quigley, one of the protest leaders, had vowed to "continue picketing even if they throw everyone into the county jail.

"These are parents who love their children and will fight until death, if necessary."

The violence flared during the third day of the renewed protest which began originally shortly after classes began last month for the fall term, and erupted anew Monday. At least 21 persons have been arrested since Monday for violating a ban on picketing.

During the height of the anti-book crusade last month, 10,000 miners walked off the job in sympathy with the protesters and schools were closed for 65,000 students in a three county

6 European Banks Aid U.S. Failure

NEW YORK (UPI) — Franklin National Bank was declared bankrupt by the government yesterday but six European banks stepped in to bail it out of receivership and promised to honor all deposits. It was the largest bank failure in U.S. history.

The new owners said the more than 100 branches of the bank in the New York area were to open for regular banking business today.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which placed the bank in receivership, said the money of the bank's 620,000 depositors, including 6,000 persons with more than the insured limit of $20,000, would be protected.

And, said Frank Wille, chairman of the FDIC, "all checks written on the Franklin ... will be honored. The clearance process goes forward as if there was no failure."

An officer for the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, which had loaned Franklin National $1.7 billion to keep its doors open through the summer, said it was the biggest U.S. bank ever to fail.

The biggest previous collapse was the failure last October of the $1.2 billion U.S. National Bank, a cornerstone in the financial empire of San Diego financier C. Arnholt Smith.

Wille told a news conference the failure of the nation's 20th largest bank was not a sign that other major banks would fall under the crunch of inflation.

"We do not expect this to be repeated in the American banking system," he said.

He said 1 per cent of the nation's 18,000 banks are on the FDIC's list of banks with some degree of financial trouble, but "at this time, there is no bank in this size category —$1 billion in assets or more —in this type situation."

Rather, he said, it was an indication of strength "that the American banking system can absorb a problem of this magnitude and open all offices without missing a beat."

Alfred Hayes, president of the New York Federal Reserve, blamed Franklin National's loss of $38 million in foreign exchange transactions and "large operating losses" for the bank failure.

"I think all you can do is describe them as bad management," Hayes said.

In a series of fast-moving steps, Franklin National, which had assets in excess of $3.5 billion before falling into deep financial trouble, was declared insolvent and put into receivership by the Treasury Department's comptroller of the currency.

The FDIC then put the bank up for sale to the highest bidder.

The six European banks, operating as European-American Bank and Trust, paid $1.7 billion for the bank's assets and liabilities, including $125 million as a "purchase premium."

Three New York banks — Manufacturers Hanover, Chemical Bank and First National City Bank —made lower bids for Franklin National.

Dixie Group To Meet Tuesdays

The Dixie School District Citizen Finance Advisory Group held its first meeting last night and decided to meet each Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the administration office.

The 40-member group is charged with studying district finances and the possibility of holding a tax rate election, according to Supt. Clifford W. Campbell.

He said the group will elect officers at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Zen Macrobiotic Diet Dangerous

(Fifth of 12 articles on dieting compiled by the Dairy Council of California from research by the California Dietetic Association.)

The Zen Macrobiotic Diet — designed to bring the dieter health and happiness — is so deficient in nutrients that the California Dietetic Association (CDA) warns that it can kill.

The CDA pamphlet "A Dozen Diets For Better Or For Worse" evaluates the macrobiotic diet, introduced by the late Japanese writer Georges Ohsawa. The pamphlet condemns it.

"It should be obvious," they say, "that a diet with multiple deficiencies (as found in the macrobiotic diet) would have no power to cure the diseases which Ohsawa proclaims."

"In fact," the dietitians continue, "these (types of) diets have caused life-threatening deficiencies."

The theory behind the diet is the eastern philosophy of Yin and Yang. According to Ohsawa, the dieter will find health and harmony of soul, mind and body if he chooses a balance of Yin and Yang foods.

A series of 10 diets is offered with Zen Macrobiotics. They range from the mildest, which allow portions from all of the four food groups, to the most extreme which allows only brown rice.

According to Ohsawa, the brown rice-only diet is the easiest, simplest and wisest.

Ohsawa discourages meat eating.

"If man eats animal foods his judgment will be low and simple because he depends for sustenance upon animals whose judgment is low and simple," according to the pamphlet explanation.

He also discourages drinking liquid because as he says, foods already contain enough liquid, and too much would upset the Yin-Yang balance.

The CDA discourages the diet.

Dietitians encourage a varied diet, choosing foods from all of the four food groups, for good health.

HOMEMADE SOUP — With a little planning, some basic guidelines and a bit of imagination, a cook can make one night's meal stretch well into the next two or three days, especially if that energy is spent making delicious homemade soup.

Homemade Soup Secrets Can Save Time, Money

By CAROLYN COPPOCK
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

The old-fashioned secrets of homemade soup can help you spend less time in the kitchen, less money on food, and yet give you delicious meals of good quality.

With a little planning you can cook enough on one night to enjoy for two or three days.

Here are some recipes that will introduce you to the basic rules for making soups, but don't be afraid to experiment.

Remember a few guidelines:

Fresh meat — simmer four hours.

Cooked meat (leftover) — simmer two hours.

Always salt water because it draws juices from meat. Salt again to taste just before serving.

Keep pots covered.

Use a bone whenever possible. Add two tablespoons vinegar to draw even more food and flavor from the bone.

To remove grease, scoop off filmed layer after chilling. If heated soup still shows grease on surface, skim with a paper towel.

Save all leftovers, even a drop or two of gravy. Put in a tightly covered bowl and save for "soup night."

Be careful with pork since it is sometimes too strongly flavored; lamb is often too greasy.

BEEF-MINESTRONE

Buy a three or four-pound chuck roast with bone. Cut in three-inch strip of meat with the bone and put aside for your soup. Prepare your roast as usual for the first night's meal.

While it's cooking, you can begin your soup.

Beef with bone
1 grated potato
5 tbsp. instant minced onion
1 can tomato paste
2 tbsp. chopped parsley
1 tsp. thyme
4 fresh tomatoes, quartered
2 tbsp. vinegar
2 ounces elbow macaroni
7 cups water
3 large chopped carrots
1 bunch chopped leeks
2 tbsp. celery flakes
1 bay leaf
1 tsp. oregano
1 tsp pepper
1 fresh chopped zucchini
½ cup soaked kidney beans

In large pot cover beef with seven cups water. Add seasonings, vinegar, tomato paste, fresh peeled tomatoes, and onions. Cover, bring to a boil, reduce heat, and simmer three hours.

Remove meat. Cut into bite-size pieces. Discard any fat and bone. Return meat to pot. Add vegetables and simmer 45 minutes longer. Cool, cover, and refrigerate. Next night bring to a boil, add macaroni and kidney beans. Reduce heat and simmer 30 minutes. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese before serving.

CHICKEN-VEGETABLE

Buy enough chicken (either roasting or stewing) for your favorite recipe, making sure you will have enough left over for at least two cups of chicken. After dinner remove all bones and cut up leftover meat for your soup.

Chicken meat and bones
1 grated potato
1 pound fresh peas
1 bay leaf
2 tbsp. vinegar
2 ounces noodles
¼ tsp. curry
2 quarts water
5 tbsp. instant minced onion
2 tbsp. celery flakes
½ tsp. paprika
2 tsp. salt
½ cup gravy (optional)

In large pot cover chicken meat and bones with water. Add onions, vinegar, seasonings, and any gravy you might have. Bring to boil, reduce heat, cover, and simmer two hours.

Remove bones and discard. Add vegetables and simmer 45 minutes. Cool, cover, and refrigerate. Next night skim off fat and bring to a boil. Reduce heat, add noodles, and simmer 20 minutes. Salt to taste before serving.

Chicken Divan Includes Blue Cheese Sauce

A creamy blue cheese sauce makes the difference in this Chicken Divan recipe.

Broccoli spears are covered with chicken or turkey slices, then smothered in a mixture of cheese, cream, onions and butter — a dish special enough for company.

CHICKEN DIVAN

2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen broccoli spears, cooked and drained
12 thick slices cooked chicken or turkey
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 small onion, chopped
¼ cup flour
2 cups (1 pint) half and half
⅓ cup firmly packed crumbled blue cheese
Salt and pepper
Paprika

In a saucepan, melt butter and saute onion until golden. Stir in flour. Gradually stir in half and half. Add cheese and stir over low heat until sauce bubbles and thickens and is smooth. Add salt and pepper to taste. Pour sauce over top of cassrole.

Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) for 30 to 35 minutes or until lightly browned and bubbly. Sprinkle with paprika. Serves six.

Young, Tender Carrots Best

Freshly harvested carrots are available the year round. Most of them are marketed when relatively young, tender, well-colored and mild-flavored. California and Texas market most carrots.

When purchasing carrots, the Department of Agriculture advises looking for well-formed, smooth, well-colored and firm carrots.

Avoid those with large green "sunburned" areas at the top (which must be trimmed) and roots which are flabby from wilting or show spots of soft decay.

Cheese Appetizers Offer Variety To Add Life To Small Gatherings

Fall is a time for home entertaining and these bite size cheese appetizers offer a most welcome variety of flavors and textures, for small holiday gatherings.

Individual quiche tarts are elegant with their colorful garnishes and pretty shapes. A Spanish flavor to entertaining comes in the shape of Nachos, crisp fried corn tortillas topped with cheese.

PARTY QUICHES

¾ cup butter
2¼ cups flour
1 tsp. salt
5 eggs
1 cup grated Monterey jack cheese
¼ cup grated Romano cheese
½ pint whipping cream
½ cup milk
¼ tsp. pepper
¼ tsp. marjoram
¼ tsp. oregano
2 tbsp. flour for filling

Combine butter, two and one-fourth cups flour and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Cut in butter finely. Mix in one egg to form dough. Divide into 36 equal portions and press each portion into small buttered (one-ounce) tart pan. Combine cheeses, four eggs, cream, milk, three-fourths teaspoon salt, pepper, marjoram, oregano and two tablespoons flour. Spoon into tart shells, dividing cheese equally. Bake in 350 degree oven about 35 minutes or until light golden. Carefully remove from pans. Serve warm with various garnishes on top. Makes three dozen.

Note: Sliced ripe or green olives, baby shrimp, crisp crumbled bacon may be added to the tarts after filling with the basic mixture. When baked garnish top with the same ingredient.

TOASTED CHEESE ROLLS

8 slices white bread
Butter
½ cup grated Monterey jack cheese
½ cup grated Provolone cheese
¼ cup mayonnaise
¼ tsp. thyme

Trim crusts from bread. Spread with butter. Mix cheeses, mayonnaise and thyme. Spread on buttered bread and carefully roll up. Place seam-side down in shallow baking pan. Melt one-fourth cup butter and spoon over rolls. Bake in 450 degree oven six minutes or until toasted. Cut each roll into two pieces. Serve hot. Makes 16 pieces.

NACHOS

Fry corn tortillas in one-half-inch hot oil in skillet until very crisp. Turn once in oil. Drain on paper towels. Sprinkle tortillas with grated Monterey jack or cheddar and Romano cheeses, about one-fourth cup total cheese on each tortilla. Place on shallow pan and run under broiler until hot and bubbly. Cut into eight wedges with sharp knife. Serve hot. Makes eight pieces per tortilla. Dip into hot chili sauce, if desired.

STUFFED CARAWAY CHEESE AND ROLL SLICES

1 (8-ounce) package cream cheese
2 cups grated Monterey jack cheese (½ pound)
3 tbsp. milk
⅓ cup diced pimiento
½ green pepper, diced
¼ cup finely chopped onion
2 tsp. caraway seeds, crushed in mortar
2 tsp. paprika
¼ tsp. pepper
6 long french rolls

Beat together all filling ingredients. Hollow out fresh rolls, using apple corer. Stuff cheese mixture inside, about ½ cup per roll. Wrap and chill. Slice off as desired. Makes four to five dozen slices.

Salads Can Be Used For Lunch Or Dinner

Salads are a pleasant change for lunch or dinner. Here are two that use in-season vegetables.

CASTROVILLE CRAB SALAD

4 large artichokes
2 quarts water
1 tablespoon salt
2 tbsp. vinegar
2 cups crab meat, fresh or frozen
1 cup chopped celery
2 hard-cooked eggs, diced
3 tbsp. chopped green onion
⅔ cup real mayonnaise
2 tsp. prepared mustard
Lettuce

Rinse artichokes, trim stems close to base and trim tips of leaves with kitchen shears. Heat water with salt and vinegar to boiling. Add artichokes and cook until tender, about 45 minutes. Drain and cool. Spread outer leaves slightly and pull out center cone of leaves. With sharp knife, cut off tender part of cone and chop finely. With a teaspoon, scrape out and discard the fuzzy "choke" from center. Dice crab and combine with celery, eggs, onion and chopped artichoke. Mix mayonnaise with mustard and blend lightly with crab mixture. Spoon into center of each artichoke. Set into bowls lined with lettuce to serve. Makes four servings.

CALIFORNIA SALAD, STROGANOFF

Lettuce
1 cup Brussels sprouts
1½ cups cauliflowerets
Marinade
1 can (1 lb.) sliced beets
Stroganoff Dressing

Core and rinse lettuce; drain thoroughly. Refrigerate in disposable plastic bag or plastic crisper. Cook Brussels sprouts and cauliflowerets in boiling salted water just until tender. Drain well and cut vegetables in halves. Toss gently with about ¼ cup Marinade; chill. Drain beets and toss with about 3 tablespoons Marinade; chill. When ready to serve, line individual chilled salad plates with leaves of lettuce. Shred remaining lettuce and divide among plates. Drain vegetables. Arrange beets and cauliflower in circle on each plate, with a ring of Brussels sprouts in center. Fill center with Stroganoff Dressing. Makes four servings.

Marinade: Combine ⅓ cup corn oil, 1½ tablespoons white wine vinegar, 1 tablespoon dry sherry, ½ teaspoon seasoned salt, ⅛ teaspoon each dry mustard and dill weed, and a generous dash pepper. Shake together well in small covered jar.

Stroganoff Dressing: Stir 1½ tablespoons Marinade and ¼ teaspoon seasoned salt into ½ cup dairy sour cream.

Green Is Found In Produce Department

By M.J. LAGIES
Copley News Service

Supermarkets put a higher markup on produce than on almost anything else they sell.

The figures vary slightly from chain to chain, but the average nationwide is known to be between 28 and 36 per cent.

In contrast, the markup on some staples such as sugar, flour and coffee is often only a few pennies. After expenses, the store may just break even on them.

Why pick on fruit and vegetables?

Most supermarket men look at it as a tradition more than anything else.

"I've been in the business for nearly 35 years and it's always been that way," says John Mabee, president of the Big Bear chain.

Mabee and his colleagues are quick to point out that if the chains were to lower their profit margin on produce, they would have to raise it somewhere else in the store.

They also like to quote a widely circulated profit figure for the retail food industry last year: 0.9 per cent for all the nation's stores combined.

This does, however, include the failures of hundreds of smaller stores which did not have the resources and merchandising know-how of the big ones.

Even the big ones can lose money. Arden-Mayfair dropped $5 million in 1973. So did the A & P chain.

Most of the larger chains reported net profits of between 1 and 2 per cent. Safeway made 1.3 per cent, Lucky Stores 1.4 per cent, Albertson 1 per cent and Southland Corp. (Seven-Eleven) 1.7 per cent.

These figures are based on sales, not on total net worth of the companies. They can be misleading since they do not reflect expansion.

For instance, if a chain clears $100 million after expenses and spends $95 million of that on new stores, then it reports its net profit at $5 million, not $100 million.

About 18 per cent of the supermarkets' profits, according to a survey conducted by one of the nation's largest growers, comes from produce.

Supermarket men readily admit that their markup on produce is relatively high, but say the drastic general price rises of the last few years reflect an increase in built-in costs, not a change in pricing policy.

They charge more because it costs them more, they say.

Costs are up all along the chain from the field to the cash register.

For example, it costs about $1.60 to grow 20 pounds of tomatoes.

By the time they reach the supermarket checkout, the cost has more than quadrupled, to about $6.90. Anything above that is profit for the store.

These figures may vary with the season, the market, the number of middlemen and a number of other factors.

But for illustration purposes, this is how the cost progression of a 20-pound lot of tomatoes may appear:

| | |
|---|---|
| Growing cost | $1.60 |
| Grower's profit | 1.00 |
| Harvest, truck to packer | .75 |
| Container | .65 |
| Packer | .50 |
| Truck to warehouse | .30 |
| Warehouse costs | .20 |
| Truck to store | .30 |
| Store's costs | 1.60 |
| Total | $6.90 |

Everyone's expenses are up.

The grower now pays $176 for a ton of fertilizer which cost him $80 last year.

Water is more expensive, too. In one Southern California

Lemon Pie Is Elegant, Light And Tasty—A Real Favorite

Pies run a close second to cakes as the country's favorite dessert.

And if a survey were taken, lemon would probably come out high in the flavor-favorite category.

The souffle pie is an elegant dessert — cool, light and good-looking. The graham cracker crust is special, too, because it is flavored with vanilla extract and ground walnut meats.

The Vanilla-Lemon Coconut Pie is unusual in that paper-thin slices of unpeeled lemons are used in the filling.

VANILLA-LEMON SOUFFLE PIE

5 eggs, separated
1 cup sugar, divided
2 tablespoons grated lemon peel
½ cup fresh lemon juice
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
½ cup water
1 tablespoon pure vanilla extract
1 cup heavy cream
nutted cracker crust

In a mixing bowl beat egg yolks until light and fluffy. Gradually beat in ½ cup of the sugar; beat until mixture falls from beaters in ribbons. Add lemon peel and juice and salt; blend well. Turn into a heavy saucepan; cook and stir over low heat until mixture thickens and coats a metal spoon. (Be careful not to overcook or mixture will curdle.) Sprinkle gelatin over water; let stand 5 minutes to soften. Blend into lemon mixture; stir until dissolved. Add vanilla extract. Cool, stirring occasionally. In a large mixing bowl beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in remaining ½ cup sugar; beat until stiff but not dry. Beat cream until stiff. Fold egg whites into lemon mixture. Then fold in whipped cream. Turn into prepared Nutted Cracker Crust. Refrigerate until set. Garnish with whipped cream if desired.

Nutted Cracker Crust: In a small mixing bowl combined 1¼ cups graham cracker crumbs, ⅓ cup ground walnuts and 5 tablespoons sugar. Stir in 5 tablespoons melted butter or margarine and 1 tablespoon pure vanilla extract; blend well. Pat crumb mixture over bottom and sides of a 9-inch pie plate. Bake in a preheated slow oven (300 degrees) 15 minutes. Cool shell before filling.

VANILLA-LEMON COCONUT PIE

2 large lemons, unpeeled
2 cups sugar
4 eggs
4 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
¾ cup flaked or shredded coconut

Pastry for 2 crust 9-inch pie.

With a sharp knife or electric knife slice lemons paper thin; remove pits. Place in a medium-size bowl. Add sugar; mix well. Let stand for 2 hours, blending occasionally. In a small mixing bowl beat eggs. Stir in vanilla extract and coconut. Add to lemon mixture; blend well. On a lightly floured board roll half the pastry ⅛-inch thick to fit bottom and sides of a 9-inch pie pan. Pour in lemon mixture. Roll remaining pastry. Place over filling; trim, flute edges and make slits for steam to escape. Bake in a preheated hot oven (400 degrees) for 12 minutes. Reduce oven temperature to moderate (350 degrees); bake until a knife inserted into center of pie comes out clean, about 30 to 35 minutes. Cool and serve.

PRODUCE

area, for example, water now costs $131 per acre foot, compared to $30 five years ago. The cost of leasing land has gone up about 50 per cent in the same span, from $100 per acre to $150 per acre.

Wages are up in all phases of the operation.

Truck drivers make up to $6.21 per hour straight time, retail clerks up to $5.18. On Sundays, it's time and a half. On holidays, triple time.

Farm labor is more expensive. The minimum wage is $2.25 per hour, but good workers earn much more on a piece basis.

It costs about $1.35 to pick and pack 24 pounds of nectarines, according to figures supplied by California state farm advisers, while it only costs 86 cents (up to $1.66 for early varieties) to grow them.

Much produce is packed in ice during shipping. That adds to freight rates. A 25-pound box of green onions (48 bunches) contains no more than 13 pounds of onions. The rest is ice and container.

With all these expenses to pay, supermarkets try to hold down their costs in two ways: buying as directly as possible, reducing the number of middlemen, and efficient distribution.

The chains try to buy most of their produce directly from the grower or from the shipper. The shipper, usually also a packer, puts together shipments from several growers and prepares them for trucking.

This produce is trucked directly from the side of the field, or from the shipper's dock, to the supermarket warehouses and from there to the various stores.

Approximately 75 per cent of all produce is bought in this manner.

SHE PULLED THE I.V.

Cancer Victim Defies Fate

By JOAN LISETOR

When Michele Thunes was a little girl her goal was to be rich, famous, beautiful and sing with the Metropolitan Opera. Today at 43 she is living each day to its fullest, and her goal is to reach her 45th birthday.

Mrs. Thunes has cancer.

In April of 1972 the San Anselmo woman felt a lump in her right breast.

"Eighteen months before my mother had had a mastectomy, so I always checked myself," she said. "I contacted my doctor immediately, and by the time I got to his office in the afternoon the lump was not there. The doctor examined me and found a lump in the left breast. He scheduled a biopsy, although he was sure it was benign."

The normal procedure is for a biopsy to be performed while the patient is still in surgery, and if a malignancy is discovered the mastectomy is performed immediatley, Mrs. Thunes explained.

"I wouldn't sign the consent form for the removal of the brest because, if it was going to be removed, I wanted to deal with it out of surgery," she said.

WHEN SHE awoke from the anesthetic after the biopsy she was told by a nurse that she was a "lucky girl." The nurse assumed if she came out of surgery intact, she did not have cancer.

She was feeling elated about her good luck that night, when the doctor sat on the edge of her hospital bed and said, "I have bad news. There is a malignancy."

"I argued with him saying, 'but the nurse told me it was benign,' " she said. "Then he tried to talk me into staying in the hospital and having the surgery immediatley. I wanted to get out for a few days. He let me."

She had the support of fellow members of Alanon, an organization of the families of alcoholics, and a "delightful, warm boyfriend."

In a few days she went peacefully back to Marin General Hospital for the surgery.

"When I went home from the hospital in five days I could put both arms above my head. The doctor had said I wouldn't be able to. I was back to a normal life in seven weeks. There was no big trauma. The nodes showed no signs of cancerous growth, and, in fact, the cyst the doctor had felt was benign. He told me he had discovered the malignancy, a tumor about half the size of a pea.

"It was discovered early. I was cured, so there were no other tests."

SHE HAD NO health problems for the next 18 months, when suddenly one day she collapsed.

"I was terribly thirsty and tired. I slept from 5 p.m. until 10 the next morning, then went straight to the doctor because I had a small fever. Cancer was the furthest thing from my mind," she said. "They did tests, a bone survey, liver scan, but I still wasn't thinking of

Marin Music Chest Elects Mrs. Palmer

Melba Palmer of San Rafael has been named new president of the Marin Music Chest, succeeding Florence Lesoine.

Mrs. Palmer has been a member of the board of directors and artistic council of the Music Chest for eight years and has been vice president for the past four.

She and her husband Peter annually have financed one of the scholarships awarded by the Music Chest to deserving young musicians.

Mrs. Palmer brings a wealth of musical experience to her role.

She is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y. She appeared as organ soloist with the Eastman Rochester Symphony Orchestra under Dr. Howard Hanson, conductor, and studied organ with Catharine Crozier, world renowned concert organist.

She is a member and past program and tea chairman of the Thursday Musical Club. She is a former vice president of the Marin Symphony Association, coordinator of its youth programs and chairman of the children's concert series.

She served for five years as a volunteer music therapist at Marindale School for orthopedically handicapped children and for one year with deaf children at the Gallinas Valley School.

An elder in the First Presbyterian Church of San Anselmo, she is active on the worship committee, is director of flute ensembles and member of the liturgical dance choir. She is a member of the San Francisco chapter of the American Guild of Organists, and is a member and past president of the San Francisco Alumnae Chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon, international music sorority.

A resident of San Rafael for 16 years, Mrs. Palmer is the mother of Melody, a sophomore at San Rafael High School who is a flutist in the school's symphonic band.

Her nomination as president of the Music Chest was presented to the annual board meeting Monday at the Marin Art and Garden Center and accepted unanimously. Other officers elected were Erma Thaning, first vice president; Georgia Jordan, second vice presidnet, Alam Tomlinson, third vice president, Parnel Finn, treasurer; Ida Scott, assistant treasurer, and Betty Nelson, secretary.

Meeme Rixford headed the nominating committee.

Mrs. Lesoine will continue on the executive committee of the Music Chest as concert manager.

History, Bond Issue Topics For AAUW

The open space bond issue and local Marin history are the subjects for the public meeting of the Novato Branch of the American Association of University Women to be held Monday, in the library of Sinaloa Junior High School in Novato. Coffee will be served at 7:30 p.m. with the meeting beginning at 8.

The open space committee will present a 20-minute slide program. Pro and con arguments on the bond issue which will appear on the November ballot will be discussed by Gail Wilhelm and Phil Coady.

Following the presentation, Pat Simpkins, an instructor of California history at Indian Valley Colleges, will speak on local Marin history and interesting happenings of the 49er Gold Rush and San Francisco Vigilante eras.

A Collage Depicts His Life

A collage representing his life was presented to Carlos R. Freitas of San Rafael this week in appreciation of his 40 years as an active supporter of the Marin Music Chest.

The collage is the creation of two Ross women, Florence Lesoine and Elizabeth Casson. Mrs. Lesoine is a member of the Marin Society of Artists and retiring president of the Music Chest. Mrs. Casson is president of the Sonoma Valley Art Center.

The collage, with paintings in oil and acrylic and numerous snapshots and reproduced photographs, includes pictures of his mother, Maria Betancourt Freitas, as a child and of his father Manuel T. Freitas, a painting of the original Freitas home and a reproduction of a 1903 painting of the Freitas Ranch where Terra Linda now stands. Also shown are a reproduction of the medal presented to Freitas by the Portuguese government, paintings of the colleges he attended (Catholic University of America and St. Mary's College) and an original program from the first Music Chest concert in 1934, starring Nelson Eddy.

Child Rearing: 'It's Just Not Possible'

By BETH ASHLEY

The business of child-rearing — one of America's most intense preoccupations — is "impossible, unnecessary and maybe even undesirable," an audience at College of Marin was told last night.

Dr. Richard Farson, president of Esalen Institute, opened a four-part lecture series on "S.O.S. — Stress In Our Society," co-sponsored by the College of Marin and the Marin Association for Mental Health.

The author of a book called "Birthrights — A Bill of Rights for Children," Farson said it is "a terrible disability, being a child," and predicted that the next big movement for freedom in our society will be "children's liberation."

He traced the place of children in history — from the days that they were totally ignored as a separate class to 1974 when we are "obsessed with children."

"Children are the No. 1 topic of conversation in America today. We as parents are so anxious, so worried, so attentive, we have so programmed and so standardized (our children's) lives that we have occupied their every waking moment with something that's 'good for them.' "

And there, Dr. Farson believes, lies the great fault with parenthood today. "How would you like to have someone doing what's 'good for you' all day long? People who think they know what's good for you are very dangerous people!"

There are more books and training programs on the subject of parenthood than any other, Farson stated, and "people are trying to 'do' parenting as never before in any other society. The implication here is that it's a 'doable' job.

"I'm here to tell you that parenting isn't possible."

Experts who write books on parenting "are writing about their own hangups," he said. "I've been in this business 20 years, I've written a book about it, I have five children of my own, but I don't know how to do it.

"We simply don't know how to grow people."

Moreover, "it doesn't matter all that much." Farson alleged that "there is not a shred of evidence to show that it makes any difference" whether you as a parent have been strict or permissive, with your child or away from him, are up with the latest theories or are totally ignorant of them.

"As a matter of fact, there is a theory that the thing that will mature a child fastest is calamity, adversity — the things you wouldn't wish on anyone. Studies . . . suggest that the child who grows up in the most nurturing situation is the child who will have the greatest trou-

She Was Cashing Her Check When Quake Hit

By MOLLY MARIN

Dolores Miller of San Rafael was cashing a travelers' check at the desk of her hotel Thursday at 9:21 a.m. The time is imprinted in her mind, because the hotel was in Lima, Peru, where at that moment an earthquake rocked the city and surrounding area.

Miss Miller was among a group of travel agents, touring Peru for six days as guests of an airline.

"At 9:20 I was in the hotel elevator, and at 9:22 I would have been outside where broken glass was falling," she said.

The terrible sensation that lasted less than two minutes felt like two hours, she said. Most of the rest of her group were in their rooms and being Californians ran for doorways. One man was in the bathtub, where a wave hit him in the face. Although the hotel split apart and windows popped out, no one was hurt.

After the initial shock, Miss Miller said, there was mass confusion everywhere as people tried to get home. Traffic was jammed, and she said she saw two cars hit head on, the drivers get out, pull them apart and go right on.

The group flew home that night as originally scheduled despite damage and a brief closing of the airport. With her she brought a mirror, a souvenir from Peru. Although the mirror cracked during the quake, she said, it looks like a mosaic, and no one will know . . .

DIANE HOWARD of Fairfax has been elected recording secretary of the Little Jim Club of Children's Hospital in San Francisco.

Provisional members of the club from Marin, who were announced recently, are Nan Cook of Belvedere, Muriel Eliot of Mill Valley and Roberta Walsh of Tiburon.

Apparently there's gold in them thar memories. Saturday night's cocktail party benefit, with the theme "The Way We Were," netted $4,400 for the pediatrics ward of Marin General Hospital, thanks to the efforts of the Jack and Jill Branch of the hospital volunteers.

Chairman of the event was Patty Griffith of San Anselmo. It was held in the showroom of Campbell Bishop Chevrolet in Corte Madera and featured tunes and decorations from the 40s and 50s.

DEBORAH JENKS of Belvedere, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd Jenks, has pledged Kappa Alpha Theth sorority at the University of Colorado in Boulder, where she is a freshman. Deborah is a graduate of Marin Academy in San Rafael.

CLYDIE CONNOLLY of Mill Valley will serve as boutique chairman of the 1974 Mansion M'art to be held Nov. 3 from noon to 5 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Cleek in Burlingame.

Grandmothers Only Grown-Ups Who Have Time, Verse Says

DEAR HELEN:

Could you please reprint the description of Grandmothers that appeared back in 1968? — HOPEFUL

DEAR HOPEFUL:

A grandmother is a lady who has no children of her own, so she likes other people's little girls and boys. Grandmas don't have to do anything except be there. They're old, so they shouldn't play hard or run. Sometimes they are fat, but not too fat to tie kids' shoes.

They wear glasses and funny underwear. They can take their teeth and gums off.

It is better if they don't typewrite or play cards except with us. They don't have to be smart, only answer questions like why dogs hate cats and how come God isn't married.

They don't talk baby talk like visitors do, because it is hard to understand. When they read to us, they don't skip or mind if it is the same story again.

Everybody should try to have one, especially if you don't have televisions, because grandmas are the only grownups who have got time! — AUTHOR UNKNOWN

DEAR HELEN:

I work in a restaurant. Last night I kicked a little baby. No I'm not sadistic. The baby had been put on the floor next to the mother's chair while she ate. Luckily the child wasn't hurt.

This is becoming quite a problem, what with the popularity of those little plastic baby-holders. But they don't protect infants from being stepped on by people in a hurry, especially if they're carrying a load of dishes. Think how terrible it would be if silverware — a sharp knife or fork fell on the baby!

Hope you'll print this as a warning. — CONCERNED WAITRESS

DEAR HELEN:

My sister was divorced several years ago and has since remarried. My husband and I have remained on friendly terms with her ex-husband who will be re-marrying soon.

We have been invited to the wedding. I'd like to go, but my sister feels we shouldn't. Will it be — NO GO?

DEAR NO GO:

No!! — Go!! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

From time to time, stutters and stammers are mentioned in HHU. Maybe this advice from the speech department of St. Mary's Hospital, London, might help?

Have one person read aloud from a book or magazine. The stammerer is to repeat after the reader the words he hears. He has to concentrate on the spoken message since he cannot see the printed words. Speech experts call this echo-like repetition "shadowing."

Most stammerers have little difficulty in shadowing the spoken words, and their fluency increases with practice.

It's been reported that cases of stuttering or stammering improve remarkably after two to four weeks of shadow practice. And the nice thing is that the treatment costs nothing but the time involved. — MRS. E.S.

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

CHILDREN

ble."

"Parenting is too important a relationship to know how to do it," he said. "Like a romance: if you knew how to do it, it isn't a romance."

To free children from the rigors of being "reared," Farson proposed a bill of rights for children:

1. The right to self-determination. ("There should be an end to the double standard between adults and children — the same rules should apply to everyone. Children should be allowed to make their own choices about eating, sleeping, choosing their associates and life goals.")

2. Right to an alternative home environment. (He described a child living in a world furnished for adults: "they go through life looking at gum on the under side of tables."

3. Right to a responsive environment. (Urban sprawl has deprived children of access to the total environment: "They can't get to anything because they have to cross a dangerous highway to do so.")

4. Right to information. ("Schools and libraries systematically deny them the information they would most like to have.")

5. Right to self-education. Farson called for alternatives to "incarceration in the classroom."

6. Right to freedom from personal punishment.

7. Right to sexual freedom. ("Children are sexual from birth." "Children should have all the information there is.")

8. Right to economic power. The right to work.

9. Right to political power.

10. Right to justice ("One hundred thousand children are in jail right now for crimes that wouldn't be crimes if adults had committed them.")

The issues surrounding children's liberation are social ones, not personal ones, Farson said. "They are not within our control. I'm sure we are all going to continue to do our damndest to be responsible parents, but I'm sure we overdo it. The best advice I have is lay off.

"We must stop trying to 'fix' people. People are pretty good the way they are."

Cancer Victim Defies Fate; Looks Forward To Birthday

cancer. They thought for awhile I had mononucleosis, and when that proved negative my doctor sent me to a hemotologist, who was also a chemotherapist. That was the first mention of cancer."

On her 15th visit to the hemotologist he said to her, "That's the little devil that's causing the trouble." When she questioned him he said, "You have cancer of the liver."

"The doctor told me about a procedure that had a 90 per cent sure rate. He scheduled it. Well, he scheduled it three times, and each time it was canceled. I knew the cancer had spread, and I felt very insecure with three doctors who were so unsure of treatment," she said.

In her frustration she sought out another doctor, Dr. Ernest Rosenbaum. He began chemotherapy shots the first time she saw him in December of last year. In February she began receiving cobalt treatment on her spine, where another tumor had developed. Although she had had a hysterectomy she was sterilized through the use of radiation as part of the treatment. Two weeks after the sterilization she was back in the hospital with what she called labor-like pains.

"They killed the pain, and then my stomach swelled up like I was pregnant. I was stuck with tubes, I.V.s, everything," she said.

"My ex-husband had been staying with my children (Derek, 16, Scott, 14, and Stacy, 13.) My daughter called and told me they had been left alone for five days and had nothing to eat or wear, and I decided I was going home. I did what I had always wanted to do — defied authority. I pulled the I.V. out and went home."

SHE WENT back to her job as secretary for the music department at College of Marin, but could only work about two hours a day.

"When I stood up for more than five minutes my legs felt like they had tourniquets around them, and I got to the point of thinking, 'If this is living' I don't want to live anymore," she said.

In addition to her health problems she had problems with her children. They were not very supportive at that time, she said, and seemed to take the attitude, "Why has this happened to me?" Money also became a problem, although her doctor bills are covered by insurance. Food cost more because she was forced to use short cuts and convenience foods. Help was offered by the Department of Public Social Services, but "I had been on welfare and didn't want to get back in that trap," she said.

"My doctor got mad at me because I was 'schlepping' around. Then I got mad at myself. I stopped felling sorry for myself. Although there will forever be that part of me that says, 'Why did this have to happen to me?' I know if I don't look or feel sick, I'm not sick. It doesn't prey on my mind. I live one day at a time. You know, it took me 41 years to grow up, and now my reward is I'm going to die at 45 or less, but I remember what Dr. Thomas Dooley said, 'I have places to go, promises to keep before I sleep.' "

Her condition at the moment is stable, she said, and she leads a normal life, except that she tires easily. In December she will begin treatment that will cause her short, curly hair to fall out. She has already lost her eyelashes and her eyebrows have thinned.

"I'd RATHER be a live baldy than a corpse with a full head of hair," she said. "Lincoln said, 'A man is about as happy as he makes up his mind to be.' I've made an intellectual, not an emotional decision, to be happy. I am in control of my emotional state. I spent the first 41 years of my life reacting, now I'm acting. The illness has given me the right to speak out."

When you are blind or crippled it is obvious, she said, but when you are walking around with cancer people don't know.

"Half of me says I don't want to be pampered, but the other half says what about the days when I can't feel good enough to stand in the line at the supermarket. That half says we should have stickers so we can get ahead in line or park closer as the handicapped, but maybe that would be bad," she said.

Her efforts have gone into an organization, Friends of Cancer Immunology of Northern California. Its members support reserach in the hopes it will develop new diagnostic and therapeutic measures to fight cancer. She is angered when she hears federal funds for research have been cut back, she said.

"I feel like I'm on borrowed time. Without chemotherapy I would be dead. I'm not old, but it doesn't matter who cancer happens to or when. It's never the right time or the right person," she said.

Family Service Agency Opens Novato Office

A branch office of the Family Service Agency of Marin was opened earlier this month at 1510 Grant Avenue, Novato.

The office was opened to make agency services more convenient to North Marin residents, according to Wendy Buchen, president of the agency's board of trustees.

The office will be used for family and marriage counseling as well as parent discussion groups and other meetings yet to be scheduled.

The Family Service Agency is a private, non-profit agency supported by the United Bay Area Crusade, fees from clients and from private donations. Client fees are based on a sliding scale determined by ability to pay.

The agency services an average of 350 Marin families a month, with 75 in the Novato area. Main office of the agency is at 1005 A Street, San Rafael.

Marinwood Couple Fete 50 Years Of Marriage

A Marinwood couple who met in grammar school and romanced in their twenties celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Sept. 30.

Camillo Pitto and Albina Salvarezza were both born in San Francisco in the neighborhood between North Beach and the Marina. They attended Hancock Grammar School together; she went on to Girls' High School and he to Lowell. Although they had known each other all this time and shared the same friends, it wasn't until she had gone to work as a saleswoman at the old O'Connor Moffat department store and he to work in a bank that they began to "go together."

They were married in SS. Peter and Paul Church Sept. 30, 1924.

Old friends from their years in San Francisco (they stayed in the old neighborhood until they moved to Marin five years ago) joined them to celebrate the anniversary at a party organized by their two children Veryl (Mrs. Frank) Drews and Kenneth Pitto, both of Terra Linda. The surprise gathering was held at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

In the intervening years Pitto had worked in real estate and then for 35 years as a ship's chandler. He retired in 1963. He has given up earlier hobbies — fishing and woodworking — for work in his garden.

Mrs. Pitto keeps busy caring for their home, attending tea parties and luncheons and visiting with old friends from the city. According to her husband, she is a "great" cook, with Italian dishes her specialty.

They also spend a great deal of time with their children and their six grandchildren, who range in age from 23 to 6.

Their future plans include a trip to Hawaii. Going with them will be Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bacigalupi, old friends from San Francisco in whose wedding the Pittos served as bridesmaid and usher. It will be for both couples a second honeymoon trip in celebration of two golden wedding anniversaries.

Thelma Lauer Will Head Xo Alpha Xi

Thelma Lauer of San Rafael, who has been a member of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority for 25 years, has been elected pesident of Xi Alpha Xi chapter.

She previously served as vice president, secretary and program chairman.

The sorority will celebrate its 25th birthday Saturday at a party with all Marin chapters. Other coming events will be a progressive dinner, Halloween, Christmas and St. Patrick's Day parties and participation in a founders' day.

Mrs. Lauer is a native of Ogden, Utah. She has lived in Marin for 20 years. Her husband, Warren W. Lauer, is in the insurance business, and she is employed as a secretary for National Canners Association in Berkeley. She is also a member of Sunny Hills Terra Linda Guild Four. She was chairman of the Sunny Hills Grape Festival in 1968. Her hobbies are gardening, painting, sewing and swimming.

Gifted Children Unit Is Planning Picnic

Marin Association for Gifted Children will have a family picnic Sunday from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at San Domenico School for Girls in San Anselmo.

Activities will include tennis, swimming and volleyball.

Miss Sweatt Tells Plans To Be Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Sweatt of San Mateo announce the engagement of their daughter, Virginia Ruth Sweatt of San Mateo, to Guy Albert Franzi of Greenbrae.

Virginia is the sister of Jeff and Gregg Sweatt of San Mateo and the granddaughter of Aida Olivi of San Francisco. She was graduated from Aragon High School in San Mateo and is in her senior year at California State University, Sacramento.

Franzi is the sone of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Franzi of Greenbrae and the brother of Jolene Marie Franzi, also of Greenbrae. His grandmother is Lena Franzi of San Rafael. The future bridegroom is a graduate of Redwood High School. He attended College of Marin. He is employed as the assistant manager of Petrinis in San Bruna.

Jeffrey Leucht, Deborah Black Wed

Deborah Black and Jeffrey Leucht, both of San Rafael, were married Sept. 21 at St. Francis Episcopal Church in San Francisco. A reception followed at the church.

The bride is the daughter of Dale Sabo of San Anselmo and Peter Black of Missouri, and the bridegroom's parents are Shirlee Van Druff of Novato and Eugene Leucht of Hawaii.

Sandee Rescino of San Francisco was matron of honor, and the bridegroom's brother, Gary Leucht of Novato, was best man. Donald Links of Mill Valley ushered.

Following a weding trip to Los Angeles the newlyweds are living in San Rafael. The bride is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School and attends College of Marin. Her brothers are Randy and Chris Black of San Anselmo, and she is the granddaughter of Joan Greenlee of San Francisco.

The bridegroom was also graduated from Drake High School and attends College of Marin. Nancy Leucht of Novato is his sister.

Red Cross Seeks More Volunteers

The Marin County Chapter, American National Red Cross, has sent out a call for volunteers to address envelopes for its annual membership campaign.

Chairman Emanuel Franzel said volunteers can help by typing or addressing by hand, at the chapter house (712 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael) or in their own homes. Envelopes can be picked up at the chapter house or delivered to volunteers who are without transportation, he said.

PARENT AND CHILD

Personal Integration Plan: Do-It-Yourself

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Parents: This column is directed at your children. Won't you draw their attention to it, and if too young to read it to themselves, please read it to them.

If you live in a suburb, or in a special section of a large city, or way out in the country, then chances are you don't know many kids who are different from you.

For example, if you live in certain sections of Boston, you only know Italian kids and don't go to school with black or Oriental children. If you live in a Swedish section of Chicago, you also may not know any blacks, Orientals, Spanish-speaking people or Italians.

Or if you live in Clayton, Mo., you may go to school only with other predominantly white Anglo-Saxon Protestant children.

If you live in Harlem, you may not know any Swedish, Italian or Oriental kids.

And so it goes throughout most of the United States. Although this nation is made up of people from every possible national background, there are few times when they actually get to know each other well enough to be good friends.

IF, OF COURSE, your school is a real mix of all kinds of kids of every race, creed and color (as is the high school in Berkeley), then all you have to do to have a variety of friends is to be friendly to the kids you know.

But what can you do if your parents have chosen to live in what's called a homogeneous neighborhood; that is, in a place where people of the same race, creed, or color predominate? You can join the Young Men's Christian Association or Young Women's Christian Association if you're near or in a city. Join the branch of the Y which has the most diverse membership.

You can look for opportunities to participate in citywide activities. For example, is there a citywide marching band? If so, then it should have all races and creeds represented.

You could get your mom interested in joining some such group as the League of Women Voters, which would be made up of people of all types and then ask that whole families get together.

If you are black and you live in a city, you might try to locate a white boy or girl your same age who lives in a suburb or way out in the country. Then one summer you could exchange places. You, the black, go live with a white family. If the family gardens during the summer or keeps chickens, then you could do the chores of the fellow who is taking your place.

And your counterpart could come into the city and live with your folks, finding out how to get odd jobs in the city and learning how to get around on public transportation.

You might want ot overlap for a week at each end so that you not only learn how the other fellow lives, but also you two can learn to be pals as well.

AS YOU GET older, what about spending part if not all of your school day in a school with a greater mix of students? You might have to go live with an aunt or in-law, but you could continue your schooling while learning how to be friends with every kind of kid.

If your parents are active in church affairs, perhaps you could get them to arrange for children from a wide metropolitan area to get together not only for social activities, but also for church-related meetings. In this way, you and your parents can learn to make friends with people who may be of a different race or color, but who are of the same creed.

Ten Marin Leaders Tour PG&E Plants

Ten Marin County public officials and business leaders are guests of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. this week on a three-day tour of hydroelectric plants and other utility facilities.

The tour, which started today, concentrated on power facilities in the Jackson area in Amador County, especially the hydro plant on Tiger Creek near there.

Marin County government officials on the tour, according to PG&E, are supervisors Gary T. Giacomini, Peter R. Arrigoni, and former supervisor Louis H. (Bud) Baar; public works director Ray W. Foreaker; county counsel Douglas J. Maloney, and Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales.

San Rafael city officials attending are councilman John A. Miskimen and city atty. Fred C. Robbins.

According to PG&E public relations vice-president Robert R. Gros, the utility sponsors and pays for approximately 40 such public information tours each year.

"It would be ideal to take every one of our customers on a tour, to tell them the company story — demonstrate just what's behind turning on a light switch," he said. "But since we obviously can't do that, we're trying to acquaint community leaders with our facilities."

Arrigoni, Baar, Foreaker, Maloney and Robbins went on another tour to the Tiger Creek site in 1972.

Senate Bans Military Aid To Turkey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate today approved legislation banning military aid to Turkey and sent it to the White House, directly challenging President Ford's threat to veto the bill.

The legislation provides that Turkey cannot receive any military assistance from the United States until Ford informs Congress that "substantial progress" has been made toward a Cyprus settlement with Greece.

The House approved identical language Monday, 291-69, and the White House said yesterdaythe President would veto it.

A veto by Ford could threaten the planned congressional recess, scheduled to begin Friday, unless the Senate and House can muster two-thirds majorities to override the rejection.

Planners Request Council Promotion

The Larkspur Planning Commission last night requested the city council promote an interest in water reclamation for the two major proposed projects in the city.

Commissioners suggested in a letter that the city council meet with the Ross Valley Sanitary District and Marin Municipal Water District to discuss water reclamation possibilities for the proposed San Quentin Point and Bon Air shopping center projects, according to Stephen Solomon, associate city planner.

House Passes First Committee System Changes In 26 Years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first change in the House committee system in 26 years will leave the current 21 standing committees as they are, but the reforms passed late yesterday would change some of their functions and procedures.

The 203-165 roll call vote ending a week and a half of bitter floor debate approved a more moderate reform measure than the one proposed by a select committee that worked on the issue for a year and a half.

The bill, which affects only House committees and does not need Senate or presidential approval, takes effect with the new 94th Congress convening in January.

In addition to some minor changes in committee jurisdiction, the measure would for the first time guarantee the minority political party a third of a committee's funds for hiring its own staff, eliminate proxy voting and require early organization of each incoming new Congress.

The original bill would have abolished the Post Office-Civil Service Committee and the House Internal Security Committee.

It would have divided the Education and Labor Committee into separate panels, restricted membership on only one of 15 major committees and seven minor ones and sharply reduced the jurisdiction of the key Ways and Means Committee.

Before passage, the House added a provision giving itself expanded jurisdiction over government spy agencies such as the Central Intelligence Agency.

PET FOOD COTTAGE

FEATHERED FRIENDS FIND FOOD

It might appear from this rapidly forming chow line that these pigeons can read. But the fact is they learned where to go by experience. It was just the usual lineup yesterday at the back door of the pet food shop at 324 San Anselmo Avenue in San Anselmo, where handouts were expected momentarily.

Administrator Given Job Of Making Up Agendas

The county administrator will take over responsibility for preparing planning commission agendas, it was unanimously decided yesterday by the Marin County Board of Supervisors. (Other Marin supervisors stories, page 1)

The board's action, with Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. absent, removes the responsibility from Planning Director Werner von Gundell, who has been privately criticized in recent months by several commissioners for incomplete preparation of matters coming before the commission.

The shift was proposed by supervisors Arrigoni and Gary T. Giacomini. It directs all county departments to "provide the administrator with the necessary staff and information on a timely basis so that he may successfully discharge the duties we are assigning . . ."

Giacomini told his colleagues yesterday that adoption of the county general plan created a need for greater coordination among various departments on items coming before the commission.

He said planning has gone beyond traditional land use planning and now involves a wider range of concerns such as housing and employment.

County Administrator John F. Barrows will be able to command more involvement from various departments than has occurred in the past, he added.

The aim is to provide the planning commission with the same "cohesive presentations" from departments that are provided the board of supervisors, Giacomini continued.

Currently, he said, some departments either are not asked for information on planning matters or don't bother responding.

Von Gundell said he supported the proposal, but wanted clarification on several points.

The planning director sought, and won, assurances that the county administrator's new responsibilities would not include overseeing the day-to-day operations of the planning department or its work program.

"It's a good idea and I think we should do it," von Gundell told the board, after being assured Barrows' responsibilities would be limited to insuring agenda materials are complete and ready for hearing.

One member of the audience requested the matter be delayed for study of its implications. "I want time to see what's going on," she said.

Giacomini responded that his proposal calls for a review sometime in the future of the administrator's handling of commission agendas.

Chairman Michael Wornum, in voting for the proposal, said at first he was "alarmed that this was a way of cutting down on the authority of the planning department . . . but it may create more technical efficiency. As you know, I don't want to see the planning department eroded."

LIBERATED ECOLOGY

League Focuses On Lobbying

By REBECCA LARSEN
(Second of two articles)

In its early years, the Marin Conservation League pioneered in preserving open space by purchasing it, but in the last decade, it has become more of a political lobby for preserving the county's amenities through such legislation as rezoning.

It takes stands on government proposals, development projects and ballot propositions. It has groups of citizen watchdogs keeping an eye on building proposals and changes in laws throughout the county. It tries to coordinate efforts of pressure groups and government agencies in various environmental concerns.

The league still does put up some money for land, of course. For example, last year, it donated $14,000, matched by equal funds from the Audubon Canyon Ranch, to buy a 32-acre marsh on Tomales Bay. The property then was dedicated to a league founder, Caroline S. Livermore. (She and the three other founders will be honored at a picnic and ceremonies Saturday on Angel Island.)

ROBERT F. RAAB
Weighs gains

But according to league president Robert F. Raab of San Anselmo, the mass land buys engineered by the league in the 1940s and 1950s probably belong to the past.

"At one time it was possible to acquire land by just raising money and asking the supervisors for matching funds," he says. "But now land is so expensive, and the things we want to buy are too extensive. We want to preserve whole ridges in urban areas — like the North Ridge. That means you're talking about millions of dollars."

Mary Summers, a former league president, notes that another reason for the group's change in tactics was that the public's mood changed from indifference towards the environment to deep concern for saving green space.

"The whole citizenry of the county has awakened now; the board of supervisors now recognizes a need. We have a parks department and bond money. The county and cities are now doing the kind of land buying that the league was doing in the forties and fifties."

Instead of focusing on one project at a time as the league founders did, notes league director Emma Gilman of Larkspur, the organization now is involved in dozens of projects at once.

"You have to have people informed about planning commission actions on zoning; on what the supervisors are doing on the county general plan. So many problems in the county are interrelated with environmental concerns now that you can't ignore them either — like questions of transportation and housing. Things are a lot more complex these days."

The league is divided now into separate units in Northern, Southern and West Marin. Members from each section try to watch over their area and come up with stands that the entire league can follow. "It's impossible for everyone to follow the whole county at once," says Mrs. Gilman.

With so many areas to follow, the league always needs new members — for their volunteer labor as well as their dues, says Raab. There are about 1,500 members now, and the league is conducting a membership drive this fall.

In the last 10 years, Raab thinks, the league's major accomplishments were: Working on a county logging ordinance and a county tidal waterways ordinance protecting areas not sheltered by the Bay Conservation and Development Commission and playing a major role in the establishment of Point Reyes National Seashore and the Golden Gate National Recreation area. Several league members have been appointed to a citizens advisory committee to help the federal government with planning for the recreation area.

The league also has supported the county general plan and worked for saving agriculture in the county. It has advocated saving marshlands in east Corte Madera from development as a shopping center. It has opposed the building of the warm springs dam in Sonoma county on the grounds it would encourage unchecked growth in Sonoma and Marin. It has tried to coordinate efforts to save North Ridge, the open hilltops between Mill Valley, Larkspur and Corte Madera.

In all these areas, the league plays a part, says Raab, but it is part of a broad movement now of governmental and private organizations.

For the future, he foresees that the league will continue to support land use planning in the county and state. "We want to keep our greenbelts and ridgetops open between communities. We want to preserve agriculture and keep our ocean shoreline undeveloped."

Although the environmental movement has caught on around the country, Raab believes Marin County will continue to play a pioneering role.

"Marin has always been in the state of being the place where the action starts in environmental affairs. We've learned a lot here that's useful to others, and in a lot of ways we're still far ahead. We always find that out when we visit Southern California, and they start asking us what's going on up here."

Chief Kelly Quashes Report On Quiz Of Youth In Slaying

A confidential report on the propriety of San Rafael police in questioning a 12-year-old Terra Linda youth in connection with the slaying of Lucy Ann Gilbride will remain secret for now.

San Rafael Police Chief Lawrence R. Kelly said yesterday he hopes to meet soon with Jeannette Pomeroy, mother of Daniel Pomeroy, in hopes "the matter can be resolved."

"The matter" is Mrs. Pomeroy's claim, aired last month before the Marin County Human Rights Commission that her son's rights were violated when questioned by inspectors Bart W. Stinson and Raymond Maynard.

She charged that her son was taken from his home under false pretenses and held for more than five hours without being allowed to telephone her.

Pending his meeting with Mrs. Pomeroy, Kelly said, a report on an in-house investigation into the questioning session will not be released.

The chief refused to say if the report exonerates the officers, but other sources said it clears them of any wrongdoing.

Kelly, when first approached by the Independent-Journal about the report, said it was up to the Marin district attorney's office to release it. (The human rights commission had asked the district attorney and the Marin Grand Jury to look into Mrs. Pomeroy's allegations.)

But after he was told the district attorney has said his office will have nothing to do with the case unless someone wants to file criminal charges against the officers, the chief backed off, saying he won't release the report until meeting with Mrs. Pomeroy, and perhaps not then either.

Mrs. Gilbride, 52-year-old wife of Robert Gilbride, vice principal of Terra Linda High School, was found clubbed and stabbed to death in the family home Aug. 27.

Hearing Set Nov. 12 On New Service Area South Of Novato

A hearing on creation of a new county service area to purchase open space in the South Novato area was set yesterday for Nov. 12 by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

The proposed taxing agency, proposed by supervisors Arnold M. Baptiste and Michael Wornum, would cover about 4,700 acres from Indian Valley south to the Big Rock Ridge and east to include the Marin Golf and Country Club area.

Baptiste hopes to put the measure before area voters next spring along with a tax rate proposal of 35 cents per $100 assessed valuation to finance a $400,000 bond and maintain the open space.

About 1,300 acres around the Indian Valley Colleges campus is being considered for acquisition. Area residents want the country open space district and City of Novato to aid in the purchase if the city's $3 million open space bond issue is successful next month.

Baptiste disagreed with an objection that it was unfair to include in the tax-levying service district large tracts of land in effect already in open space because of agricultural contracts and zoning that limits the number of dwellings from one per 10 acres to one per 60 acres.

To demonstrate his contention of fairness, he gave as an example the efect on the 1,600-acre Hill Ranch. Under current zoning and the agricultural contracts, which prevent development until 1981, the tax rate (based on this year's figures) would be $28, he said. That would increase to about $350 as the contract nears its 1981 expiration date.

"I don't think we're being unfair," he said. The $28 figure is about what the owner of a $40,000 home will pay, he added.

The Marin County Board Of Supervisors Also:

APPOINTMENT — Appointed Barbara Violich, a member of the 1973 grand jury, to the Marin County Airport Land Use Commission.

ROAD — Upheld the appeal of dairy rancher Anthony Silveira that he be allowed to keep a "haul road" built across his ranch north of Novato as part of the Novato Bypass Project. The road was used for hauling rock. The public works department had recommended removal of the road because it lies in the Petaluma Creek flood plain.

PROP 15 — Voted unanimously to endorse Proposition 15 on the Nov. 5 ballot. The measure would remove a constitutional requirement that voters must approve construction of new public housing in their communities.

BUOYS — Authorized the state to install seven mooring buoys off shore from McNear's Beach Park and agreed to pay $140 per year for their maintenance and $210 every five years for repairs and replacement of metal. The county's marine activities committee endorsed the proposal.

MENTAL HEALTH — Were told Dr. James R. Kennedy, a Mill Valley psychiatrist, has been named to the long-vacant position of chief of the crisis unit at the mental health center.

PAY — Amended the salary structure for the assessment appeals board. Members will continue to receive $150 per day for a seven-hour day but $21.43 per hour for a less than seven-hour work day. The commission meets usually once a week during the fall and winter.

One Approved Other Denied

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night approved a permit for an ice cream parlor on Fourth Street, but denied a permit for an auto garage down the block.

The commission issued a permit as requested by owner Philipp Bundschu for an ice cream shop at 1700 Fourth Street. Denied was Sig Herzog's bid for an auto towing and garage facility at 1550 Fourth Street.

The commission also endorsed revisions in the city general plan made by the city council, a spokesman said.

Thief Steals Persian Rugs

A Tamalpais Valley dealer in Persian rugs reported to sheriff's deputies today that $27,750 in carpets was taken last night from his store at 256 Shoreline Highway.

According to deputies, a burglar alarm sounded at the store at Tamalpais Junction at 4:55 a.m., and officers responded. They found an open door but no signs of forced entry and could not decide if anything was missing. Deputies said that the building was checked only moments before the alarm.

When owner Taghi Rezaian went to the store this morning, he said he found 10 rugs missing.

Von Hayek, Myrdal Win Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Austrian Friedrich von Hayek and Swede Gunnar Myrdal today were awarded the 1974 Nobel Prize for economics for pioneering work in the theory of money and their successful contributions to central economic theory, the Royal Academy of Sciences announced.

In Oslo, Former Prime Minister Eisaku Sato of Japan and former Irish Foreign Minister Sean McBride shared this year's Nobel Peace prize last night for their contributions "to peace in our times."

According to the Swedish Academy of Sciences both von Hayek and Myrdal carried out "important interdisciplinary research so successfully that their combined contribution should be awarded the Prize for Economic Science."

The specific citation said the award and $123,000 was given to the two men "for their work in the theory of money and economic fluctuations and for their penetrating analysis of the interdependence of economic, social and institutional phenomena."

Reached in Salzburg, Austria, von Hayek said "the prize is a big honor for me and the coronation for my 50 years of work in the scientific field. I did not expect this in any way. I was taken completely by surprise."

The academy said both of this year's economics winners have the ability to find new and original ways of posing questions, "put forward new ideas on causes and politics, a characteristic that often makes them somewhat controversial."

"This is only natural when the field of research is extended to include factors and linkages which economists usually take for granted or neglect," the academy said.

Von Hayek, 75, of Salzburg, Austria, currently lectures at the Rikkyo University in Tokyo. Myrdal, 75, of Stockholm, is currently working at the City University of New York Graduate School.

In a surprise announcement yesterday, the Norwegian Parliament committee presented Sato and McBride with the 1974 Nobel Peace Prize. "Each in his own way contributed to peace," said the committee announcement. "Their efforts were instrumental in contributing to peace in our times."

FIRST TRICK

Declarer won the first trick in dummy with the queen of clubs. He counted six other fast tricks and saw that two additional tricks were needed. All of this was in the best tradition.

South saw that spades was the longest and strangest suit. Without giving the matter any further thought, declarer got to his hand with a heart and led the jack to spades for a finesse.

East was happy to take the queen of spades and return a club. West was just as happy to take four club tricks. Down one.

POOR BIDDING

"Poor bidding," North complained at the end of the hand. "At spades we can't possibly lose more than one spade, one diamond and one club."

"I had a book response of two no-trump," South pointed out. "The books must be wrong."

And there the matter was dropped.

Perhaps the bidding was wrong at that, but try leading dummy's nine of diamonds for a finesse at the second trick. West can win the first or second diamond trick, but he cannot hurt declarer because he is on the wrong side of the king of clubs.

To put it another way, diamonds is the suit that avoids danger. No matter what West returns, South makes the contract with two spades, three hearts, three diamonds and one club.

DRAMA REVIEW

Rhetoric Reigns At Zellerbach

By BLAKE A. SAMSON

"DON JUAN IN HELL," a play in two parts, actually Act III of the four-act "Man and Superman" by George Bernard Shaw, directed by John Houseman; production stage manager, Larry Pool; stage manager, Dean Norton; wardrobe, Christopher Sork. The cast: Don Juan, Ricardo Montalban; the Devil, Edward Mulhare; Commander, Kurt Kasznar; Dona Ana, Myrna Loy.

Although George Bernard Shaw is generally thought to be a devotee of Wagner due to his treatise "The Perfect Wagnerite," his preference was in fact for Mozart. Inspired by Mozart's "Don Giovanni," Shaw set Don Juan, the Commander and Dona Ana into a philosophic debate and dream sequence which he called "Don Juan in Hell."

This debate with the Devil, actually the third act of Shaw's play "Man and Superman" is often excerpted and was presented by itself yesterday at Zellerbach Auditorium on the University of California's Berkeley campus with a cast of well-known Broadway actors.

Ricardo Montalban as Don Juan and Edward Mulhare as the Devil were the strongest members of the cast and were satisfactorily supported by Kurt Kasznar as the Commander and Myrna Loy as his daughter, Dona Ana. John Houseman, winner of an Academy Award as the law professor in the movie "Paper Chase," directed.

Houseman in that movie so clearly presented the complexities of legal philosophy that I wished at times last night that he would replace one or two of his own cast in "Don Juan in Hell." Perhaps then some of the convoluted, long-winded and dogmatic pitfalls of Shaw's difficult rhetoric might have been avoided.

An interpretative reading rather than a theatrical presentation, "Don Juan in Hell" has much to offer those seeking an evening of probing wit and commentary, rather than mere entertainment. The experience was sufficient to send most of the audience out into the night agitatedly continuing the debate.

Next to Mulhare's understated acting and British articulation, Montalban seemed at first to overgesticulate, but he was fighting an uphill battle. Although Don Juan is given the longer monologues, Shaw has made Mulhare's role as the Devil the more appealing of the two. This is essentially Shaw debating with himself and, like playing bridge with oneself, Shaw has failed to play each hand evenly. Thus Montalban usually finds himself finessed by the Devil.

At first, the debate centers around a basic premise of the Devil's! Given the Hell on Earth and the dullness of Heaven, it is "heaven" to be in Hell. This twist gives Shaw the opportunity to pun continuously and to satirize man, morality and earthly life with cutting insight: All the wickedness on earth is done in the name of good, the most conscious of all animals, man, is the most blundering; progress is but sleight of hand, change passing for progress.

After the intermission, the subject turns to woman's role in society with a predictable intensity of debate and a few catcalls from the audience. There are some digs at Gounod, Dante, Milton and Rembrandt as well as continuous jabs at organized religion. In one speech Shaw puts the fathers of the church in the same class as fleas, yet nothing approaches the vitriol reserved for English society.

When Shaw feels he is getting too philosophical, he has the Commander throw in a line or two or comic relief and then the Socratic dialogue continues. Thus Kasznar's sheep-doggy delivery doesn't overly interfere, and Miss Loy can pass with the singular intonation (set rather high and strident) which she uses for most of her lines.

On top of the already dry humor from Shaw, the tendency by Mulhare, Kasznar and Miss Loy to deadpan their delivery and responses is a bit like calling straight gin in a dry martini, but for an evening of extra dry gin over Shaw's philosophic ice, "Don Juan in Hell" is reservedly recommended. It will be repeated tonight and every night at 8 o'clock through Sunday at Zellerbach Auditorium.

'Streetcar' Is Planned At Sonoma

The Tennessee Williams play, "A Streetcar Named Desire," is scheduled for 11 performances in Room 76 of Ives Hall of music at Sonoma State College.

Noon performances are planned for Oct. 28 and Nov. 1.

Performances beginning at 8 p.m. will take place on Oct. 18, 19, 23, 24, 25, 26 and 31, and on Nov. 1 and 2.

The student production, directed by Kent Weishaus who last spring directed the campus production of "Happy Birthday, Wanda June," depicts the tale of a genteel Southern woman who comes to New Orleans to stay with her sister Stella and Stella's somewhat crude husband, Stanley.

Blanche, the gentlewoman, is portrayed by Kathleen Wolfe of Rohnert Park. Stella is played by Corisa Hickman of Cotati and Gene Watkins of Santa Rosa will portray Stanley.

Admission will be $1 for students and $2 for all others.

ROCK REVIEW

Clover Plays Unevenly; Alice Leaves 'Em Yelling For More

By GEORGE NEVIN

SAN FRANCISCO — Alice Stuart and Clover must have had some sort of agreement last night.

Otherwise, how to explain the one-two musical wallop the two Marin-based rock bands delivered to an appreciative audience at San Francisco's Winterland?

First, Clover, an accomplished but spotty group, softened them up with a solid, though slightly overlong, set.

Then, with about 1,000 dancing, whistling fans worked up to the proper controlled frenzy, Miss Stuart came on and delivered the knockout punch — a 50-minute, no-holds-barred set that had them screaming for more.

It was a satisfying performance for both bands, especially for Miss Stuart, and it demonstrated once again what just about everybody who follows the Bay Area rock scene has been saying — Alice is trembling on the brink of a big, nationwide splash.

The concert was one of the first of a new series of events at Bill Graham's aging hockey rink turned rock palace. The Tuesday night concerts will spotlight local talent at a price ($2 in advance) that's refreshingly affordable. It's a welcome trend away from the high-powered and overpriced concerts that have become the norm in the rock field these days.

The night began with a set from Steamin' Freeman, featuring the lyrics of Freeman Lockwood, and ended with a special guest group, the Atlanta Rhythm Section from the Deep South.

In between, though, it as an all-Marin extravaganza.

Clover, which continues to show steady, if unspectacular, progress, delivered a solid, crowd-pleasing but uneven set.

Typically for the group, it started slow, with a few nondescript tunes competently but unimaginatively played.

But soon, things picked up behind the old Clover standby, "Wine and Cigarettes — I've Had Enough," a bittersweet ode to a hangover. The song was carried by lead guitarist John McPhee and by Alex Call, the rhythm guitarist.

Then the band swung into "Santa Fe," which gave McPhee a chance to show off his considerable pedal steel talents. The song must have touched just about every nostalgic nerve in the house with its sad strains.

From maudlin, the mood went to boogie, then the set hit its apex with a rousing yodel performance by Call, who did yeoman duty all night long on vocals. Unfortunately, a few anticlimatic tunes took the edge off the swaying crowd's enthusiasm.

Clover's big failing is its lack of consistency. If the group is to draw more national attention, its highs are going to have to outweigh its lows.

With only a short break, Alice Stuart and her band came on stage and instantly proved that it was she the crowd had come to hear.

Dancing around in a skimpy knit top, heavily fringed, and silver, sequined pants, Alice turned in a professional and workmanlike guitar performance that left no doubt she is that rarity — a woman guitarist who fronts an all-male band with authority.

Soon after the start of her set, Miss Stuart squandered her best song, Hank Snow's "Golden Rocket," the gem of "Believing," her second album.

In an unusual arrangement that had bassist Karl Sevareid singing harmony, Alice failed to cash in on the quality that makes "Golden Rocket" really work on the record — her pure, guileless voice.

Still, it left the appreciative crowd stamping.

Through a bluesy, sensual "Where Can My Baby Be?", the set progressed to the Dylanesque "Rock and Roll Queen" and a soft ballad, "You Win Again." The latter featured a raw, searing solo by Jon Detherage on keyboards that probed the edges of the blues.

Miss Stuart concluded with a lightening series of solid rock offerings that left the frantic crowd begging — vainly — for more.

MUSIC, ART AND DRAMA

ACT Opens With 'King Richard'

The American Conservatory Theater will stage the official opening of the 1974-75 season with a performance of Shakespeare's "King Richard III" Saturday at 8:30 p.m. at the Geary Theater in San Francisco.

The play is one of nine to be offered this season. The others are "Pillars of the Community," by Henrik Ibsen; "Horatio," by Ron Whyte, directed by College of Marin's James C. Dunn; "Jumpers," by Tom Stoppard; "Cyrano de Bergerac," by Edmond Rostand; "Taming of the Shrew," by Shakespeare; "Street Scene," by Elmer Rice; "The Ruling Class," by Peter Barnes, and "The Threepenny Opera," by Bertolt Brecht and Kurt Weill.

"King Richard III" is directed by William Ball and stars ACT newcomer Randall Duk Kim in the title role and Elizabeth Cole as Queen Elizabeth.

"Pillars of the Community," translated and directed by Allen Fletcher, opens officially Monday and also will play Tuesday, both at 8:30 p.m.

A reduced-rate preview performance of "Richard" will be given tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. Previews of "Pillars" will be held tonight, tomorrow night, Saturday afternoon and Sunday night, all at 8:30 p.m. except for the 2:30 p.m. Matinee Saturday.

The San Francisco Opera has announced a cast change in Rossini's "La Cenerentola," which opens at the Opera House next Wednesday at 8 p.m. Nassrin Azarmi, soprano, takes the role of Clorinda from Shigemi Matsumoto, whose close relative is ill.

The opera this week performs Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde" at 7 p.m. Friday and 7 p.m. Tuesday, Strauss' "Salome" at 8 p.m. Saturday and Puccini's "Madama Butterfly" at 2 p.m. Sunday.

NBC Announces A Cancellation

NEW YORK (AP) — The NBC television network said yesterday it is cancelling "Sierra," one of nine new NBC series, after the show's 11th program is broadcast in December. No replacement has been decided on yet, the network said.

"Sierra," an hour-long adventure series about U.S. Forest Rangers in the Sierra Nevadas, is broadcast Thursday evenings. It first appeared on NBC Sept. 12.

Low ratings were blamed by NBC for its cancellation, the first announced by any of the three networks during the 1974-75 season.

Let State Know We Need That Bus Lane

Independent-Journal
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY
26 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1974 EDITORIAL PAGE

Three years ago, the California Legislature passed a bill authorizing the state Division of Highways to include lanes for mass transit in future highway land acquisitions and widening projects.

Division of Highways people, however, were wedded to the idea that roads are just for automobiles and trucks. The notion of having roadways designed for the maximum movement of people was foreign to them. They "never heard of such a thing."

Redesignating the Division of Highways as the Department of Transportation apparently has made no difference in the thinking of its policy makers. To them, roads are not for moving people; they are just for moving cars.

WHEN WIDENING of Highway 101 from Richardson Bay Bridge to the Greenbrae interchange was begun, Golden Gate Bridge District officials asked the state highway designers to provide a lane for buses.

According to Dale W. Luehring, the bridge district's general manager, the bridge officials thought they had a commitment to do so from Division 4 of the Department of Transportation.

They found out otherwise.

TOMORROW at 8 p.m. in San Rafael City Hall, the Department of Transportation will hold a public hearing on whether to set aside an exclusive bus lane on the stretch.

Doing so will speed the buses on their San Francisco-Marin runs. It will enable bus commuters to sleep a little later, to get home a littler sooner.

It will still give more room for automobiles than they now have, so those who must commute by car — or who insist on doing so because they don't like public transportation — may also be able to sleep a little later, get home a little sooner.

It will, of course, make more difference for the bus riders.

And it will make more efficient use of the land taken for the roadway, because at least as many people can be moved on one exclusive bus lane as on three auto lanes.

THERE CAN BE no end to traffic congestion without provisions to make mass transit more rapid and dependable.

The cheapest, simplest way to do this is to set aside exclusive lanes for the buses.

If we hope to bring some orderliness, some comfort, some reason to the nightmare of commuting, it is time we quit pretending that the one-passenger to five-passenger car has the sole right to the highways.

If we want to get that message across to the State Department of Transportation's bureaucrats, we'd better be on hand tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the San Rafael City Hall.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY: Letters To The I-J

Simple Way To Increase Sewage Plant Capacity

In my experience I have had some interest in water pollution and sewage plants. I would like to suggest that Las Gallinas Sanitary District and the others that I read about in your estimable paper investigate the use of oxygen instead of air in their secondary (i.e., activated sludge) treaters. Air contains only 20 per cent oxygen so that the substitution of 100 per cent oxygen can increase concentration in the aqueous phase up to five times as much.

I have read of cases where the use of oxygen increased the plant's capacity 50 per cent or more and reduced effluent pollution 50 per cent or more. The conversion to oxygen is simple, quick, and cheap. Running expenses are very reasonable.

If tertiary treatment is still required, I would suggest the use of ozone to purify the effluent. Ozone is successfully used in France (even in Paris) to produce drinking water (eau nouveaux). Chlorination of sewage plant effluent can produce long-lasting poisonous chlorinated residues such as pentachlorophenol (an excellent wood preservative because of its long-lasting, highly poisonous nature).

Spending $20 Million To Save $3.4 Million

The deputy director of the Department of Consumer Affairs said that Governor Reagan must take the blame for any failure of that state agency to protect California consumers because their request for more money was refused.

The budget is now $20 million for the CDA, whose director, Patricia Gayman, stated that its activities saved California consumers "more than $3.4 million during the last fiscal year."

Spending $20 million to save $3.4 million, while largely typical of government operations, is still such that the governor's action should be congratulated and the department abolished.

The thought of the future without a Reagan to veto the irresponsible spending ideas from the likes of the Morettis, Moscones et al is downright frightening.

Think what our taxes would be had he not vetoed the hundreds of wild-eyed, costly bills that the politicians are so good at dreaming up. Unfortunately, they apparently spend no time on what is of vital necessity — economizing.

Budget Discloses Excessive Overhead

Referring to your editorial "Futile Committees, Costly Consultants" the following:

We do not and should not spend another penny on consultants. We the citizens should do some studying ourselves and begin to ask our supervisors some questions, questions which they should have asked the administrator.

According to the 1973-74 final budget, there are 251 employees in the Department of Social Services. Their yearly salaries are $3,154,000. They distribute $8,154,000 in welfare money. Without benefit of the data processing machine, one can easily figure out that it costs the taxpayer $1,050 to distribute $2,700.

What can we do about this?

Council Should Stick To City's Business

At the Sept. 24 meeting of the San Anselmo City Council, one of the more important items on the agenda was the proposal by our mayor to "decriminalize" the use of drugs and to have our council — but not necessarily our citizens — notify the state legislature of our concurrence. It is not my intent to go into the merits of this proposal but I should like to quote Mr. Colteaux, as reported in the I-J of Sept. 25: "This council has no political jurisdiction to vote one way or another on this thing (drug laws). I'm concerned that we're using this forum as a debating society for general questions that aren't related to what we do on the council. We have to get on with the very boring job of running San Anselmo." I don't often find myself in agreement with Mr. Colteaux — possibly because hardly anyone in the council chamber can hear what he says — but this is one of the exceptions.

Granting Mr. Colteaux' premise to be that people are elected to the various levels of government to hold jurisdiction in specified fields, then the citizens of San Anselmo, who are also citizens of the county, the state and the Federal government, who agree with Mr. Blinder's thinking (as I do, up to a point) may make their feelings known to those having jurisdiction — in this case the state legislators — instead of spinning our wheels in futile council discussion and public seminars. The San Anselmo Council would be well advised to leave the drug laws to those who can do something about them.

There are other areas in which the council is involved where they have no business to be and my main point in writing this letter is to ask: What the hell is the city council doing in the garbage business? What gives these gentlemen the expertise to run a business in which they have no experience? Why should they run a garbage company any more than a saloon or an antique shop or a restaurant or a stable, for example? Regulation is one thing but giving a monopoly (without competitive bidding) or authorizing rates (without audited figures) or imposing a recycling obligation (with which 75 per cent of the users disagree) — these are something else . . .

Doubter Convinced Of Tax Hike Need

My first reaction to Measure J on the November ballot — the school revenue limit tax measure, was "Oh, my God, no! Not more taxes! This school district is rich enough!" Well, I've attended meetings on the subject, read the report of the interim committee, and talked with a few members of that committee, who had initially felt similar to the way I did. The result of this investigation is that I found there was a great deal about school financing and operation that I didn't know. And, I find, lamentably, that I must absolutely agree with the school board and the Interim committee that the passage of Measure J is absolutely essential to the Mill Valley School District, and this not even to maintain the status quo. . .

How did we get into this mess? Three factors are involved. First, the passage of Senage Bill 90. . . The bill froze the amount allowed our district at $1,234 per child per year. This might have been all right except for the other two factors.

The second factor is lowered enrollment; the district has 145 fewer children this year than last, which means a loss of close to $179,000. We have fewer teachers too, but the amount cut in salaries does not equalize out, and many costs remain constant regardless of the number of children.

The third factor is one we are all too well acquainted with: inflation. SB 90 allows only a 2 per cent increase for inflation in an economy which is operating at somewhere around 12 per cent inflationary increase. . .

We are all having to rearrange our financial priorities, but education of the next generation must always come high on that list. . . Even though we may not agree with some of what is going on in the schools, cutting off funds is certainly not the way to improve the quality of education. . . .

Water Moratorium Producer Of Lawsuits

One of the greatest pieces of misinformation to hit voters lately was the comment made by an aspiring candidate for Marin Municipal Water Board when he stated, "No one in his right mind would think of rescinding the water moratorium." Also that there was a water shortage.

If this was correct, why was the moratorium ruled illegal? Why was it proven in superior court that there was no water shortage or likely to be one? It is doubtful that any court wishing to uphold and project constitutional privilege will sustain an appeal of this ruling.

What he should have stated is the fact that there are a great many lawsuits running into the millions against the district and the rather ridiculous moratorium.

Bon Air Road Project Draws Reader's Fire

For many months, Bon Air Road has been a disaster scene because of road reconstruction. We now have two more years of road hassle. Marin General Hospital District board members and the county board of supervisors are honoring an old agreement that is no longer applicable to the situation. The poor (and getting poorer) taxpayer is spending almost half a million dollars so that persons walking from their cars to Marin General need not step across a two-lane road.

There are things we need more — like a Marin General Hospital District board of directors that feels a sense of responsibility when dealing with public funds.

When Did Referendum Right Become Outmoded?

This is re: Martin Mackey's letter of Oct. 4 in which he urges us to replace Article 34 of the state Constitution, which requires that the people must approve tax-supported low-rent housing. He claims that Article 34 discriminates against the poor, is obsolete, costs money, and complains that no other type of housing is subject to referendum.

Article 34 allows even the poor a chance to vote against any further increase in the crushing tax loads that have hurt the poor more than anyone. And since when have free elections and the right of referendum become "outmoded," "old," or "obsolete"? Or for that matter, not worth spending some money on? As for no other type of housing being subject to voter approval, no other types of housing are built with voters' tax money.

Taxpayers! Keep hold of your purse strings. Vote no on Prop. 15.

Those Masochistic Democrats Show Signs Of Common Sense

WASHINGTON — The psychiatric history of the Democratic Party lately has shown such a consistent pattern of masochism and attempted suicide that any signs of its rational behavior must be examined skeptically. The diagnostician is tempted to make too much of brief flashes of common sense.

That semi-disclaimer is necessary before discussing the scattered recent showings of goodwill among Democrats who seemed blood enemies a few months ago. What unifies them is their mutual interest in winning elections, from congressional district up to White House. There is just a glimmer of a possibility that among them, if not all their supporters, 1974 and 1976 are starting to be more important than 1968 and 1972.

SEN. HENRY JACKSON, D-Wash., among the front-runners for the next presidential nomination, is working very hard in this direction in the absence of competition from Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

Up till Kennedy's withdrawal, Jackson had been openly chasing the nomination and trying to soothe old sores largely because he needed to if he were to have a realistic chance. Perceived as a hawk and the major "conservative" applicant, he had a lot of anti-war liberals to assuage. Now, with Kennedy out, he is stepping up his effort because support previously holding back, waiting for Kennedy's entry, suddenly seems available.

Long before the Kennedy announcement of last month, Jackson went out to Skokie, Ill., to campaign for Abner Mikva. Mikva, who was unseated two years ago, is running to return to Congress.

Jackson's visit was significant because Mikva had consistently taken an anti-military position in the House, thus regularly opposing Jackson's stand.

But the Illinois trip was a minor prelude to the senator's stops in New York and Massachusetts since Kennedy withdrew.

AT LAWRENCE, L.I., Jackson spoke at a campaign breakfast for Allard Lowenstein, who also is attempting to return to the capitol after serving one term in 1969-71. Lowenstein, of course, is the man who organized the first anti-war dump-Lyndon Johnson efforts within the party.

After Jackson's appearance, Lowenstein told local reporters he had not made up his mind on whom he would support for the presidential nomination, but that if Jackson were picked by the convention, he would back him. That sounds cool until you consider its source.

Then Jackson outdid even his Lowenstein endorsement by planning to link up last week end with Rep. Robert Drinan, the super-dovish Jesuit priest who represents the Fourth District of Massachusetts.

He had planned to make several stops in New Hampshire, then swing back through New York to appear with Hugh Carey, the Democratic nominee for governor there. That part of his week end was postponed, but at the last minute he was scheduled into a Drinan reception at Waltham instead.

Jackson's aides say his visits were solicited by Mikva and Lowenstein, and that "mutual friends" engineered the appearance at the Drinan reception. Whatever the details, each of those events proves that both the senator and the congressional candidates were thinking ahead, rather than letting bitter memories of the past two presidential election years continue to divide them.

JACKSON IS NOT the only ambitious senator in this conciliatory effort. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas is basing his presidential (or vice presidential) hopes on it. Walter Mondale of Minnesota, labeled the "liberal" candidate, is trying to consolidate his backing in that direction first, but even he is scheduled to speak soon in Mississippi to the AFL-CIO in Jackson. All of the widely greeted dark horses from the South are in favor of a broad national party rather than an exclusive ideological club.

Enough of this adult attitude and the Democrats may find themselves united to defeat Mr. Ford in the future rather than obsessed to refight the Vietnamese war of the past.

Time Has Come For Americans To Face Problems Of Today

WASHINGTON — The capacity of the United States to govern itself is dangerously weakened by continuing preoccupation with Watergate. It is time to put it behind us and get on with governing the country at a time of great peril.

The Watergate scandal, the impeachment proceedings, the resignation and pardon of Richard Nixon have too long immobilized the presidency, stalemated the Congress, and divided the nation.

It can't safely be allowed to continue! We should end recrimination, wrench our gaze from the past and fasten it unwaveringly on the present.

The need to do so is now, not a week or a month from now.

THE ISSUES, which are being neglected are desperately urgent — and getting more urgent every day!

The whole world is in as perilous a plight as it was before the Great Depression in the late '20s and in the months before World War II.

How perilous? What really is at stake today? Nothing less than the survival of democratic government in the United States, the stability of all the western nations, and the threat of a worldwide depression on such a scale as to make its end consequence almost inconceivable.

Here is the evidence from which this somber picture comes:

THE UNITED STATES is thus far making no headway toward arresting — let alone reversing — its crippling inflation. Unless significant progress is soon visible, many Americans will be saying: "Give somebody the power to do it!"

Serious crime is not only imperiling the lives of people on the streets, it is causing more and more people to say: "If the police cannot protect us, we will protect ourselves!"

The standard of living almost everywhere in the world — including Europe, Britain and Japan — is threatened by the 400 per cent increase in the cost of oil imposed by the Arabs for political reasons. Nearly every western nation is in a state of political upheaval because of this condition.

Needed is a self-disciplined willingness by Americans to accept austere voluntary measures to save fuel. But only a united people can do this.

Many of the less-developed nations are overpopulated and underfed. Millions have been starving and still are. As one of the few countries with food surpluses, the United States cannot remain indifferent.

IN THE FACE of problems of such staggering magnitude, the government of the United States — the President, the Congress, the whole people — cannot safely continue to be distracted by the sins of a past administration. Our overriding concern must be the sinews of the new administration.

Unless we look forward and stop looking back, all may be lost!

Brown For President? Bug May Have Bitten

By EARL G. WATERS

Will Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown, Jr. be the next President of the United States? No, the question is not a typographical error. Brown is running for governor of California in this election, not president.

But even before California became the nation's most populous state, its governors were being stricken with the well-known political disease of "Potomac fever".

Earl Warren suffered from it and made two attempts to win the GOP presidential nomination. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown was bitten by the bug the day after he was first elected governor. And Ronald Reagan, only in office a year and a half, attempted a coup at the 1968 GOP convention and his present efforts indicate signs of a relapse.

THE FACT IS that, because of the state's population which gives it the largest delegations at the presidential nominating conventions, anyone elected governor becomes an instant presidential candidate.

Already eastern pundits are including Junior Brown's name in their lists of Democratic prospects in 1976. His injection into the national scene even before his election as governor is established, is largely due to the withdrawal of Sen. Ted Kennedy as a 1976 contender.

It is probably just as unfortunate for young Brown as it is for the people of California that the '76 national political sweepstakes has become mixed up with the immediate contest for governor.

But the campaign from this point on will be clouded by that issue. The question will be whether Brown is sincere in his desire to be govenor or is he merely seeking the office as a stepping stone to higher office? Since that is exactly what he did with the job of secretary of state, there is ground to be suspicious. And Californians have become increasingly bitter about the tendency of their governors to abandon them in the pursuit of national office.

HIS OPPONENT, Republican Houston I. Flournoy, escapes that stigma. Incumbent presidents invariably receive their party's nomination, and President Ford has already signalled he will be a candidate in 1976. If elected governor, Flournoy would not therefore be distracted by presidential ambitions — at least during the first four years.

So Junior Brown is now confronted with the necessity of assuring the voters that, if elected, he would devote his full attention to the job of being governor and not neglect those responsibilities by seeking the presidency.

That may be a tough one to sell.

10 YEARS AGO

Oct. 9, 1964

Texas cowboy Justin LittleBit, whose horseback ride through the United States had been held up over a week because he was not permitted to ride his horse across the Golden Gate Bridge, was finally permitted to cross — leading the horse.

In a State Department ceremony, the United States officially recognized Leif Erikson as discoverer of America.

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 9, 1954

The United States accused the Soviet Union of "wilfully and knowingly" lying about the shooting down of an American B50 bomber over the Sea of Japan in July, 1953, and asked damages of $2,785,493.

State narcotics agents claimed arrest of two men in Oakland had broken a ring that had done $1.5 million in dope business in two years.

Polite British Justice Moves With Astonishing Swiftness

The burglars, purse snatchers and other petty crooks who appeared on a recent morning in an English magistrate's court seemed to meet about the same fates as those who drift through the Marin Hall of Justice, but the pace was different.

The formality, even in the lowest court in Britain, makes our courts look a bit like a rock festival, but despite the courtesy and the bows, the system moved with the rapidity of an Old West lynching party.

THE SCENE was the magistrates' court in Scarborough, a summer resort town in Yorkshire on the North Sea, and the morning's batch of criminals was about as uninspired as those to be found most afternoons on the criminal calendar in Marin Municipal Court.

There was a scared young man (17-year-olds are tried in adult court in England) who had spent his hard-earned factory wages on a drunken spree in Scarborough. (His finances suffered an even worse blow when he had to pay a stiff fine for being drunk in public.) Then there was a mid-twentyish fellow who seemed to have stolen everything that was loose in several counties and an older man who was illiterate and who had tried to cheat a social security office, the latest in a long series of brushes with the law.

The most colorful occupant of the dock (English prisoners are actually placed in a wooden structure when they are brought into court) was a 31-year-old woman in the shortest possible denim miniskirt, who had attempted to relieve a drunken pub companion of some 250 pounds — a rather sizeable amount of money — but who had fled after somewhat of a scene in the women's restroom where she was trying to count the money.

There were some "postponements" of cases at the beginning of the morning (bringing to mind the "continuances" which take up so much of our court time), but most of the defendants chose to take their justice on their first court appearance.

PRESIDED OVER by three lay people (the magistrates), the court is run by a clerk, who is a lawyer. "We have no equivalent of the American district attorney," the clerk explained during a recess.

That role was played by a police inspector, who also would try some lesser cases. More major crimes are prosecuted by a lawyer (barrister) hired by the police.

Court opened with a general bowing to the magistrates, who were always addressed as "your worships."

Then the clerk called a case, the defendant was led from a hall into the dock, and the clerk told him the charges against him. The policeman read the facts of the case, saying, "Your worships, this is what John Smith would testify to, if he were called," etc.

People who had committed more serious crimes were offered a chance to have their cases tried by the Queen's Bench, an equivalent to our superior court, which meets in York for Yorkshire County. (That is presided over by a real judge who wears a wig and robes.)

But our cast of characters on the morning in question all mumbled, "I'll be tried in this court."

Then the clerk asked each in turn, "Then how do you plead?"

To the astonishment of the American visitor, they all answered, "Guilty."

IN ONE CASE, the crime had only been committed three days before — and in a Marin court, it's virtually impossible to plead guilty to a felony and be sentenced in less than two months, with most cases dragging on longer.

At any rate, the next surprise came when after each guilty plea, the magistrates recessed for a short period and promptly came back to sentence the defendant.

The only decision that took more than about 10 minutes was what to do with the woman who had the adventure in the pub's restroom. An English journalist explained that the problem was complicated because the pound-stealer had seven children and if she were sent to prison, floods of letters would deluge the local newspapers because it would cost the taxpayers so much to support the kiddies in mum's absence.

She finally was placed on two months' probation and reminded she owed an old unpaid fine.

"Fat chance of getting a quid out of that lot," the English friend muttered as we left the court.

For the English, it was a normal Monday morning in court, but to an American, it was a mind-boggling display of instant justice — with more cases tied up in a few hours than are concluded in a week in courts in this country.

Less Power Use Seen Cutting Nuclear Plans

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A top administrator for the Atomic Energy Commission yesterday said there would be a cutback in the number of projected nuclear power plants if the nation's electrical demands fail to increase.

L. Manning Muntzing, AEC's director of regulations, made the comment on the heels of a report which said the nation's electric industry's estimates of future power needs were exaggerated.

The year-long study by the privately financed Center for Science in the Public Interest also said the nation's demand for electrical power during 1974 has actually been held steady through conservation-minded policies.

"Seventy plants have already been stretched out delayed," Muntzing said when asked about future cutbacks. "I must say that the oil crisis of last winter changed everything dramatically in this country."

Muntzing said presently the increase in electrical use in the United States is at zero, compared to the historic 7 per cent annual increase in power.

According to the Atomic Energy Commission, 45 nuclear plants were licensed to operate as of last June 30; 60 were under construction; 105 far enough into the planning stage that reactors had been ordered; and 21 announced but for which no reactor order had been placed.

Before he went to Sacramento's new Rancho Seco nuclear power plant, Muntzing told newsmen: "There is no point in having excess capacity of the utility if users can't afford it. If we couldn't see a need for the electricty . . . wait until you need it."

The AEC licenses all nuclear power plants and has the final say on whether they are constructed.

"Obviously if there is not a need for power we would not reach a favorable decision on going forward with a nuclear plant," he told newsmen.

Muntzing said the energy crisis and reduction of electrical use has forced the AEC into reevaluating long-term needs for nuclear power.

Muntzing, who was appointed director of regulations in 1971, said new transportation systems could increase the need for electricity in the coming years.

Three Chess Tourneys Set In Near Future

Three U.S. Chess Federation-rated tournaments have been scheduled for Marin in the next two months.

The first, called "Harvest Open," is set for Oct. 19-20 at Robson Harrington House in San Anselmo.

Guide Dogs For Blind Graduation Saturday

Graduation ceremonies for 13 trainees will be held Saturday at Guide Dogs for the Blind, 350 Los Ranchitos Road, San Rafael.

A kennel tour and dog obedience demonstration will follow the brief ceremony at 2:30 p.m.

Mrs. Ibach Seeks Another Term On Hospital Board

MARION C. IBACH
Veteran director

Marion C. Ibach, a member of the Marin Hospital District board since the district was formed in 1946, is running for reelection in the Nov. 5 election.

She and two other incumbents and four challengers are vying for three posts on the board.

Mrs. Ibach's years of "health oriented" services go back to her early career as a public health nurse in Berkeley, from which she retired in 1938.

When she moved to Mill Valley in 1937, she found that the building inspector served as the health inspector and that the county had no health department.

As health chairman for the Mill Valley Parent-Teacher Association, she spoke out for more modern approaches to the county's health programs.

In 1946 she was named a director of the hospital district's new board, which finally saw a bond issue pass leading to the opening of Marin General Hospital in 1952.

Mrs. Ibach pointed out that Marin General is the "only completely general hospital in Marin County," offering an around-the-clock emergency room, medical, surgical, obstetrical, nursery, intensive care, pediatric and coronary care and other facilities.

"Marin General has led the way in outreach programs of preventive medicine in an effort to control and reduce the cost of health care," she said. "To this end it has not duplicated the costly services available in San Francisco medical centers."

Mrs. Ibach also noted that much of the equipment purchased for the hospital was paid for through gifts of individuals or the efforts of volunteers.

"Right now," she said, "the greatest need (at the hospital) is to increase the ancillary facilities to provide walk-in or ambulatory care to reduce hospitalization . . . Each patient seen and discharged the same day reduces the need for more costly bed construction."

Mrs. Ibach said that plans at present are to expand the hospital to provide more of this type of service without increasing the number of beds.

She defended the planned realignment of Bon Air Road, saying that not to plan for parking and moving of the road before the proposed expansion "would be more costly and not enable the board to adequately inform the public when you are asked to support a bond election to finance the expansion."

Mrs. Ibach called the hospital "one of the finest equipped hospitals of its size in the state and one of the best staffed and operated.

Mrs. Ibach, a widow and the mother of two grown children, lives in Mill Valley.

In addition to the hospital board, she is currently a member of many civic and other groups including the Marin Senior Coordinating Council, Marin Home Care, Marin Hearing and Speech Chairman, Marin Juvenile Court Auxiliary, Marin Mental Health Advisory Committee, Marin Comprehensive Health Planning Council and Marin Association for Mental Health.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Tiburon Fire Protection District of Marin County will receive bids for the installation of sewer line and pump system at Fire Station No. 2, 4301 Paradise Drive, Tiburon, California.

Each bid is to be in accord with the plans and specifications now on file at the office of the District Fire Chief, 1679 Tiburon Blvd., Tiburon, California, 94920, where copies of the same may be obtained.

Each bid shall be made on a form to be obtained at the office of the District Fire Chief, and must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check, or a bid bond for 10% of the amount of the bid, made payable to the Tiburon Fire Protection District, and shall be sealed and filed with the District Fire Chief on or before 5:00 o'clock P.M., October 23, 1974, at 1679 Tiburon Boulevard, Tiburon, California, and will be opened in public at or about 8:00 o'clock P.M., on October 23, 1974, at Headquarters Fire Station, 1679 Tiburon Boulevard, Tiburon. No bids shall be received after the time set above for receipt of bids.

The above mentioned check or bond shall be given as a guarantee that the bidder will enter into a contract if awarded the work and will be declared forfeited if the successful bidder refuses to enter into said contract within 10 days after being requested to do so by the Board of Directors.

The successful bidder will be required to furnish a Labor and Material Bond in an amount equal to 50% of the contract price and a Faithful Performance Bond in an amount equal to 100% of the contract price. Said bonds to be secured from a surety company satisfactory to the Board of Directors.

Said work shall be completed within 60 days from receipt of the notice to proceed.

Bidders are hereby notified that pursuant to Section 1770 of the Labor Code of the State of California, the County of Marin, Board of Supervisors, has ascertained the general prevailing rate of hourly wages and rates for legal holidays, and overtime work in the locality where this work is to be performed, for each craft or type of workmen or mechanic needed to execute the contract which will be awarded the successful bidder. These prevailing rates so determined by the Board of Supervisors, on file with the County of Marin, are the same rates used by the Tiburon Fire Protection District.

The successful bidder will be required to purchase and maintain insurance as follows:

1. Workmen's Compensation as required by the State of California
2. Employer's Liability Insurance - $100,000.00
3. Comprehensive General Liability Insurance: Personal injury, $100,000.00 per person, $300,000.00 per occurance; Property Damage, $100,000.00

The Board of Directors reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to waive any irregularity in any bid received. No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of 30 days after the date set for the opening thereof.

High Court To Rule On Rail Network

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today agreed to untangle the legal snarl that has held up development of a unified rail network in the northeastern United States.

The court will hear arguments Oct. 23 on the ruling by a special three-judge federal panel in Philadelphia last June that part of the 1973 Regional Rail Reorganization Act is unconstitutional. A written opinion will follow later.

The panel barred the United States Railway Association, created under the act to devise a "final system plan" for Northeast rail service, from certifying such a plan.

The certification would be sent to a special three-judge court established under the act to order transfer of rail properties to the Consolidated Rail Corp. (Conrail). The association is empowered to issue up to $1 billion of its federally guaranteed obligations to Conrail.

The opinion held that the law did not provide appropriately for loss to railroads which would be compelled to continue unprofitable service during the planning period. This lapse constituted a "taking" of private property without just compensation in violation of the Constitution, it said.

Another flaw was cited in the law's requirement that if a judge finds a bankrupt railroad cannot properly be absorbed into the new system he will dismiss the reorganization proceedings. The panel found this provision runs counter to a constitutional requirement for geographically "uniform" laws on bankruptcies.

The carriers involved were Penn Central; Reading; Erie Lackawanna; Central of New Jersey; Lehigh Valley; Boston & Maine; Ann Arbor, and Lehigh & Hudson.

The ruling of unconstitutionality stemmed from a lawsuit filed by the trustee of the New Haven Railroad and other major Penn Central creditors against the Justice Department, the association and Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar.

The New Haven trustee contended that the financial backbone of the new system — payment for rail assets with Conrail securities —is unconstitutional, and appealed to the Supreme Court its loss of this point.

Extra Funds Requested By Amtrak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unless the Amtrak system gets an extra $84.9 million, its passenger trains will stop running early next year, the administration says.

In a letter accompanying President Ford's request to Congress for the money, to be added to Amtrak's current $130.3 million annual appropriation, budget director Roy Ash wrote yesterday:

"Without the requested supplemental appropriation, Amtrak will not be able to continue train operation after February, 1975."

Congressional approval is considered likely because the White House asked for the additional money rather than making it look as if Congress was spending too freely, congressional sources said.

Another Amtrak bill has been approved by a House-Senate Conference committee.

It calls for a new Utah-Idaho-Oregon passenger route and requires that top priority in assigning new experimental train routes be given to states whose major population center does not have a passenger train.

The new route, from Ogden to Portland through Boise, will be ordered in a report accompanying a new $200 million Amtrak authorization. The first step in the process is to authorize money, but a second step is necessary to appropriate the money as Ford requested yesterday.

The bill, likely to pass both House and Senate, probably would mean future extensions of passenger service to Portland, Maine, Des Moines, Iowa, Sioux Falls, S.D., and other population centers not now on any passenger route. The Transportation Department must designate one new experimental route each year.

The conference committee compromise falls short of a Senate amendment that would have required immediate extension of service to major population centers such as Portland, Des Moines and Sioux Falls.

Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, light air pollution.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources.

San Francisco Bay Area: Fair through tomorrow, except for patches of fog or low clouds tonight and in the morning; high in the 60s near the coast and 70s inland; low tonight in the upper 40s to mid 50s; westerly winds 5 to 15 m.p.h. tomorrow afternoon.

Napa and Sonoma Valleys: Fair through tomorrow, except for patches of fog tonight and in the morning; high tomorrow and low tonight at Santa Rosa 82 and 44; light winds.

Sali Lieberman Is Sworn In As U.S. Citizen

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Sali Lieberman, 62-year-old Mill Valley resident, is now a U.S. citizen.

Lieberman, a native of Switzerland, was sworn in yesterday before Judge Charles B. Renfrew in U.S. District Court.

His first stop after the ceremony was at the passport office, since he has been unable to visit his native land in the 30 years he lived in the U.S. for fear he couldn't reuturn.

Judge Lloyd H. Burke in U.S. District Court made it possible for Lieberman to become a citizen by overruling Immigration and Naturalization Service contentions that Lieberman was a communist.

Lieberman has steadfastly denied being a communist but he also has refused to answer questions about his friends and relations.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Enlarged Goiter Doesn't Hurt, Surgery Can Cure Problems

A woman from Rahway, N. J. writes: "My goiter is enlarged enough to be noticeable, but it doesn't hurt or give me any trouble. I wear high-necked dresses to conceal it and have learned to live with it. But the situation has changed as I have developed palpitation of the heart. My husband claims it is so loud, he can hear it when we are in bed. I've taken my pulse at these times, and my heart is beating well over 100 beats a minute. My weight has gone down, even though I have a good appetite. My nervousness is the real problem. I've gotten so irritable that my husband has threatened to leave me.

"In the past, my doctors told me not to worry. They now think the thyroid gland is becoming overactive and should be removed surgically or treated with medicine. What do you think I should do?"

You ought to seriously consider surgery. I'll tell you why.

An overactive thyroid gland (hyperthyroidism) can be likened to raising the thermostat in your home. The body becomes warm, sweating may be profuse and, as you have said, there is nervousness, irritability and a rapid heart beat. In essence, your body is burning up due to the increased metabolism. Other hyperthyroid symptoms are a fine, rapid tremor of the hands, frequent blinking and a staring expression.

Antithyroid drugs are useful in younger people with an overactive thyroid. Several such agents including thiocarbamides, propylthiouracil and methimazole work slowly and must be used for a long time.

Radioiodine is useful in middle-aged and elderly sufferers of hyperthyroidism. The radioactive iodine particiles settle in the gland, where they act like miniature X-ray machines and suppress thyroid secretions. At one time, this form of treatment was used only on older people because there was some concern that it had cancer-producing potentials. To my knowledge, these fears have not been substantiated.

In your case, removing most of you enlarged gland will eliminate not only the goiter, but also the symptoms of hyperthyroidism. The operation is safe and lessens the need for months and months of medical treatment. However, as with other methods of treatment, you may need thyroid extract to keep your metabolism normal.

BLISTERED LUNGS

Mrs. L. W. writes: My 20-year-old son had to drop out of college because his lungs are blistered and one lung is partially collapsed. Will rest alone cure his condition?

REPLY

Spontaneous healing usually occurs, and the partially collapsed lung should expand again. Recurrences are a definite possibility as long as the blebs remain. These blebs are one of several causes of spontaneous pneumothorax, a condition in which the lungs are collapsed by the air that gets between the chest wall and the softer lung tissue.

WASHING AWAY GERMS

K. M. writes: Years ago, mother's doctor told her that washing the hands with soap and water would kill any germ. Is this true?

REPLY

I wouldn't go so far as to say "any germ," but cleansing with soap and water eliminated most microorganisms. Let's give credit to the washing process, which mechanically removes dirt and germs, rather than to the antiseptic action of the soap.

TIRED MAN

A reader writes: Will male hormone shots help a 70-year-old man get rid of that tired feeling?

REPLY

These injections will help if his fatigue is psychogenic.

House Committee Delays Decision On Transit Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Rules Committee today put off its decision on the mass transit bill until after the Nov. 5 elections.

The committee agreed without a vote to postpone its decision on whether to send the bill to the House floor for a vote. The House recess is scheduled to run from Oct. 11 to Nov. 12.

The committee voted 6-6 yesterday to shelve the $11.8 billion compromise measure and a new effort by supporters of the bill to resurrect it today was put off with little debate.

The six-year aid measure was drafted in a Senate-House conference committee after President Ford said he would veto an $11 billion, two year, House-passed transit aid bill with its mandatory spending provision.

Rep. Ray Madden, D-Ind., rules committee chairman, said, "There's no chance that this (conference) bill can be acted on before the recess. I suggest we postpone action on this bill until after the recess and then I'm sure we can get a transit bill."

Madden and Reps. Gillis Long, D-La., and Claude Pepper, D-Fla., angrily denounced the conference action and Long said "it was a radical departure from orderly procedure."

Arson Blamed For Three Fires

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Investigators believe that three fires set in San Francisco's Ferry Building Monday night were deliberately set.

The fires were discovered within an hour of each other and forced the evacuation of 200 diners at the World Trade Center club.

Arson investigator Ray Johnson said yesterday the same person apparently set the trio of blazes, which he said caused extensive damage.

TONIGHT'S TELEVISION

KPIX (5), 9 p.m. — Sandy Duncan, Bob Hope and Pearl Bailey join Bing Crosby in an hour-long music and variety special tonight titled "Bing Crosby and His Friends."

KGO (7), KNTV (11), 11:30 p.m. — Karen Valentine and Ken Berry host a tongue-in-cheek beauty pageant for men in "Bachelor of the Year" on the Wide World of Entertainment.

TELEVISION REVIEW

70-Year-Old Singer? Bing Does It Well

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — It often is alleged by me — that around age 50 a singer's voice tends to get the wobblies, misses the higher and lower notes and generally shows that time is unkind indeed.

Somebody should tip Bing Crosby on this. He doesn't seem to realize that at his age — 70 — you really aren't supposed to sing well, let alone sing. But he's doing both tonight on a one-hour CBS special.

The opus is called "Bing Crosby and His Friends," the friends being Bob Hope, Pearl Bailey and Sandy Duncan.

It has its share of flaws, the most prominent of which is Miss Duncan's vocalizing. But Der Bingle, who only sporadically appears on the tube, usually to tout orange juice, continues to surprise.

Not only is his baritone as mellow as ever, he still retains the deceptively casual sense of rhythm for which he's never gotten due credit, save from musicians and an aged Dixieland buff or two.

The best example comes about midway through the show when he rolls through a delightful time call "No Time At All" with all the apparent strain of a morning yawn.

He still swings with the best of them, and one only wishes he'd try a solo show — maybe just doing Johnny Mercer songs — some fine night.

Tonight's effort, taped at the Hollywood Palace, also features the time-honored Crosby-Hope verbal tomfoolery that goes back to their series of "Road" pictures. It starts with Hope's entrance.

"Well, it's the Henry Kissinger of Toluca Lake," Crosby notes.

Miss Bailey turns in a nice, if somewhat brief, solo stint singing and does some lively hoofing. Miss Duncan only dances well, appearing ill at ease when it's her turn to warble.

The show may not exactly knock you out, but it's a pleasant way to wile away an hour, if only for Crosby's singing and the excellent arrangements of musical director Peter Matz.

Dire Times dept.: ABC's Friday night schedule has been in severe ratings trouble ever since the season began. So the network is pre-empting all but "Kodiak" this Friday and repeating "True Grit" while program executives try to figure how to salvage the evening.

ABC sources expect an announcement of a series of cancellations, replacements, shifts in schedules or all of these to bolster its tatered Friday night effort.

But there'll be no changes until Nov. 1 at most. ABC says it's bumping all four of its Friday night series on Oct. 18 and 25 to show two other hit movies, "Gun of Navarone" and "Hatari."

Youth Wounded During Melee

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Chinese youth was wounded with a gunshot blast yesterday when a fight broke out during the noon lunch break at Galileo High School's main courtyard.

Police reported that witnesses saw more than 20 Chinese youths enter the yard and attack a 17-year-old black student with fists and clubs.

Others in the courtyard joined in the fight and a general melee followed, according to Sgt. Tom Mazzucco of the police Juvenile Division.

The wounded student was not identified. Two long butcher knives and one club was recovered from the courtyard by police.

Five-Year License Term Is Backed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted 62 to 10 yesterday to require that broadcast licenses be issued and renewable for a five-year term instead of the present three-year period.

The Senate adopted an amendment by Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., increasing the term of licenses issued by the Federal Communications Commission after defeating, 46 to 23, a substitute proposal by Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich. It would have given new licensees a three-year term, renewable for five-year periods.

The increased term was added to the broadcast license renewal bill which would direct the FCC to establish new rules and procedures requiring broadcasters to determine the problems, needs and interests of their audience and to reflect those "needs and interests" in their programming.

The bill, which passed 69 to 2, is similar to a House measure which also contains a five-year license provision.

The original Senate bill, as approved by the Commerce Committee, would have kept the existing three-year term.

Sen. John Pastore, D-R.I., chairman of the Communications Subcommittee, said the three-year term was necessary to protect the public's interest as well as those of minority groups seeking to deny renewal of a broadcaster's license.

The bill would direct the FCC in renewal cases to give overriding weight to three specific requirements in determining whether the public interest had been served. If the requirements are met, the bill would direct the FCC to presume that the "public interest . . . would be served by such renewal."

The requirements were: Whether a broadcaster has followed procedures to ascertain the needs and interests of the area he serves; whether the broadcaster has substantially met those needs and interests; and whether the station is not otherwise deficient in its operations.

The bill also would direct the FCC to complete proceedings on proposed rules governing multiple ownership of television stations.

Arguing for the longer five-year term, Tunney said it would help smaller stations with their "burdens" every three years of costly legal expenses and paperwork to win renewal challenges.

Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., said it was "unfair" to put the nation's more than 8,400 broadcasters "under the gun" every three years in order to maintain their licenses.

Impact Statement Hits Anti Abortion Move

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare told Congress yesterday a controversial anti-abortion amendment would virtually wipe out use of federal funds for abortions.

An official HEW impact statement to House-Senate conferees said the amendment would "severely constrain" medical schools in teaching abortion techniques, prohibit federally supported agencies from counseling on abortion services, and increase welfare costs by millions of dollars for maternity care for unwanted children.

A second statement by HEW's population affairs specialist, Dr. Louis Hellman, said the amendment would end federally financed abortions for rape victims, pregnant mothers suffering measles, and low-income mothers.

The sponsor of the amendment, Sen. Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., said federal agencies would still be permitted to advise an expectant mother where she could obtain an abortion and federal funds could still be used to train doctors to perform abortions to save a mother's life.

But, he said, while the Supreme Court legalized abortion, "the court certainly did not require Congress to pay for it."

Leukemia Fund Passes Halfway

The four bay counties, including Marin, have tallied more than half of the leukemia fund drive goal, with contributions still coming in, according to the Bay Area Chapter of the Leukemia Society of America.

Some $56,000 has been raised in Marin, San Francisco, Alameda and San Mateo counties toward the $100,000 goal, according to a leukemia chapter spokesman.

The drive ended Friday, but the money count has not been completed, he said.

Assemblyman Bill Bagley    Alan Hill

Here's why...

"I have represented our Marin-Sonoma district for 14 years, and I feel an obligation to recommend a qualified candidate to succeed me in the Legislature. That candidate is ALAN HILL. Not only does he know more about state government than most people now serving in the Legislature, but he is dedicated to helping average taxpayers with their problems . . . Alan has my complete confidence and enthusiastic support."

Tension Lifts From A's In Drive For Championship

NEAR THE END — The scoreboard told the story as Oakland A's pitcher Vida Blue reared back to pitch in the last inning of yesterday's American League playoff game at Baltimore. Blue stopped the Orioles on two hits and the A's won, 1-0.

Tenace Critical Of Dark

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Captain Sal Bando sees some of the playing field tension lifted from the Oakland A's today as they try to wrap up their third straight American League pennant against the Baltimore Orioles in the championship playoff.

But there was evidence of another episode of clubhouse dissension in the ranks of the defending world champions who need only one victory to nail down their third straight flag.

"This win enables us to play looser," Bando said of yesterday's 1-0 Oakland victory fashioned on his fourth inning homer and Vida Blue's superlative two-hit pitching. "I like our chances."

The victory against Baltimore's Jim Palmer moved Oakland in front two games to one in the best of five series and gave the Athletics the momentum of two straight shutouts against their Eastern challengers.

However, a disgruntled Gene Tenace openly criticized a strategy move by Manager Al Dark in yesterday's close contest and the outspoken Oakland player took a verbal poke at owner Charlie Finley as well.

"I thought he did the wrong thing," Tenace said of Dark's decision to lift him for pinch runner Herb Washington in the seventh inning. "You don't take out your best defensive ballplayer at a given position. I was very disturbed over the whole thing."

He manifested his disagreement by slamming his batting helmet on the dugout floor and it ricocheted out onto the field.

He didn't give all the blame to Dark.

"It's definitely coming from Charlie," he declared of the clubowner's controversial hiring of sprinter Washington. "He's the one who introduced the designated runner and I'm sure the manager wants to get him into the game whenever he can."

Blue's overpowering pitching performance clearly gave the A's a psychological lift despite the rhubarb.

"He threw as hard as anyone can throw for nine innings," Dark summarized. "You can't pitch better than that."

Blue said he felt tired prior to the game because "we've played 162 games this year," and added: "This wasn't a particularly sweet win. I like to win any game."

The Oakland southpaw walked none, struck out seven and didn't let two errors by second baseman Dick Green unsettle him. None of the four Oriole runners got beyond first base.

"We don't beat Palmer unless Vida pitches the game he did," Bando said.

"Not a run in two games," he said. "That's why they win. It's no good to be down two games to one. It's no fun at all."

"I wish I'd walked him," Palmer said of the low fastball Bando banged into the leftfield stands. "But I didn't think one run would beat us."

MOMENT OF DECISION — A's second baseman Dick Green appeared angry at umpire Marty Springstead, but he was really just excited after tagging out Oriole runner Don Baylor in the seventh inning yesterday at Baltimore. Baylor singled and tried to steal second, but was thrown out in the key play of the game.

ON BASEBALL

By GARY HUGHES

Call It Baseball's Second Season

We are now well into baseball's second season. The playoffs and World Series are not simply a time for four teams and then two to do battle. The post season period is also a time for all of baseball to come together to view the teams in action, to discuss possible trades or to simply renew acquaintances in a social atmosphere.

Representatives of various stations of the baseball world always surface at this time. Players, managers, scouts, newsmen and front office people can all be seen mingling in the hotels and ballparks of the participating cities. It is a fun time, a time for telling of stories that somehow seem to improve with each retelling.

In Oakland the place to be both before and after the game is the Edgewater Hyatt House. Located directly across the freeway from the Oakland Coliseum its lobby, coffee shop and cocktail lounge are filled with baseball dignitaries at this time of the year.

The front entrance of the Edgewater is graced by the presence of our country's most famous mule, Charlie O. A small corral keeps him from roaming out onto the Nimitz Freeway.

The past weekend's baseball crowd included new Cleveland manager Frank Robinson. His official capacity was that of color commentator for NBC but he could be heard telling anyone and everyone that next year's postseason play would be held in Ohio.

ANOTHER ROOKIE commentator was Boston Red Sox manager Darrell Johnson. He helped broadcast the weekend series to the Armed Forces Radio Network. He told me that injured catcher Carlton Fisk was progressing very well and would be fine for next year. Johnson told a very interesting story about Terra Linda's Bill Lee, his top left-hander.

In the last days of the season the Red Sox and the Orioles hooked up in a game that had to be halted three times due to rain. The interruptions totalled more than three and one-half hours. The game finally took almost seven hours to complete. Winning pitcher Bill Lee pitched the entire game.

I'm glad to say that on Sunday I was able to congratulate Al Kaline on his 3,000 major league hits. He was in Oakland to receive the Joe Cronin Award for outstanding play during the 1974 American League season.

THE KEY DEFENSIVE play in yesterday's 1-0 Oakland win was turned in by the man who also made two errors, Dick Green. His great catch and tag on Ray Fosse's one-hop throw retired Don Baylor and kept the Orioles out of scoring position in the seventh inning.

Bears Leading Pac-8 Statistics

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — California's strong 31-14 win over previously unbeaten Illinois is reflected in latest Pac-8 individual statistics, which show three Bears leading key categories.

Chuck Muncie of the Bears is the new rushing leader with 350 yards in four games and an 87.5 yards per game average. Don Reynolds of Oregon (81.5), Andrew Jones of Washington State (76.8), Anthony Davis of USC (76.3) and Russel Charles of UCLA (71.0) are also close to the top.

Steve Bartkowski of Cal is the passing leader with an even 200 yards per game and his favorite target, Steve Rivera, has grabbed 23 passes for 364 yards to lead everybody else by at least a half-dozen catches.

Celtics Lose Cowens For 7-8 Weeks

BOSTON (UPI) — Center Dave Cowens will be lost to the NBA champion Boston Celtics for 7-8 weeks because of a fractured foot, the team announced today.

Cowens was injured after pushing off the right foot during the third quarter of an exhibition loss to the Milwaukee Bucks in New York last night. He was playing his first game since bruising the arch on the same foot 12 days ago in a game with Denver.

Celtic team physician Thomas Silva, one of three doctors examining Cowens this morning at University Hospital in Boston, diagnosed the injury as "an undisplaced fracture of the metatarsal bone" behind the big toe on Cowens' right foot.

The fifth year pro from Florida State will be on crutches for two weeks but will not have his foot placed in a cast, Dr. Silva said. "He should be able to play by the end of November."

The Bucks and Celtics, the NBA's two finalists last season, seem star-crossed. The last time the teams met a week ago, Bucks center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar suffered an eye injury and a broken hand after a run-in with Don Nelson and the basket support, in that order.

Cowen's injury yesterday occurred when the red-haired center pivoted on the tender foot in order to stay with the driving Cornell Warner. His foot gave way and Cowens came out of the game.

"I should only have played a little, I guess," said Cowens after the game. "I had put a lot of pressure on it before that but something happened when I pushed off it real hard."

The loss of Cowens means the Celtics will keep center Jim Ard, who was to be cut before the season began Oct. 18 against the Buffalo Braves at Boston Garden.

Robinson Plans To Manage In Winter League

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — Frank Robinson, recently named player-manager of the Cleveland Indians, will return this year as manager of the winter league Santurce Crabbers, the president of the club, Hiram Cuevas, announced yesterday.

Robinson has managed the Santurce team for five of the last six seasons and in a recent interview said the experience would be invaluable to him in taking the helm for the Indians.

Cuevas said Robinson promised to be on hand here 48 hours after the end of the world series, for which he is acting as a television commentator.

New Look Seals In Opener

OAKLAND (UPI) — Everything about the California Golden Seals will be different when they open the National Hockey League season tonight against St. Louis.

The Seals' front-office also hopes that California will be in a different spot in the standings than the usual last place when the season comes to a halt next spring.

INSIGNIA

California has a new insignia, drawn by Peanuts creator Charles Schulz, and a new blue-gold-white uniform with the old green look gone.

One major concern of Coach Marshall Johnston is that Jim Neilson may not be able to play tonight because of a swollen finger.

Neilson, a 12-year NHL veteran once chosen for an all-star game, is the man who is supposed to help transform the Seals into a more aggressive team this season. The defenseman was obtained from the New York Rangers in a three-way swap that sent forward Walt McKechnie to Boston.

IMPROVEMENT

The Seals surrendered more than four goals per game last season but that average was about cut in half during a 3-3-1 exhibition series.

Goalies Gilles Meloche, who will start tonight, Gary Simmons and Marv Edwards looked sharp but the main reason for the improvement was that "the defense moved the puck out of there," says Meloche.

About 6,000 fans are expected for tonight's 8 o'clock opener at the Coliseum Arena.

The NHL has aligned into new divisions named after Hall of Famers. The Seals are in the Charles F. Adams Division with Boston, Buffalo and Toronto.

Dark Uncertain Of Future

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Alvin Dark isn't sure where he'll be next year, whom he'll be working for, or whether he'll be working at all.

There's a chance, a good chance, particularly with the man he's working for, he may spend all of next baseball season playing golf regardless what the Oakland A's do from here on in.

"It's up to God," says Alvin Dark, who always carries a bible around with him now.

"If God wants me here, I'll be here; if he doesn't I won't be."

In this case, God is Charlie Finley, which is about the way Charlie had it figured all along. Alvin Dark doesn't really mean it that way when he says it, but the effect comes out pretty much the same.

Alvin Dark draws somewhere around $35,000 to $40,000 for managing Oakland and being at Charlie Finley's beck and call 24 hours a day. His predecessor, Dick Williams, got $70,000 for the same job, concluded the money wasn't worth it after three years, even after winning a world championship twice, quit and ultimately wound up with a nice $30,000 raise.

He was standing near the first base line before his team's 1-0 playoff victory over the Baltimore Orioles yesterday when Finley's name came up among some of the media members congregated about him.

"Have you enjoyed working for him?" one newsman asked Dark.

"I'd have to say I enjoyed it," he said.

"Has he been a burden on you?"

Alvin Dark was silent a second, and the writer who put the question to him elaborated on it, and referred to all the "help" Charlie Finley is known to offer every one of his managers.

"I've changed my thinking on that," Dark said. "All managers and general managers work very closely. I came into the job with this thought: he is the general manager and owner combined in one. I don't have a 'middle man' the way other managers do. It's his job to do what he's doing."

Dark paused again.

"For some reason, whenever Charlie Finley comes into the dugout or the clubhouse everybody makes something of it," he went on. "I don't think what he does is wrong. As a matter of fact, I've gone to him and said, 'Hey, Charlie, give me your thought on it.'

"I don't feel like any manager shouldn't have someone he is responsible to. Why, the President of the United States has got to be responsible to someone. In fact, it's Biblical, and if it's good enough for the Bible, it's good enough for me."

All this is lofty enough and up-lifting, but there are even many places in the Bible where you can read about trouble.

Redwood Remains Unbeaten

Three goals by Manny Natsios powered undefeated Redwood High School to a 5-1 victory over Drake in a Marin County Athletic League soccer game yesterday in San Anselmo.

In other games, Ken Tompkins scored three goals and Steve McCarthy two as Terra Linda shut out Marin Catholic, 5-0; San Marin got two goals each from Dirk Linder and Tom Abelew to defeat San Rafael, 5-2; and Novato downed Tamalpais, 2-1 with goals from Floyd Given and Ted Schardt.

League-leading Redwood, now 5-0 shut out league-leading scorer Hugo De La Roca; Doug Olson got the Drake goal, only the second scored off the Giants this season.

De La Roca, normally a center forward, was forced to start at center halfback in the absence of Ken Turnbull, who was injured early this week in a road accident. Turnbull will be lost to Drake for two or three weeks.

De La Roca has 12 goals in five games to 11 for Natsios.

Standings — Redwood, 5-0; Terra Linda, 3-0-1; San Marin, 3-1-1; Drake, 2-2-1; Novato, 2-2-1; Tamalpais, 2-3; Marin Catholic, 0-4-1; San Rafael, 0-5.

Struggling WFL Resumes Action

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

And then there were 10...with nine a distinct possibility by season's end.

The World Football League is making rapid progress — backward — and that means only five games will be played this week instead of the customary six. We have paid our last respects to the Detroit Wheels and Jacksonville Sharks and with that done away with, can the Florida Blazers be far behind?

The "waffle" or "whiffle" if you prefer, resumes play tonight with what remains of its schedule — Portland at Birmingham, the Hawaiians at Philadelphia, Memphis at Charlotte, N.C., and Florida, the latest franchise to be taken over by the league office, at Chicago.

Two other survivors — Shreveport, La., and Southern California play tomorrow night on the west coast.

The league mounted a surprise challenge to the National Football League before play began in the older, established league by signing some top NFL stars for play in 1975. But since then, the latest brainstorm of Gary Davidson has run into a series of disasters, the latest being the folding of the Detroit and Jacksonville franchises.

Under the guidance of young Davidson, the WFL now has assumed the operation of two franchises, the abortive New York club which was transferred to Charlotte, and the Houston team which now masquerades as the entry from Shreveport.

While Davidson's other new league ventures survive in the World Hockey Association and the American Basketball Association, his WFL appears in dire trouble. Attendance figures, hypoed by free admissions in opening games, have slumped steadily, and the pressures of inflation have driven projected first season financial losses to heights never anticipated.

But the league insisted yesterday that the contracts of players now in uniform, and the agreements reached with such NFL stars as Larry Csonka, Kenny Stabler, Paul Warfield, Craig Morton and Ted Hendricks would still be honored.

Obviously, the league still hopes that with these names joining the ranks in the next two years, surivival is still a reality. But now, in its 15th week of operation, the problems continue to mount, and there is little talk of the "world" aspect of the new league.

Babe Ruth Award To Mill Valley Player

Karl Wittles, who played for the 1974 Southern Marin Yankees Babe Ruth League team, has been named to the league's national Athletes of the Year program.

The award is based on athletic performance in the league.

SAFE AT SECOND

Rennie Stennet of Pittsburgh slid safely past Dodger second baseman Dave Lopes in the first inning of yesterday's National League playoff game in Los Angeles. Stennet was running from first on a grounder by Manny Sanguillen. He scored moments later on a homer by Willie Stargell. The Pirates won, 7-0.

World Casting Runaway By San Francisco Youth

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

TAREE, Australia — Steven Rajeff, 17, of San Francisco, became the first competitor ever to win four events in a row at a world casting championship when he took out the inland fly accuracy title today.

Yesterday Rajeff showed he would be the competitor to beat in the world title this year by winning the first three events — the skish fly accuracy, the three-eighths ounce and five-eighths ounce skish competition.

SPORTS SHORTS

Hockey

PRAGUE — A rejuvenated Czechoslovak hockey team jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the first 10 minutes yesterday and went on to hand Team Canada a 3-1 defeat in the final game of its European visit.

Baseball

CLEVELAND — Frank Robinson, the new player-manager of the Cleveland Indians, will have new coaches for the 1975 season.

General manager Phil Seghi announced yesterday that the tribes' coaching trio of Larry Doby, Clay Bryant and Tony Pacheco would not have their contracts renewed.

Opening Win

Bill Spencer scored in the first half to give Marin Academy a 1-0 victory over College Prep in a Bay Counties League opening soccer game yesterday at Oakland.

Basketball

MILWAUKEE — The Milwaukee Bucks said yesterday they had obtained forward Steve Kuberski and given up forward Russell Lee in a deal with the New Orleans Jazz.

The Bucks also gave up their 1975 first round draft pick and an undisclosed amount of cash while New Orleans handed over its right to a 1975 second round pick which the Jazz had obtained earlier from the Phoenix Suns.

Tennis

TOKYO — Cliff Drysdale of South Africa today defeated Bob Rheinberger of Australia 6-2, 6-4 in the second round of the men's singles in the $100,000 1974 Japan Open tennis tournament.

No. 1 seeded John Newcomb of Australia, who drew a bye in the first round and arrived yesterday from Honolulu, defeated Mitsuru Motoi of Japan 6-1, 6-2.

PHOENIX — Unseeded Wendy Overton pulled a stunning first-round upset over third-seeded Evonne Goolagong last night in the $50,000 Virginia Slims-Phoenix tennis tournament, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4.

Davis' Knee Injury Turns Out To Be Only A Bruise

OAKLAND (UPI) — Clarence Davis' knee injury is only a bruise and he says he'll be ready to play Sunday when the Oakland Raiders call on San Diego.

Meanwhile, lefty quarterback Ken Stabler says he is depressed that he is not throwing the ball well despite the Raiders' 3-1 record and 40-24 win at Cleveland Sunday.

"I don't really know why, but I'm not throwing the ball at all as I was last season at this time," he insists. "My 47.8 per cent average tells it pretty well."

Although Stabler complained about his passing, nary a peep was heard from the coaches after his 19-of-33 for 237 yards and three touchdowns against the Browns.

Davis had maybe his biggest day as a pro in that game as he ran for 116 yards and caught four passes before limping off late in the contest. He was loaded aboard the team plane in a wheelchair lest the injury be a serious one but he got the word it was only a bruise yesterday.

Although Davis insists he'll play Sunday, the Raiders are listing him as "questionable" for the Chargers, especially since Charlie Smith is expected to be back in action after recovering from a pulled leg muscle. They may want to rest Davis so he'll be sure to be healthy the rest of the way.

Marin Ends Tamalpais Net Streak

Marin Catholic High School edged previously unbeaten Tamalpais, 4-3, and undefeated Redwood blanked Novato, 7-0 in Marin County Athletic League girls' tennis yesterday.

In other matches, Drake edged Terra Linda, 4-3, and Marin Academy defeated San Marin, 5-2.

Marin Catholic's victory was decided in doubles, where Moe O'Connel and Paula Carbone of the Wildcats defeatec Tam's Marie Haxton and Ann Laneshi, 10-6.

Marin Catholic 4, Tamalpais 3

Marin Booters Defeat Ohlone

All-American Misak Pirinjian scored on a direct shot with six minutes left yesterday to give College of Marin a 3-2 victory over Ohlone of Fremont in a non-league soccer game at Kentfield.

Mike Linder scored his eighth and ninth goals of the season for the Tars, who twice came from behind to record their fourth win against four losses and a tie. Linder's second goal came with 12 minutes to go in the game.

Fall Tennis Classes Set In Strawberry

The Strawberry Recreation District will hold a fall series of tennis classes from Oct. 14 to Nov. 4.

There will be children's and adults' classes, according to Gayle L. Hunter, district manager. Fees are $8 for residents and $10 for non-residents. Registration can be made at the district recreation center.

Stars Not Worried About WFL Woes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The financial problems of the World Football League don't seem to worry three Bay Area pro stars who plan to jump to the new league.

San Francisco 49er tight end Ted Kwalkick has signed with the Hawaiians of the WFL for nearly $1 million over three years, with fringe benefits reportedly including a home in the islands.

"I'm not concerned about the WFL now. I'm thinking about the 49er season," says Kwalick, who will joint the new league in 1975. "About my contract, that is no worry. The money is there. It is guaranteed. That's all I can say."

Oakland Raider quarterbacks Ken Stabler and Daryle Lamonica are headed for the Birmingham Americans and Southern California Sun under similarly lucrative pacts.

Stabler will play for Oakland two more years and Lamonica will join the WFL next season.

"If they go broke, then they go broke," Stabler said yesterday. "I'm not worried about it."

Stabler said he is concentrating on San Diego, the Raiders' next opponent. He said "the WFL is two years away. I'm just thinking about what we have to do right now."

Both quarterbacks said their payment on multi-year contracts is insured, the money already in escrow or insured.

Lamonica said "the league will make it. I'm sure they anticipated these losses."

Lamonica has seen only a few moments of action since the Raiders have relegated him to reserve duty. He admitted he was resigned to playing little this season.

"It's what I expected, it's what I'm getting," Lamonica said. "But it's hard. Damn hard."

Raiders Favored, 49ers Underdogs

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals, one of three undefeated teams in the national football league, were given an underdog role in odds posted yesterday by HVARRAH'S Tahoe racebook.

The Dallas Cowboys are a three-point choice over the Cardinals, who have won four straight.

Minnesota and New England, the remaining unbeatens, are favored in this weekend's action. The Vikings are picked by 18 over Houston and New England by three over the New York Jets.

In other NFL games, the racebook has Oakland 15 over San Diego; Detroit 10 over San Francisco; Cincinnati 10 over Cleveland; Miami seven over Washington; Philadelphia six over the New York Giants; Chicago four over Atlanta; Pittsburgh eight over Kansas City; Buffalo 15 over Baltimore; Los Angeles 12 over Green Bay and Denver 14 over New Orleans.

On the collegiate front, No. 1-ranked Ohio State is a 22-point choice over Wisconsin in the big-10 opener; No. 3 Michigan 21 over cross-state rival Michigan State; and No. 4 Nebraska is 21 over Missouri.

Other games have California eight over Oregon; UCLA 11 over Stanford; Southern California 20 over Washington State; Washington-Oregon State even; Duke 20 over Army; Maryland 21 over Clemson; Penn State seven over Wake Forest; Purdue two over Illinois; Syracuse three over Navy; North Carolina State 14 over Virginia; Georgia four over Mississippi; North Carolina four over Georgia Tech; Auburn 11 over Kentucky; Iowa two over Northwestern; Kansas eight over Kansas State; Notre Dame 33 over Rice; Florida seven over Vanderbilt; Minnesota 10 over Indiana; Arkansas 14 over Baylor; Oklahoma 25 over Texas; Tulane seven over Air Force; Colorado seven over Iowa State; Texas A&M three over Texas Tech; South Carolina 15 over Virginia Tech; Southern Methodist eight over Texas Christian; and Louisiana State six over Tennessee.

Three-Way Tie In Water Polo

Terra Linda High School edged San Rafael, 11-10, yesterday to throw the Marin County Athletic League water polo standings into a three-way tie for first place.

Tom Enright scored six goals to pace the Terra Linda victory. The Trojans are tied for first at 2-1 with San Rafael and the Redwood Giants, who walloped Tamalpais, 40-12 in yesterday's other game.

Dave Russell and Doug Hale had eight goals each for Redwood.

STATEMENT OF POLICY REGARDING POLITICAL ADVERTISING

Any political advertisement that is not clearly the personal appeal of the elective candidate or candidates involved must show the name of the sponsoring group together with the name or names of one or more persons officiating for such group and their address.

All political advertisements are payable in advance. Charges are figured at the prevailing flat rate.

Advertising deadlines are 4 p.m., two working days preceding publication. Tuesday advertisements must be in Friday by 4 p.m., Monday advertisements must be in the preceding Friday morning by 11:00 a.m. Any intervening holiday advances the deadline by a day.

No responsibility to show printer's proof is assumed under the above schedule.

If a proof is desired, advertisement must be submitted substantially in advance. Corrections, if any, must be ordered by 4 p.m., two working days preceding publication. Any changes from original copy will be charged for on basis of printing work involved.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Boat Owner Groups At Your Service

A reader writes:

Are there any organizations which truly represent the interests of the small boat operator?

Another asks: "Are there any groups anywhere in the United States which will keep the average boater informed of trends and influences in boating? Will anybody report the creeping bureaucracy which is tending to engulf the American boatman in new rules, regulations and restrictions of his sport?"

There are a couple of groups which fall into this category. One of them is Boat Owners Association of the U.S. (Boat U.S.), based in Washington. Boat-U.S. also provides insurance and financing programs for pleasure craft operators. The other is called the Boat Owners Council of America (BOCA) and is based in Chicago.

BOCA is a non-profit organization designed for the man who doesn't belong to any other group. It's for the unorganized or the anti-organized boat owner.

The Council gets financial support from the Boating Industry Association, which naturally has a small axe to grind. This group, which represents manufactures of boats, outboards and other boating equipment, wants to keep boating the free, growing sport. The council wants to keep its devotees buying their products. This is not bad.

It costs $5 a year to belong to BOCA. Members get a kit containing legislative handbooks, safety materials and identifying pennants. They are kept abreast of developments by newsletters and a color magazine called "WaterSport." Watersport contains no advertising.

BOCA keeps a man permanently in Washington to watch for developments affecting the nation's boaters. It also watches state legislatures because every state always has some kind of restrictive boating legislation under consideration.

Membership is 30,000 now and is steadily increasing. Every boater should join.

For full information write: BOCA, 401 North Michigan Ave., Chicago, Illinois 60611.

There is considerable confusion among boaters about boating organizations and groups and their functions. This is demonstrated by some of the letters I've received this year:

Q. My state doesn't have much water, where can I get free boating lessons.

A. Write to United States Power Squadrons, Box 345, Montavale, N.J., 07645, for the location of the Power Squadron closest to you. You'll find one even in the desert.

Q. How can I get connected with the Coast Guard Auxiliary on the West Coast?

A. Write to the Commanding Officer of the Thirteenth Coast Guard District, 618 2nd Ave., Seattle, Wash., 98104, and ask for the closest "flotilla." That's what they call a unit of the auxiliary. It is not a police organization in any respect. The Auxiliary is a volunteer group of private boaters or yachtsmen, banded together to augment this important branch of public service.

Q. Where can I get help in forming a boating club with emphasis on water skiing?

A. Write to the Outboard Boating Club of America, 401 North Michigan Ave., Chicago, Illinois 60611. This is an organization affiliated with the Boat Owners Council we mentioned earlier. It is very helpful.

Q. I have had a ship to shore radio for some time, now I discover I have to get a license . . . Where?

A. You need two licenses . . . one for the station and one for the operator. Get forms FCC 501 and FCC 753 from the closest field office building in your state capital, or you can apply directly to the FCC ships licenses division, Washington, D.C. Fill in the forms and return them to the Washington address.

Q. Is the Power Squadron movement international. Would it be helpful in an overseas cruise?

A. Only Canada has a Power Squadrons organization like the USPS. In fact, you can hardly tell them apart. Yacht club affiliations are more useful for cruises to the Bahamas, Mexico, Britain or Europe.

Q. Does the Coast Guard set the rules for speedboat racing?

A. No. If you have aspirations of becoming a racing boat driver write to the American Power Boat Association, 22811 Greater Mack, St. Clair Shores, Michigan, 48080; Harry Smith executive secretary.

Q. Is there available anywhere a list of all boats, engines, etc., available in the world?

A. Write for Boat Owners Buyers Guide, 50 West 44th St., New York, N.Y. 10036. It may not cover the entire world, but what's left out is insignificant.

Willard Listed As 'Doubtful'

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Running back Ken Willard is listed as doubtful with a knee injury for the St. Louis Cardinals' game with Dallas at Busch Stadium Sunday.

Willard twisted the knee in the first half of the Cardinals 34-9 win over San Francisco last Sunday.

Wide receiver Mel Gray, who hurt his ankle in the game, and offensive tackle Ernie McMillan, who suffered an injured foot, are listed as probable for the Dallas game.

Overtime Victory For Lakers, 116-113

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — Guard Gail Goodrich scored a game-high 27 points to provide the Los Angeles Lakers with a 116-113 overtime victory last night over the Phoenix Suns in a National Basketball Association pre-season game.

Cordova Wins Job At QB

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sophomore Mike Cordova will be the starting quarterback for Stanford when the Cardinals open their 1974 Pacific-8 conference football season against UCLA Saturday night in Los Angeles, Coach Jack Christiansen announced.

"I think Mike can do the job best," Christiansen told the Northern California Football Writers meeting here yesterday.

Cordova alternated this fall at quarterback with Guy Benjamin and Jerry Waldvogel while Stanford ran up an 0-3-1 record. Christiansen refused to name a first-string signal caller earlier because he promised each quarterback a chance to start.

"Guy and Jerry played well, but Mike has the size, strength and ability to run with the ball and throw the ball," Christiansen said.

The 6-foot-4, 215-pound Cordova went the distance in Stanford's season opener against Penn State, and passed for 301 yards in a narrow 24-20 loss. He currently ranks 15th in the nation in total offense and eighth in passing.

Christiansen emphasized, however, that Cordova is not yet confirmed as the starting quarterback for the rest of the season.

Browns Not Wasting Time Signing Players

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Cleveland Browns, with the signing of defensive tackle Jerry Sherk to a three-year pact, now have 31 of their 47 players under contract through the 1975 season.

Sherk, the bulwark of the Browns defensive line along with Walter Johnson, had been eyeing a World Football League contract but decided to stay with the Browns. Sherk, the last player to sign this year with the Browns, is committed to the club through 1976.

QUITE A PROBLEM

49ers' Offense All Run, No Pass

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — About this time a year ago, John Brodie was the starting quarterback for the San Francisco 49ers and the club was being criticized for being all-pass and almost no-run.

But this is 1974. Brodie has retired, heir apparent Steve Spurrier has suffered a shoulder separation, and now the 49er offense is all-run, no-pass and headed for few victories.

The Golden Gate club is the No. 1 rushing team in the National Conference of the National Football League, but last in passing. More importantly, they are trailing the Los Angeles Rams in the NFC West.

The 49ers will carry a 2-2 record into Monday night's game against Detroit, but most of the credit for those two wins goes to a stubborn 49er defense and opponent miscues.

"We hoped to have a solid running game. Now we've got it," said Don Heinrich, who coaches the 49er quarterbacks. "But something's happened to our passing."

What's happened is that Joe Reed, the strongest armed of the 49er quarterbacks, isn't hitting anything but astroturf with his passes.

"I'm sure he has his own thoughts on the matter," Heinrich said, "but everyone — quarterbacks, golfers, baseball players — has his slumps."

Inexperienced left-hander Dennis Morrison will start in place of Reed against Detroit. If he can't regenerate the 49er attack, enter rookie Tom Owen. If he fails, and Steve Spurrier still hasn't recovered fully, the 49er offense becomes problematical.

"I used to call up the lady that gives you the right time, just to have somebody to talk to. Then I found Vat Gold. At last I could afford to entertain. It had that famous Vat 69 label on the outside. What was on the inside was even better. And the price tag. I had to look at it twice to believe it. I said to somebody at the office, 'Hey, I found Vat Gold'. She said, 'Let's have a party at your place'. She brought her friends. Now they're my friends. PIRATE POWER — Pittsburgh Pirate strongman Willie Stargell belted this pitch from Dodger starter Doug Rau for a three-run home run in the first inning yesterday at Los Angeles. The Pirates got five runs in the inning and went on to a 7-0 victory in the third game of the National League playoffs. (UPI Telephoto)

IT WAS MATTER OF TIME

Loud Crash Of Pirate Timber

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Danny Murtaugh, Willie Stargell and Bruce Kison agree — it was just a matter of time before the crash of Pirate timber began echoing in the Dodger forest.

Pittsburgh's 7-0 pasting of the Dodgers yesterday — cutting Los Angeles' lead in the National League playoff series to 2-1 — was the largest margin of victory ever in a major league championship series game.

"The Pirates can really explode when they get hot and we did it today," said winning pitcher Kison, a long and lanky 24-year-old righthander. "We have some of the best hitters in baseball and you can't stop them forever."

Stargell, who blasted a three-run home run in the first inning that proved all the Pirates needed, wanted to share some of the credit.

"Good pitching stops good hitting and Bruce Kison was super," said Stargell, who went into the third game of the series with a .412 average.

"We knew we had a job to do, otherwise it was back to Pittsburgh," said the Pirate muscleman. "Now we hope we can bring it down to the wire."

Pirate manager Murtaugh, who celebrated his 57th birthday yesterday, was asked if he could think of a better present than the victory.

Murtaugh, hesitating for a moment, suddenly lit up. "When I was younger, yes!"

Kison allowed the Dodgers only two hits, struck out five and walked sixth before he tired and was relieved in the seventh. But he said his troublesome finger problem was not a factor.

"During the season, my thumb would get irritated by about the fifth inning and a blood blister would develop by the seventh," Kison said.

"At the end of this game, I was just tired," he said. "My thumb did get irritated but there was no blister."

Kison, who lives with his wife and daughter in North Versailes, Pa., had pitched 13 innings of post-season competition previously and had given up only four hits. His record in playoff and World Series play is 4-0.

"This was my first start in a post-season game," he said. "I'd be lying to say I wasn't nervous before the game. Our backs were against the wall and I was starting. Last night when I went to sleep, hitters kept going through my mind."

Asked why he was so successful as a post-season pitcher, Kison replied: "You might ask the guy up above."

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Jacksonville Sharks coaches and players yesterday expressed dismay and confusion at the suspension of the World Football League team, and some players even packed their bags to leave.

The financially-plagued Sharks were suspended by the World Football League Monday night and given just 48 hours to come up with a new owner or be disbanded.

WFL Commissioner Gary Davidson said in Newport Beach, Calif. in making the announcement, that if the team is disbanded the players will be subject to a draft to distribute them to other WFL teams.

The league estimates that a potential investor would have to come in with at least $1 million "up front" to obtain the Sharks. League officials indicated that the earlier price had been $2.5 million.

Shark's head coach Charlie Tate said yesterday he doesn't think the WFL wants to disband the team. "We've got to sit tight. We don't have any choice. Hopefully something good will happen in the next few hours," Tate said.

The 70 players on the roster, who have received only one weekly paycheck in the last five games, are sitting around waiting for something to happen. Many of them have their bags half-packed.

Coach Tate said "I don't know what is going on, our front office doesn't know what is going on, the media doesn't know what is going on and the league office doesn't know what is going on," he said.

Place kicker Grant Guthrie said he just wants something to happen. "This has hurt my family already," he said. "If I have to go somewhere else I want to go right now."

"I'm almost sorry to hear we have another 48 hours," Guthrie said. "I've been loyal long enough — if I can get into the National Football League I'm going."

"If the draft is held, I'll have to go because I'm still WFL property," said defensive end Bob Tatarek. "If I don't go, I'll have to forfeit my back pay. I don't know whether it would be better to sue the league for our back pay and future pay or go to the draft."

They're Bowling In A Moscow Tent

By GEORGE MONEYHUM
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The latest rumblings in Moscow are coming from bowling balls stamped "Made in America."

In one of the lesser-noticed triumphs of detente, the Soviet Union has opened its first public bowling alleys in a completely automated 16-lane center built by an American firm and sent all the way from Skokie, Ill. — "with love."

On hand to cheer this new stride up the alley of international cooperation — and give Soviet novices a few tips on the fine art of lobbing a big ball down a small lane — were a group of U.S. businessmen, bowling champions, and diplomats.

As might be expected, the first bowling center in the USSR is said to be like no other in the world — mainly because the alleys are housed in a huge air-supported tent. Built and manufactured in Sweden, the tent measures 100 feet by 150 feet at its base, and rises — with the help of constant air blowers — 40 feet above Moscow's Gorki Park.

Sketch by Gene Langley

Now for only 50 kopecks a game — about 68 cents — Muscovites can follow the footsteps of some 8.5 million Americans every week.

The American bowling equipment was purchased by the Soviets following a recreational trade show held in Gorki Park in 1971. After the three-week show, the Soviets signed a five-year agreement with the Brunswick Corporation of Skokie, Ill., to purchase and install 24 lanes — 16 to be installed initially and the remaining eight later. The bowling equipment was shipped to the Soviet Union via the St. Lawrence Seaway in 1972 and held there until the Gorki Park site was selected.

But it wasn't only the bowling equipment that caught the Soviets' imagination. From that 1971 show, they also bought a West German roller-coaster, "dodge-em" cars made in Italy, a shooting gallery from Great Britain, and another set of bowling lanes from Japan.

Moscow has had a four-lane bowling alley since 1972, also an American one, but it has had limited use by high officials only. The lanes from Japan have also been available for restricted play. The lanes opened this weekend are the first for the general public.

According to industry sources, bowling has become a $2 billion annual business in the U.S. and the game's public bow in Moscow is part of its rapid growth in popularity in many countries.

Japan is second to the U.S., which has some 52 million bowlers.

Bowling is also big in Europe, where 10-pin bowling is rapidly replacing the traditional small-ball game; it is also played in Canada and northern Latin-American countries such as Colombia and Venezuela.

Bowling is played regularly in 51 countries. The U.S. alone has 275,000 leagues — for men, women, youngsters, and other special groups.

According to industry officials, the advent of automatic pin-setting machines in the early 1950s sparked the rapid growth of the game. In the mid-1960s, however, the game for a time was "oversold" and dipped in popularity. At the bottom of its popularity in 1968, some 38 million Americans still played.

Why would Russians decide to try their hand at bowling, when they have been adamant in resisting other forms of Western culture? Industry spokesmen say part of its lure is that bowling is a year-round sport, played indoors, and ideal for a cold Soviet winter.

Also, they contend, it appeals to the masses; no elitism is involved, a trait considered naturally appealing to a Communist country.

Volleyball Win For San Rafael

San Rafael High School's girls' volleyball team came from behind to defeat Drake, 11-15, 15-11, 15-9 yesterday and remain undefeated in the Marin County Athletic League.

The Bulldogs are 4-0, ahead of Tamalpais, which won its third game without a loss yesterday, 15-10, 15-3 over Marin Catholic. Redwood defeated Novato, 15-6, 15-7 in another MCAL game.

Jean Zerrudo led San Rafael with 13 service points.

NHL Begins Its Season

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The National Hockey League kicks off its most inflated season ever tonight with almost every team that survives the season having a shot at post season play.

The NHL, which has watered down its product by expanding to 18 teams this season with at least two more to come in the years ahead, will also allow for two-thirds of those 18 to participate in the playoffs. All you have to do is finish in the top three of your division — two of which are comprised of just four teams and two of five.

So if the season has been a bore in years past because of the lengthy "second season" (i.e. the playoffs), tune in later on in May...or will it be July this time?

Proposal Has Merit Depending On Taxes

By ROGER E. SPEAR
and DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. About 2 years ago, I bought UMC Industries (NYSE) at 25⅛. I am thinking of buying another 100 shares, and later selling 100 shares for the tax loss in April. Would you advise me to take this action? — H.D.

A. Although UMC has moved up 26 per cent from its 1974 low, it is still well below your cost price, which unfortunately was close to the all-time high on the shares. While some additional price recovery is probable, a major move to your cost is unlikely over the near term. Management has made progress in moving earnings ahead, but high costs reduced profit margins in 1973 and in the first half this year. This was particularly true in the company's paper products division, which was further hurt by competitive pressures, precluding price increases to offset rising costs. This division accounted for 29 per cent of 1973 sales and slightly more of operating profits.

The potential for UMC's automatic merchandising equipment division is good (52 per cent of sales, 48 per cent of profits). Backlogs are up, demand strong and facilities are being enlarged. With the shares now yielding 10 per cent on a well covered dividend, your proposal has some merit depending on your particular tax situation.

Q. My 87-year-old mother was advised by her banker to buy at $102 the 9 per cent Treasury note due August, 1980. Formerly, she had always bought Treasury bills. At her age and with interest rates rising, she would have been better off buying the T-bills which were auctioned the same day at 9.43 per cent. Should she switch now? — E.D.

A. Rather than advancing, short-term interest rates have declined dramatically. At a recent auction 13-week bills were sold at 7.2 per cent. Your mother's banker pinned down a high interest rate in a safe, long-term security. While he might have been better off choosing the 33-month 9 per cent note, the yield to maturity on this issue was lower on the offering and it is currently trading below the 6-year note.

TYPEWRITER WHEEL GROWS UP

The wheel on the antique toy typewriter held by Aaron Harris, 9, operates in a similar way to the unique typing wheel developed for the new Xerox 800 electronic typing system. Mrs. Connie Dunlop shows Aaron how the system whirls the typing wheel around electronically at lightning speed to print the proper letter with a tiny hammer. The Xerox 800, the company's first entry into the word processing field, automatically types from magnetic tapes or cards at up to 350 words a minute.

Business Foes Using Energy Crisis—Exec

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Critics of U.S. business are using the energy shortage as a rallying point to build support for more governmental regulation — which further could erode the private enterprise system.

Howard W. Bell, vice-president and director of Standard Oil Co. of California, expressed these views here in a speech to the central area conference of the Young Presidents' Club.

As an initial step, Bell said, critics of business are concentrating on the oil industry, proposing to break up the major oil companies, to regulate the industry as a utility, to create a national oil company, and to increase oil's taxes and limit badly needed profits.

Mixed Market Reaction To Ford Program

NEW YORK (UPI) — An uncertain and cautious stock market moved slightly lower today in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange amidst mixed reaction to President Ford's economic program.

The Dow Jones industrial average lost more than 4 points yesterday awaiting Ford's program after gaining 23 points the day before in anticipation of it.

The Dow's gain Monday was its first in 12 sessions after it had lost nearly 90 points. Analysts said investors still did not know if the market had reached a bottom in a lengthy slide which began in August.

The market's movement was not broad, indicating uncertainty and caution. Declines led advances, 636 to 440, among the 1,478 issues crossing the tape. The margin had been wider in earlier trading.

Simplicity Pattern was the most active Big Board issue, unchanged at 7 ½ on 109,100 shares.

Chemicals and oils were mixed. Dow Chemical lost 1 ½. Kerr-McGee added 2 ¼, but Schlumberger lost 1 ¾ and Exxon 1.

Transportation issues were irregular. Norfolk & Western and Chessie System paced the rails higher, gaining 1 and ⅞ respectively. Chessie has raised its dividend and proposed a stock split. Delta Airlines lost 1.

In the electronics and computers, Sperry Rand, Burroughs, Honeywell and Digital Equipment were point-sized losers.

Golds were higher, paced by ASA Ltd., up 1 ¼, and Dome Mines, 1 ⅛.

ARA Services lost 2½, J. C. Penney 1 ⅜ and Upjohn 1.

Prices were mixed in moderate trading on American Stock Exchange. Dome Petroleum Ltd. was the most active Amex issue, off ¼ to 17 ½ on 11,100 shares.

Sandwich Shop, Plant Store Open Side By Side

A new sandwich shop called Charley's Buffet and a store featuring indoor plants, called Little Green Plant Shop, will open side by side in the One Fifty Bellam Boulevard Building in San Rafael.

CHARLEY'S BUFFET, scheduled to open in a day or two, will be operated by Karl and Edith Klauda, who ran the Old Vienna restaurant on Lincoln Avenue until they sold it last April.

Charley's will feature hot and cold sandwiches, salads, home made soups, beer and wine, and will be open Monday through Friday from 10:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. The shop has seating for 30 and will also have food for takeout.

LITTLE GREEN PLANT Shop, scheduled for opening on Oct. 18, will be owned by Jeff Mears and Bill Bear, who have operated the Little Red Dog Motel at 58 Gary Place for the past two and one-half years.

"We treat dogs right, and we'll treat plants right," said Bear. "We'll have all kinds of plants from succulents to hanging ferns, and also fresh cut flowers each day. We consider plants as individuals and treat them as such, just as we do dogs and cats. They require proper food, water, light, and soil conditions."

Little Green Plant Shop will have accessories such as pots, compost and other materials for plant care and will offer instruction for the proper care of various indoor plants. It will also carry wind chimes and mobiles.

Deming

Corredor

SHIRLEY DEMING and CARLOS A. CORREDOR have opened their own real estate brokerage firms at 235 Third Street, Montecito Shopping Center, in San Rafael.

They share offices with Montecito Realty, owned by Nat Marans, but all three operate as independent brokers.

Mrs. Deming, who has been active in real estate sales in Marin for the past seven years, was formerly associated with Kay Noah in Kentfield. She deals primarily in residential and multiple residential properties.

Corredor, formerly with Frank Howard Allen in investment property, specializes in income and investment properties.

BLACK OAK SALOON at 1111 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur, which held its grand opening last month, is open seven days a week from 11:30 a.m. to 2 a.m.

The saloon serves all kinds of drinks including Irish coffee, plus steak dinner, soups and sandwiches. The kitchen closes at 10 p.m.

Owners of the Black Oak Saloon are William Knox and Doug Shanstra of Larkspur and Tom Dick of Novato. Knox was in the bar business for about seven years, formerly in Santa Monica and the last three years in Mountain View before opening in Larkspur.

The new owners have remodeled the interior of the building with a funky design, redwood decor, pot belly stove, and antique furnishings. The saloon has seating for 120 customers.

STU BETZ of Mill Valley has been named director of staff services for Lyon's Restaurants, headquartered in Burlingame, President James T. LeCompte announced.

In his new position, Betz will be responsible for all personnel functions, including management selection and training, labor relations, and salary-benefits administration. He will be in charge of staff services for Lyon's Restaurants as well as two new divisions, Almanack and Lyonet Restaurants.

Betz joined Lyon's in 1962, was named manager of Lyon's Sacramento restaurant, and was promoted to regional manager in 1965. In 1972, he became director of operations, a position he held until his new appointment.

King

Brennan

CALIFORNIA CANNERS and Growers in San Francisco announced the election of two Marinites to assistant vice president of marketing — Dave King of Kentfield and Edward Brennan of Mill Valley.

King joined the firm in 1968 and became director of industrial sales the following year. Brennan joined CCG in 1964 and rose to brand manager and director of brand marketing.

GALERIE ANGLETERRE, specializing in fine English paintings and drawings, has opened at 120 Main Street on Tiburon's Ark Row.

Located above Set Point tennis shop, Galerie Angleterre is open seven days a week from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., with parking in the rear. It is owned and operated by H. J. Fabian of Tiburon and his partner, Ed Cunningham of Greenbrae.

Galerie Angleterre (which means English gallery) features primarily water colors, some oils, acrylics and other media. The works are by well-known English artists, and all the framing is from England.

Fabian said he just purchased some 17th Century French engravings and will also have pottery from Wales and art books. Fabian was in the art business in Los Angeles for the past 15 years, selling paintings and graphics and importing art from Europe. His partner came to Marin four months ago from England where he was in the import-export business.

PASSENGER CAR TIRE GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees each of its passenger car tires for a specified number of miles when used on passenger cars or station wagons, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of:

- defects in material or workmanship,
- normal road hazard failure,
- premature tread wearout (2/32 inches or less remaining);

Montgomery Ward will:

1. During the first 10% of guaranteed mileage, replace the tire free.
2. During the remaining guaranteed mileage, replace it for a prorata charge based on mileage used.

Nail punctures repaired free during the entire guaranteed mileage.

Charge after first 10% of guaranteed mileage based on selling price in effect at the time of return at branch to which returned, including federal excise tax.

Passenger tires used on taxicabs, and motor vehicles other than passenger cars are guaranteed on the same basis against defects in materials and workmanship only.
